HUNGERFORD, the northwest Nebraska farmer and land man, announced that he will be at his Crawford office or in telephonic touch with his Crawford office for the next ten days—those desiring to meet him there had better go at once. It is always good judgment to wire Mr. Hungerford when you start from home, so that he will be in Crawford when you arrive. He has nearly a score of places scattered around Dawes county, which he personally superintends, and is very busy. Yet always meets you if you will advise him by wire what train you will arrive on in Crawford. It is said that Hungerford farms more acres than any other five men in northwest Nebrasks. any other five men in northwest Nebraska and that he sells more land than all other land men in northwest Nebraska com-bined. You must therefore figure that he is kept pretty busy. If you happen to be in Omaha see his Dawes county crop ex-hibit in the show windows of his Omaha office at the corner of 15th and Roward streets. Just across the street from the Auditorium building. Mr. Hungerford is also at the head of the Hungerford Po-tato Growers' association, whose offices are at this corner. If you cannot move onto a place yourself you can buy a few of these potato tracts—his company farms those tracts for you, giving you two-fifths of the crop. Mr. Hungerford wants to give this company the big part of his time, so is offering ten of his personal farms for sale on small payments down and the balance payable in shares of crop or small annual rayments at light interest.
