The tonal beauty and clear articulation of the human voice and even the personality of the singer is preserved. It is easy to tell who is singing. In the upper soprano registers the tones are clear, round and full-not shrill.

The quality of tone is the same with either a loud or soft needle.

The volume of sound can be regulated to the size and acoustic properties of a room.

Mr. Cheney, the inventor, is a violinist. The violin curve has for centuries been used to produce the purest, sweetest tones known in the construction of musical instruments. This violin curve Mr. Cheney has applied in the construction of the Cheney Talking Machine.

The Mechanical Throat-Cubical air chamber constructed on the same principles of the human throat. To illustrate the exactitude with which the structure of the throat is copied, there is even a mechanical palate bar that to the function of the palate in the human throat.

The "Cheney" is a machine that not only reproduces sound, but also overtones or colortones, wherein lies the charm of vocal, instrumental and orchestral music. It preserves and reinforces the pure tone in its entirety. All rasping and scraping sound, due to the mechanism, are minimized. In the reproduction of orchestral music a perfect ensemble is maintained - every individual instrument is heard distinctly. and in perfect balance with every other instrument.

We want you to hear this remarkable instrument, whether you intend to purchase or not, doesn't matter. If you siready own a talking machine, you'll be interested in making a comparison. But hear it. Come anytime. Demonstrations all day long,
