Brings Elopement To Abrupt Halt

Elopement of a young couple from Pender, Neb., came to an abrupt halt vesterday when the Omaha police interfered by pinching the bridegroom. Herbert Mason, 19 years old, and Miss Myrtle Nisonger, 23 years old, both of Pender, wished to wed. Young Mason communicated this desire to father, which, he admits, was an error of judgment, as father instantly put his foot down.

Young Mason and the apple of his eye, however, refused to be denied and planned an elopement to Omaha. Mason's father got wind of it and wired Omaha police to stop it. The embryo bridegroom fooled father by stopping at Frement long enough to have the knot tied. The couple, safely married as young Mason thought continued to Omaha, Omaha detectives lurked about the Omaha depots until a late hour Monday night, but no bridal couple aphad been cluded and that the young couple were at the Sanford hotel. So they promptly captured young Mason and have lodged him in the city jail to await the arrival of the objecting parent this afternoon.

FOOD PLEDGE DRIVE GETS ADDED IMPETUS Farmer Is Fined

Demand for More Cards and Many 100 Per Cent Districts Signed Up, Are Tuesday's Features.

Demands for more pledge cards and reports of 100 per cent districts signed up featured the second day's pledge card drive throughout the state. With Gurdon W. Wattles, food administrator, out in the state and appealing for Nebraskans to align themselves with the food administration, added impetus was given the campaign.

"One hundred per cent signed up; not a refusal," was the flash from Sidney, Neb., by W. J. Braha: county chairman. "The end of the week will see practically 100 per cent signed in Jefferson county," was the report sent in by Cliff Crooks, state merchants' representative from Fairbury. More than one-half the families of Jefferson have also been signed up, says Crooks, and the campaign is well

Visit Every House.

Dawson county demanded 1,000 more pledge cards, while Madison county telephoned for an additional 1,200. "Norfolk is all O. K. and will not miss a house," wired P. H. Davis. Cedar county, through Chairman W. S. Weston, advises that Miss Schermine, county superintendent of schools, will have signed cards for 98 per cent of the families in that county.

Furnas county is making a record. Lancaster county and Lincoln are well under way, though a trifle late in starting. The junior high school students will make a house to house canvass of the city. The churches are organized and with the co-operation of the Lincoln Commercial club are going for a 100 per cent registration there. Lancaster county has called peared. This morning, however, the for more supplies. "Simply swamped minions of the law discovered they by demands for kitchen cards," writes the chairman.

Speaks for Unions.

The clean up campaign goes merrily on in Omaha. Although the school children have turned in more than 25,000 cards, the precinct workers are meeting with excellent suc-cess. T. P. Reynolds, president of the state and city labor unions, has taken out cards and says every union man in Omaha will be signed up Manager Williams of the Basket stores has instructed his force to let no housekeeper get away. Although the campaign calls for the return of signed cards through county chairmen, signed cards are pouring into the central office in the Bea building. Nearly 2,000 cards came in that the campaign is meeting with general favor throughout the state.

For Shooting Birds Imported by State

Adolph Kroeger, who lives about seven miles southeast of Carroll, Hall county, was found guilty of killing a Chinese ring-neck pheasant and was assessed a fine of $15 and costs. These birds are a part of the state flock which was put out in different parts of the state two years ago for the purpose of increasing the number. In some parts of the state they have increased very rapidly. Kroeger put up the defense that he thought the birds were prairie chickens.

James Kirby, Donald Kirby, Richard Hall and Oscar Rad of Fairbury were fined different amounts running from $6.75 to $11.55 for hunting without a license. They were arrested by Deputy Heintzelman.

John Olinghouse was fined $10 and costs for trapping muskrats out of season. William Beecht and Walter Geachart of Falls City were arrested by Deputy Moore for trapping muskrats and received fines of $9.80 each.
