RAIN TO BE GREAT HELP TO THE CROPS

Farmers from Out in the State Say the Recent Rains to Do More Good Than Harm.

FORAGE CROPS ARE GREAT

Nebraska's already bright crop prospects will generally be helped, rather than hurt, by the last heavy rains, according to farmers from out in the state who are in Omaha temporarily on business. They agree that the prospects as a whole are splendid, and that Nebraska will probably reap bountiful crops as the result of the bountiful rains.

Although railroad tracks and bridges are out in some places and low land fields in certain localities are flooded, by far the greater part of the state's rich farm land is on higher ground that will be benefited by the generous moisture without being touched by any near-floods, the farmers say.

At the Merchants hotel, three up-state agriculturists stated that little damage would be felt from the last rain, and that would be limited mostly to the comparatively small area of low land and to hillside corn that might have been washed away by heavy downpours. Small grain and forage crops would show no damage outside of lowlands along streams, they said, and as to the corn, it is still early enough in the season to replant any that may have been washed out.

Benefited by Rains. S. F. McNichols, farm land man of O'Neill and former treasurer of Holt county, who just came down from his town, expressed the opinion that the splendid conditions that prevailed generally in his part of the state would on the whole be made still better by the last rains.

"We have more moisture than usual, a greater area is under cultivation, and all the crops are farther advanced," he declared. "Crop conditions are wonderful, and point to record breaking harvests."

Oscar Peterson, a rancher and farmer south of Newman, Rock county, said: "There has been only small damage to corn in my district; small grain is in great shape and the hay crop is going to be a wonder. The plentiful rains have made all the farmers and ranchers very optimistic."

"I am sure that the Madison county farmers are mighty happy," said Carl Peterson of Newman Grove. "Crop prospects are splendid there."

Invalid Asks that Divorce Be Set Aside

Mrs. Inez Kennedy, made an invalid by severe burns received one year ago, when a gasoline stove exploded, asks the district court to set aside a decree of divorce granted William E. Kennedy, secured, she asserts by his request.

An affidavit signed by her and filed with a motion to set aside the decree, sets forth that her husband represented he had a big damage suit at Sioux Falls, S. ENOUGH BUSINESS IN SIGHT TO FILL THE JULIA TWICE

There is enough cargo in sight at Omaha now, according to Commissioner Manley of the Commercial club, to load the "Julia" twice over for the first trip to Decatur when that little craft arrives at Omaha preparatory to making its first trip. Some of the freight will have to wait for the second trip. The little barge is expected in Omaha within a week. Because Decatur has no railway and because there is a great deal of business transacted between business men in Omaha and Decatur, it is expected that cargoes will always be ready when the boat is ready to move.
