CH, never give your whole heart up-take it from one that knows! The first may seem a gooldie, but the second's like a rose; And kissin' still is kissin,' lad, from Antrim down to Clare, And the world is full of women-and life too short to care

Aye, kiss away their tears, me lad, and hold them at a song; The heart that lovin' lightest is the heart that lovin' long! So, leave the girl beyond the hill, and greet the one above-Och, don't be lovin' women, lad; but just try lovin' love. -ARTHUR STRINGER.

The following note came to me by post the other day:

"Dear Mellificia: A lady has called me a philanderer. Please tell me ALGERNON PERPLEXED." I have a wee suspicion that the writer knows better than I can tell him what a philanderer is, Evidently Algernon would be a courting and not a marrying man, He T. Graham and F. W. Fitch requested H. Bell, Vandergraft, Pa. Obtainable is spring-born with a wandering taste and a straying heart. He would the postponement with the explanation everywhere. Advertisement. Hve in perpetual May-time with the flowers and the sunshine and the gladness of life. The philanderer is not even a bad citizen. At his very worst he is but a poor gamester, willing only to play to his own turns. He is at fault in sportsmanship. Of his destiny he is only willing to take the suggestion. but never the taste; of life he is contented with the shadow and refuses the

Of course, it is all very sweet and rapturous to live in continued spring. But every one does not take living's mission in this way. The vast majority of humanity is willing to play life's game to its end, giving pay for their Joy in its consequence of pain and responsibility.

Here is where the trouble comes in concerning this philandering. But, if a man is determined to trifle, let him seek his own kind, finding his feminine counterpart in the flirt. By all means, philander with a coquette, Algernon. There are women aplenty in this world who prefer to quaft but the light froth of love. In fact, they are on the lookout for just the like of

We have heard, too, of the biter getting bitten. We enjoyed it; it was a great satisfaction to know that two houses should not be spoiled by a philanderer and a flirt.
