How Far Can You See?

Can you comprehend what the future growth of Omaha means? Can you see ten or fifteen years into the future and take advantage of that growth?

Do you realize that no city in the country has any better location than Omaha for future growth? Do you know that no city on this continent is in better financial condition than Omaha, nor is there one that is growing more conservatively

Are there not men of your acquaintance who have gotten rich, or at least acquired comfortable fortunes, by cautious investments in Omaha real estate? Those men had no better opportunity than you have today in Benson Gardens. The growth of Omaha is westward and Benson Gardens is in the line of

No Cars of Cash Wheat Sold on the Omaha Market-Corn is Somewhat Lower.

OATS FOLLOW CORN DOWN

OMAHA, May 5, 1915.

Trade in cash wheat was very light and there were no cars reported sold to-day. The market for wheat was quoted nominally a ½ cent lower.

The corn market was also duli and that cereal was unchanged to ½c lower. The receipts of corn were fair and the sales amounted to about fifteen cars.

Oats followed corn and wheat and declined ½c. Receipts of this cereal were very light and the demand slow.

Rains over the southwest have placed the crops in most excellent condition. The only unfavorable crop report received was from Boswerth, Mo., saying that the crop there has been cut is percent by chinch bugs, and that many fields will be plowed up and seeded to corn.

Clearances were: Wheat and flour equal.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Features of the Trading and Closing

Prices on Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Bearish crop estimates today pulled down the price of wheat Aithough steady at the close, the market was le to 1½c under last night's level. Other leading staples, too, all showed a setback. Corn, ½c to %2½c net; oats, ½c to %2½c, and provisions, 25,370c.

Wheat speculators turned readily to the selling side, knowing that the market at first had displayed a tendency to advance. Relative strength of quotations to Liverpool, was what chiefly helped cause the early upturn here, but aimlisr change completed after the issuance of a statement by a prominent export indicting that the domestic winter crop territory at harvest would be 4,500,000 acres larger than last year.

Flattering conditions in the wheat fields were reported as existing at such extremes as Ohio and Texas. Samples apparently demonstrated that the crop in Texas was nearly headed, almost to the Oklahoma line and would be in full head in a week. On the other hand, export clearance were small, equal to only about half the primary receipts for the day.

Corn soon became heavy with wheat. Corn soon became heavy with wheat. Some export selling at the seaboard had no more than a temporary influence in sustaining values, being offset by word of better weather in Argentina. Trading in oats was for the most part local. Changes in price followed the action of other careais.

Packers selling more than counterbalanced in the provision market, the effect of an early advance in the hog market. Shippers bought ribs freely, but pork and lard received no equal support. Futures ranged as follows:
