TORTURES TO FOE

President Ernst of the board presented Protest Alleges Prisoners Were Placed on Ramparts Under Fire of Teuton Guns.

LONDON, Jan. 29 .- The foreign office this evening made public a note from the German foreign office, transmitted through James W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, relating to alleged cruelty on the part of the French and English troops toward German prisoners. The British government gives unqualified denial to the charges.

The note requests the Washington government to transmit a protest against "this violation of international law" to both the British and French governments. Some of Instances. The instances of alleged cruelty cited are: First, during the battle at Guise Jongeux, August 30, 1914, a French officer ordered a severely wounded German officer to be placed on the ramparts of a French trench under the fire of German artillery with the object of having him killed by German bullets.

Second, on January 13, 1915, in the neighborhood of Soissons, French troops placed two captured German soldiers on the ramparts of their trench, which was under German fire, and compelled them thus to pass many agonizing hours. Third, between March 13 and 17, 1915, British troops in front of their trenches at Aubers tied a wounded German officer to a tree and opened fire on him when he waved his handkerchief to the German lines and repulsed by firing the desperate position. Proof of Accuracy.

German attempts to free him from his

"Evidence given at German military inquiries into these incident," says the note, have given us proof of their accuracy." The British reply to the charges is an nqualified denial from Field Marshal French in command of the troops at the time of the alleged cruelties, which is supported by statements from officers along the front where the cruelties are alleged to have occurred.
