How long is the continuing Indian mmer to keep a restricted social calendar? They say, some of the highbrows, that society is a very artificial affair. without soul or true conception of beauty.

I am wondering. Haven't I seen how things have gone this last week? There has been practically nothing doing, just because the weather has been so fine.

The only affairs that were not put off were some fixed stars in the social firmament and the entertainment of guests. But even the guesta were, willy-nilly, taken motoring.

They let on, as all well behaved guesto should, that they liked it. Perhaps. It was the same tale from popular nostess after hostess-just metering, mo--no one would be so dead as to stay indoors such weather as this!

Only the very young set, the kiddles who enjoy a snow storm more and o day after Wordsworth's own heart, showed any social inclinations the last week. With Hallowe'en affairs they did keep things stirring and make some copy for this page.

They were not dull affairs, either, those juvenile parties. On the contrary, they were quite individual in their decorations, showing a strong preference for striking ornamentation, as cornstalks

After all, this is admitted to be "the age of the child," and a little more propaganda of the John Dewey school and kiddles may soon monopolise the social page itself.
