STATE TAKES REFUGE IN SUPREME COURT

Attorney General Reed Enjoins Oil Companies from Enjoining Harman.

HOPES TO SUPERSEDE SUITS

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Jan. 6.—(Special.)—As a counter action to the suits brought by certain oil companies yesterday in Omaha to restrain Deputy State Oil Commissioner C. E. Harman, from collecting inspection fees for inspecting their product, Attorney General Reed in behalf of the state and the oil department, made application to the supreme court today for an injunction to restrain the standard oil company, the National Refining company, the Cudahy Packing company and Cudahy Refining company, the Manhattan Oil company, the S. L. Collins Oil company, the State Oil company, the Marshall Oil company, the B. & L. Oil company, the A. H. A. Oil company and the L. V. Nichols Oil company, from interfering with the duties of the oil department in carrying out the laws of the state regarding the inspection of oil.

The application of the attorney general for an injunction recites that the expense of maintaining the food, drug, dairy and oil commission is paid out of the fees collected by the department and that there is no other way to pay the expense which amounts to $5,000 a month. The state believes that injunction is necessary to protect the health, life and well being of the people of the state and unless an injunction is issued, the state, its officers and its agents will be involved in expensive, needless and vexatious litigation and deprived of its sovereign rights and powers as a state.

Late in the day the court took up the matter and issued a temporary restraining order, the hearing to take place before the supreme court of Friday, January 21.

It is assumed that coming from a higher court that this order will virtually supersede the order against Harman secured in the Douglas county district court yesterday.

Nurse Sues Patient For Ten Thousand

FALLS CITY, Neb., Jan. 6.—(Special.)—A suit filed in the district court that may prove of considerable interest, if it comes to trial, is that of Tanner against De Vinney. Miss Tanner, a trained nurse, was waiting on Mrs. De Vinney, when a revolver in her hand was discharged and the shot lodged in the foot of Miss Tanner. She now brings suit for $10,000 damages. The plaintiff and the defendant are non-residents. Miss Tanner's home is in Kansas City and Mrs. De Vinney is at present with her husband upon a ranch in Wyoming. The defendant's attorney is trying to throw the case out of court for lack of jurisdiction over his client, while the plaintiff's attorney is trying to get the defendant and her attorney to make a general instead of a special appearance.

O'CONNOR CLAIMANT LAWYER KIDNAPED

John Kirkman of Omaha Asks Hastings Police to Help Locate Him

SAYS RIVALS HAVE GOT HIM

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 6.—(Special Telegram.)—A sensation of an entirely unexpected nature was sprung in the John O'Connor case this afternoon, when John Kirkman of Omaha, professed son of O'Connor, charged that his attorney had been lured away and possibly kidnaped by secret agents representing rival claimants to the estate. The missing attorney is Judge Roscoe Kirkman of Richmond, Va., distinguished in the south as an attorney and an actor. Though not related to his client, whose name is the same as his own, Judge Kirkman was retained in the case by the Omaha man while he was on a visit to Richmond some months ago seeking evidence in support of his claim. Mr. Kirkman this afternoon reported the disappearance to the Hastings police, asking that the assistant in locating the missing lawyer. Judge Kirkman is about 32 years old, about five feet six inches in height, weighs 150 to 160 pounds, is smooth shaven, wears glasses, has his hair in the middle, has a round face and gray hair about the temples. So far as known the disappearance has not been reported about the court room where the case is being tried. All save one claimant, J. B. O'Connor of St. Joseph, have offered proof, though not all have finished. Arguments in the case will probably be begun Saturday. No order of procedure has been agreed upon with regard to the adjustments, but it is generally understood that it will be in the order in which proof was offered.

MR. REED HIRES LOADS OF HELP

Attorney General Extremely Busy with His Private and State Affairs to Look After.

BUSY MIDNIGHT OIL BURNER

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Jan. 6.—(Special.)—The attorney salary which the state pays its officers, has very frequently been called to the notice of the public because it has been conclusively shown from time to time that a poor man can hardly fill a state office and come out whole on the salary with the numerous inroads he has against it outside of the duties. The latest is shown in the case of Attorney General Reed, who since he has been attorney general has had quite a little business of a private nature outside of state business. Mr. Reed admits that he practices a little when it does not interfere with the state's business and continues to keep his office open in Madison, where he has hired an attorney to carry on the business in connection with his partner.

Cost of Private Business.

This he says has cost him $5,000 during the time he has been attorney general and this is twice as much as he has received from the state. He admits that he burns the midnight oil trying to run the state's business and his own at the same time and to show that he has a job on his hands the supreme court yesterday fined him $40 for failure to get in a brief on time in one of A's personal cases. However, be that as it may, somebody is working at any rate, for the state is paying for more help than it ever did before in the legal department. Besides the regular stenographer there has been an assistant most of the time since the new administration came into power in the attorney general's office. An extra assistant attorney general also has been hired, but Mr. Reed claims that this has not been caused by his private business, but that there has been a great increase in the legal business of the state since he took charge of the legal department.

Quarrels Help Some.

The quarrelling of the democratic state officials and departments among themselves has made extra business for the state legal department in the way of running down the law and grinding out opinions. It is true that some of the fellow democratic officials of Mr. Reed have refused to abide by the opinions emanating from the legal opinion mill operated by Mr. Reed, but he has continued to grind them out just the same, as they could "take 'em or leave 'em alone," just as they pleased. It was no fault of the attorney general if the other state officers thought he knew more about law than he did. He was paid by the state to grind them out and he did so. If the other officials quarrelling among themselves have made it necessary to hire more help, then the blame should be heisted from the shoulders of Mr. Reed onto the shoulders of the fellows who persist in raising Halifax instead of dwelling together in unity like their predecessors did.
