Smith Advises Care in Building Ring for Stecher-Cutler

"One of the things Promoter Gene Melady should pay especial attention to in the arrangements he is making for the big Stecher-Cutler wrestling match of July 5 is the matter of ring building," writes Ed Smith of Chicago, referee of the coming match, in a communication to the sporting editor of The Bee.

"As I understand it he is to pitch his ring about the center of the baseball field or almost immediately over the home plate, this place being selected that the best view may be had by all of the spectators, high priced as well as bleachers. That is very fair and equitable for all hands, but in the building of the ring itself too much care cannot be exercised.

"To begin with the promoter must see to it that the ring is so constructed that the chance of accidents to the contestants is reduced to the minimum. This is one match that everybody wants to see decided strictly on the merits of the men and should an accident be a factor one way or another it would be a source of lasting regret to everybody connected with it.

"One of the greatest rings I ever saw was that arranged at the White Sox ball park in this city in which Frank Gotch defeated George Hackenschmidt of London, England, for the world's title in their second meeting. "To begin with there was an extremely wide ledge to the ring beyond the outer ropes. This made it utterly impossible for either of the men to step off or be thrown off the staging and fall to the ground outside of the ring."

The Omaha committee in charge has received word that all passenger associations have granted the 2-cent rate to all letter carriers who will attend the letter carriers' convention in Omaha September 6 to 11. Thus any letter carrier coming to the Omaha meeting will only be charged a 2-cent rate, no matter from what part of the country he may come.
