and Mrs. Whitman, and it was some-thing to be on hand for. The women have definite reasons for their Hughes campaigning. Al-though one clause in their credo has to do with the suffrage for women, there are enough clauses which have nothing to do with it to bear them out in their statement that this venture is purely impersonal and that it is be-cause of belief in the ability of Mr. Hughes to better the social conditions of the country that they want him for president. The women who will speak on this trip are largely those who have worked and do work along social lines throughout the country, and base their belief on the stand which he has taken on these ques-tions. Albany N. Y., Oct. 2.—The women campaigners for Hughes reached this city on schedule time, left the rail-road station in automobiles for the executive mansion, where they were given a bit of luncheon by Mrs. Charles S.
