A color scheme of pink and lavender was followed at the church and the home, where a reception followed to the wedding guests.

The chancel of the church was banked with palms, ferns and quantities of Killarney roses and orchids.

The bride was attractive in a gown of rose point lace, made with a train five yards in length. Her veil was of rose point lace and was worn far back from the face. A shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley was carried.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Clifford Wolfe, wore a gown of peach blossom shaded chiffon, accented with an overlash of pink soft satin. The overlash was embroidered with tiny bow knots in the pastel shades. The bodice was of oriental lace and chiffon trimmed with the tiny bow knots. With this was worn a unique set of maline in the peach blossom shade and following the Lady Duff-Gordon model. She carried a shower of pink roses and orchids. The bridesmaids were the Misses Catherine Baker, of Michigan City, Louise Head of Kansas City, Florence Long and William McFerron, all of Chicago, and Mr. Clifford Wolfe.

They were gowned alike, in lavender tulle with trimmings of real lace. They wore hats of the same material as the gowns, trimmed with real roses, and carried shower bouquets of lavender orchids.

Mr. Linsen Dyer was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Howard Sandberg, Lloyd Evans, John Banks, Arthur Long and William McFerron, all of Chicago, and Mr. Clifford Wolfe.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The rooms were abloom with Killarney roses and lavender orchids. In the dining room a mound of orchids and pink shaded candelabra decorated the table.

The brides go-away-gown was of black and white check silk, with this she wore a very small blue hat and a large corsage of orchids.
