Even the Renter Buys a House -Only He Doesn't Get It

What would you think of a man who paid his good, hardearned money for an article and then didn't get it? That's exactly your position, if you are a renter,

There are families in Omaha who have paid, many times over in rent, the purchase price of the house they live in. But they are no nearer owning it than they were the day they moved Take your own case. A few minutes' figuring with pencil and paper will show you the surprising amount of rent you have paid. Or hunt up your old rent receipts and add them up. Enough to buy a pretty fine home, isn't it? Yet, at the present rate you won't own a home ten years from today. But why keep on at the present rate? There isn't another thing you would be willing to pay for-and not get. Why follow this absurd plan with your home? Johnson, who works in the same office as you, owns his home-Perkins, who draws a smaller salary, owns his-Thompson, who has a bigger family to support, owns his. You're as good a man as any of them. Why should you keep on buying more houses for some landlord? Put it up to your wife. You will find she has been thinking of this very thing lots of times.

Make her happy by announcing tonight-

"No more rented houses for us."

Established, reliable Omaha Real Estate firms are offering splendid homes in these pages; many of them are payable "same house anyway-you might as well own it. (Signed)
