P. E. O .- Pretty Expensive Order?

"What does 'P. E. O.' stand for, do you know?" is the question on the lips of half of Omaha's population. The supreme P. E. O. sisterhood is now holding its biennial convention in Omaha and the five-pointed star and the yellow and white banners of the order are everywhere to be seen.

"Protect Each Other" is one of the popular guesses, but a facetious husband ventured the guess, "Pretty Expensive Order," when he counted 600 guests who were entertained at the anquet last evening at the Scottish Rite cathedral at the expense of local

P. E. O.'s frequently refer to "our B. I. L.'s." These are not the bills, but the "Brothers-In-Law," as the husbands of P. E. O.'s are called. Husbands of Omaha P. E. O.'s consider themselves brothers-in-law to all the other P. E. O.'s all over the country.

Local P. E. O.'s have subscribed more than $12 per member to the fund for the entertainment of the nearly 400 delegates who are in attendance at the convention. Most of them kept little banks in which they dropped a penny each day. The chapters, too, oused many unique schemes in order to raise the fund.

I DEARLY LOVE MY TURNIP GROVE.

I am a city garden fan. I love to dig and toil, and do the best a mortal can to till the fruitful soil. I love to clip the artichokes from sturdy cabbage vines and gather beets from which my folks may nake the choicest wines. I look about with smiling eyes whene'er I take a walk, and see the squash and pumpkin pies that grow on every stalk. Another thing I dearly love, and do with keenest zest, is rambling through my turnip grove, with some admiring guest. I love to climb an onion tree and gather luscious fruit. Beyond all else it pleases me to take a gun and shoot potato bugs that eat my beans and white-pine blister-moths that make attacks upon my greens, like vicious Huns or Goths. When first I started out to work this garden stunt of mine the neighbors used to scoff and smirk and laugh at my design. But now the joke's the other way, for since these scoffers see how I have dodged the rainy day they laugh no more at me. They see the store of stuff I've canned, the store of stuff I've dried, and wish that they had also planned to be so well supplied. They know that I'll not have to feed on grocer's pork and beans. They know that no food-gambler's greed can strain my meager means. They know I'll feel no winter's pang—that I'll be living well when they are wrestling with the gang that makes the H. C. L.

Complete detailed instructions for preparing vegetables and fruits for winter needs are given in the Home Canning Manual, the Home Drying Manual and the Home Storage Manual issued by the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, 210-220 Maryland Building, Washington, D. Progressive women know that magazine and newspaper advertising is a free school for the education of shoppers; that it is paid for by the merchants, and delivered to their homes by publishers that they may study them without an ounce of wasted effort. Whoever fails to take advantage of this course of study is allowing Advice to Lovetorn By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Father and Daughter

Dear Mi. Fairfax: I am 18, have been working for two years, and am making good. I asked my father if I might have a few crilers this winter, and if I could go out once in a while with young men I have missed all the goo! times this summer, as all the girls I grew up with have friends now, and go out with them, and when they invite me, I siways make a third, so I refuse the invitation. My fother third, so I refuse the invitation. My father told me that I did not need to go out with young men until I was ready to get married. I told him that his attitude was married. I told him that his attitude was absurd, and that I needed a little recreation wit people of my own age. He has turned toward the farm where out-of-told me before that if I ever bring or invite all the people of any kind I make hosts of friends, but when it comes to going on excursions of any kind, I can't go along and I am feeling heartbroken. If my father finds o that any particular girl friend of mine is going out with young men, I have to give that girl up.

give that girl up.

Nearly every evening at home an argument is started and when I quarrel with my father I just feel miserable because I know he loves me and is solicitious of my welfare, but I can't see any harm in going ou, with a young man for a little pleasure occasionally. My mother is dead. give that girl up.

Of course good times are a thing on which you'h is likely to lay too much emphasis. But equally age is likely to forget the refectly good adage that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy and Jil' an equally dull girl." Undoubtedly potatoes, or asparagus, or corn or your father wan's to protect you. Cream soups may be made from vegetable pulp, using one tablespoonful of cooked peas, or potatoes, or asparagus. Add to the pulp one-half cupful sweet milk. Mix one-half teaspoonful flour with the butter and salt, add to the above mixture, and boil several minutes. Strain if necessary and serve hot.

Corn or tomatoes may be used in the same manner, using two tablespoonfuls of the strained vegetables, one-half pint water, two-thirds pint of milk. When tomatoes are used add a small pinch of baking soda before adding the other ingredients. pleasures. I think a better way for him

A Lack of Fine Feeling .

Dear Miss Fairfax: Is it proper for a young man who has been giving atten-tion to a girl for a year to be attentive to a friend to whom she introduced him?

This is not a question of propriety, but one of consideration and fine feeling. A man who really loves one girl is unlikely to want to make love to another and surely would not wish to humiliate his sweetheart by demonstrating the charm another girl had for him. He is either fickle or has a rather brutal desire to hurt the girl who loves him and to glory in showing his power.

Won't Turn Silks Yellow

Don't think that each time a silk blouse is laundered, it must turn yellower and yellower!

Lux will launder it perfectly-it will launder the daintiest, filmiest materials - chiffon cloth! Georgette crêpe! crêpe de Chine! and keep them as white as when new.

Why Silks Turn Yellow

Authorities on silk say that the action of Alkali on silk makes it acquire a yellow color. They also say that the fiber itself is affected by Alkali. When the Alkali is combined with hot water, and the fabric rubbed, the fiber is ruined.

Lux will keep any silk blouse white, and without rubbing! Lux has absolutely no free Alkali; cleaness wonderfully with lukewarm water, and without rubbing. So thoroughly is Lux dissolved, that not a flake of the soap remains in the garment to discolor it, but every particle of it is quickly rinsed out. Lux will not harm anything that pure water alone will not in increase. will not injure.

For silk always use Lux and lukewarm water. Never rub and always rinse in luke-warm water. When nearly dry stretch into original shape and press.
