INSURANCE AGENTS MEET TO TALK SHOP

Fire Policy Writers Hold Meeting at Columbus and Urge Uniformity of Rates.

GRAND ISLAND GETS MEETING

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 4.—(Special.)—With 150 agents present the State Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents closed its session today. The meeting was the largest ever held by the association.

The session was held under the trees outside Orpheus hall, the address of welcome being given by Mayor Rothleiter, who said that this was the day of organization, when all lines of business, banks and farmers alike, had recognized the importance of united effort in their several lines. Representative W. H. C. Woodhurst of North Platte responded.

Great Total of Business.

State Insurance Commissioner L. G. Brian spoke on "Insurance Regulation." Mr. Brian said very few people except those connected with the insurance business appeared to comprehend the great importance of the insurance business. In 1914 there was $48,933,000,000 of fire insurance written in the United States outside of the mutual companies, which had written in the neighborhood of $36,000,000 more, making a grand total of nearly $85,000,000,000 fire insurance for last year.

Premiums and Losses.

There was paid in net premiums $33,000,000 on the insurance written for that period, while $30,000,000 was paid in losses. It cost in 1914, according to the commissioner, $1.66 for each $100 written, while five years ago it had cost $1.12 per $100. Losses were 60 per cent of premiums collected. He said the records showed that there had been a greater loss and a decreasing premium. He desired a law passed to control companies unauthorized to do business in the state, and said there were insurance agents in Kansas City with no office but a box in the postoffice collecting thousands of dollars in Nebraska and there was no protection to the insured.

Support for Fire Warden.

He advocated a more loyal support of the state fire warden's office by the insurance companies, for with sufficient funds to work with and carry on inspections the fire losses would be materially decreased.

Arthur Mullen of Omaha compared the work done by the state guarantee banking law with the present condition in insurance matters. He said if the state could regulate the banking business it could regulate the insurance business just as well. He ridiculed the proposition that the passage of an insurance bill similar to S. F. 46, defeated by the last legislature would make rates higher. He called attention to the passage of the anti-pass law several years ago which had been beneficial to everybody concerned and had raised rates only on the one-third of the passengers who had been riding on passes. He said the present system was a cut-throat system of conducting insurance.

Inequality of Rates.

E. C. Folsom of Lincoln quoted from insurance reports showing the inequality of rates as charged in the different towns of the state. He showed that in many towns the percentage of insurance written of a rebate nature was variable. In one town 7 per cent in the policyholders received a rebate while in another town 32 per cent were rebated. He said that much had been said about the anti-discrimination law of Kansas, a law similar to the one which was before the Nebraska legislature last winter and charged to have been introduced to raise rates. He said that the Kansas loss was much higher than in Nebraska and that the charges made were untrue.

Labor Commissioner F. M. Coffey gave a short talk on the workings of the workmen's compensation law.

After the noon luncheon addresses were delivered by L. H. Stubbs of Chicago, F. T. B. Martin of Omaha, Lee Hamlin of Omaha and John C. Byrnes of Columbus.

Byrnes for New Law.

Mr. Byrnes gave a short talk on the efforts to get S. F. 46, the anti-discrimination insurance bill through the legislature and believed that efforts should be made to give the people the facts in regard to insurance during the coming few months and let them know just what a uniform insurance bill would do for the policyholders of the state.

Officers elected were:

President, C. T. Flower, Grand Island; vice president, Fred Wait and Nathan Roberts, Lincoln, and Gus Becker, Columbus; secretary-treasurer, F. T. B. Martin, Omaha; chairman of executive committee, W. L. White, York; chairman grievance committee, Fred Wait, Fremont; chairman legislative committee, J. C. Byrnes, Columbus; chairman membership committee, John Madden, Omaha.

Grand Island was selected for the 1915 meeting.

Resolutions were passed endorsing the work of Insurance Commissioner L. G. Brian in the jurisdiction of the insurance department.
