

Furs Are Not Merely Skins, But Wraps with Individuality and Style

When one tries to think of a word to describe the new furs which have blossomed out this fall the only word we can command is "sumptuous." This may be a queer word to apply to furs, but with the warm, golden brown sables; the lovely, blue black fox; the soft, gray chinchillas, and the smooth sealskins that confront the passerby in the shop windows and on the streets this adjective just seems to suit.

The marked characteristic of the season's furs are their extreme length. The slender figure is especially well adapted to the long scarfs which reach to the knee and can be wrapped around the figure in such a graceful way. The stout woman, however, is not forgotten, for the smart little neckpieces shown in so many of the shops are especially adapted to the full figure.

The fur capes also command our attention, as they are particularly beautiful. A cape of sealskin slides into little sleeves in the rear and is belted into the waist in the front, forming a semi-coat. Another stunning model in sealskin is finished with spacious pockets of squirrel, so that milady needs no muff to protect her hands from the biting winds. The Kolmsky and sable capes have the long stole ends in front, which are worn thrown over one shoulder.

In fact, to attain the maximum of smartness one must be enveloped in one's furs. As the season progresses one will have difficulty in recognizing even our most intimate friends, for there will probably be nothing but their eyes visible.

Daughters of Nebraska In New York Will Work For Red Cross and Army

Daughters of Nebraska in New York, a society organized last year, held its first meeting this season at the home of the new president, Mrs. Frank L. Ferguson, in Brooklyn last week. Mrs. Ferguson was formerly Margaret Maxwell, daughter of Judge Maxwell of Fremont. Mrs. Ferguson has offered the use of her spacious sunroom on the roof of her home for a club room the coming year.

The club will spend the time knitting and sewing for the Red Cross. It is the wish of the club to completely outfit the boys on board the Nebraska with knitted garments, provided a way can be arranged to get the supplies to them. In addition to the knitting the members are doing their share in making hospital supplies under the direction of the Red Cross.

During the afternoon reminiscences were given of the first meeting of the club a year and a half ago. One related it was interesting in that it concerned the bringing together of three former Brownell Hall students who had not been together since they were in college—the three were Mrs. Edward Lee (May Dundy of Omaha), Mrs. H. H. Wheeler (Grace Mason of Lincoln) and Mrs. E. L. Ferguson (Margaret Maxwell of Fremont). Mrs. Wheeler was spending the winter in New York at the time the club was organized and is a charter member.

At the November meeting the program will be presented by Mrs. John H. Pardee (formerly of Omaha). Mrs. Pardee recently returned from a prolonged stay in the Philippine islands and brought back with her many interesting views, which she will use to illustrate her talk.

War Has Turned Woman Mind in a Serious Vein And Parties Are Benefits

War sounded the knell of the formal luncheon, and large bridge parties seem to be things of the past. The most informal style of entertaining is now the rule. The only large affairs which are to be found on the social calendar are those given for the benefit of the Red Cross or the war relief fund. Two bridge parties of this sort will be given this week.

On Thursday afternoon a benefit bridge and 5 o'clock tea will be given at the home of Mrs. John S. Brady under the auspices of the Monday club. This little club, which is composed of the young society matrons, has been meeting together every week for the purpose of making "body binders." The proceeds of the affair will be used to fit out Christmas boxes for the soldiers in the trenches. The women do not plan to send necessities, but the little trifles that the soldiers consider luxuries and enjoy so much.

The Turner Park Red Cross unit will give an afternoon and evening bridge and bazaar on Friday at the Fontenelle.

Mrs. F. J. Bette will have charge of the card parties, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Midland, Mrs. E. A. Doran and Mrs. Frank Conroy. The bazaar will have several committees in charge of the fancy work. Mrs. C. A. Woodland, assisted by Mrs. C. P. Richardson, Mrs. Charles Knox and Mrs. A. L. Nicholson, will preside over the home bakery booth, where a variety of war breads will be on sale, together with other home-cooked edibles. Mrs. A. E. Griffin will conduct a package grocery booth and Miss Jessie Northrup a 10-cent counter.

The reception committee includes Mrs. Herman Newman, Mrs. O. C. Smith, Mrs. H. O. Dummett, Mrs. W. A. Struggins, Mrs. W. E. Taylor and Mrs. Thomas Coleman.

Richard Burton Will Lecture on "Poetry and Literature of War"

Richard Burton, professor of literature in the University of Michigan, will be the next lecturer of the Fine Arts' society course. Dr. Burton, who is a leading authority on literature and the drama, will speak on "Poetry and Literature of the Great War," Saturday, November 10 at 3 o'clock in the Fontenelle ballroom.

Mrs. Ward Burgess and her exhibition committee will probably bring two art collections to Omaha next month, one of them at least. The exhibits for which arrangements are being completed are a one-man exhibit of the works of Jonas Lie, Norwegian-American painter and if not this one, a collection of 30 paintings by foremost American and European artists. The paintings will be shown here for a week or ten days.

The exhibition committee will bring other art collection to Omaha later in the season.
