British Army Headquarters in section northwest to the Bapaume-France, Wednesday, Nov. 21.-The Cambrai road. present battle more than any other in the western theater, has taken on This town is a mass of ruins, partly the savor of fighting in other wars on account of shell fire and partly when armies struggled in the open and dugouts were left intact.

Of people's commissaries of the allcavalry made thrilling charges against enemy guns. Many military critics Masnieres was a great stroke of the have long contended that cavalry was a thing of the past, but the mounted and caval which formed and caval which formed men have refuted this claim.

Field Marshal Haig has clung to his horse troops throughout the weary months of trench fighting. He believed that some day he would have a chance to use them and his judgment has been vindicated.

True Strategy.

Field Marshal Haig's blow against the Cambrai front represents true He has hammered at the enemy in Flanders until they were worn out completely. He had driven them back as far as the mud would permit and had compelled them to call on every ounce of strength they had to maintain themselves. Then he suddenly sprung his surprise attack in an unexpected quarter.

The Hindenburg lines on the Cambrai front were the strongest the Germans had laid out in the west. The enemy considered them impregnable. Not only were they strongly fortified but they were protected by a very deep belt of barbed wire, which it was thought that only a protracted bombardment by great concentration bombardment by great concentration of guns would cut sufficiently to allow the infantry to go through.

Tanks Clear the Way.

British tanks had never before been called upon for such extensive work, but they did in a few hours what the artillery would have required days to accomplish. The Hindenburg line was pierced absolutely on a wide front and to a greater depth than

Saturday there participated on the English side, in addition to a large number of small cruisers and destroyers, according to reliable observations wire entanglements a rod in width, where not one vestige was left standing, and by following the tracks of the tanks one could see where they had trundled across the trenches as though they were merely scratches in the ground instead of wide, deep

No Tank Knocked Out.

The tanks, of course, went through No Man's land under the full observation of the German artillery, and while the gun fire was weak, some fire was directed on the tanks as they advanced. It was interesting to fol-low the trail of the tanks and to see where shells had struck all about, apparently without doing any damage, for in this whole section the correspondent did not e one tank which had been knocked out.

The condition of the German trenches showed plainly that the occupants had abandoned them in a hurry. All sorts of equipments and personal belongings strewed the Artillery Fire Weak.

Since the beginning of the attack the gun fire had been extremely weak. No Man's land showed comparatively few shell craters today, and this morning the British guns were doing virtually all the firing along most of the front involved. This is a striking contrast to the Floriers region, which has been an inferno of fire for weeks.

The Germans have attempted very few counter attacks thus far, and all of them have been smashed. The latest thrust reported was made last night near Demicourt, and this was dealt with promptly.

Germans Retreat.

The Germans, who at the first at tack retreated or surrendered in dismay, were fighting desperately today to regain a holdeon their rear positions. A particularly hard hand-tohand engagement occurred this morning at elesquieres, when the infan-try, accompanied by tanks, stormed this place and drove the Germans

The fighting about Flesquieres began last night, but it was not until way. The Thor sailed from San Francisco November 1, carrying no about 8 o'clock today that the British made an organized assault on the town. The tanks went ahead and were engaged immediately by seven beavy German guns, which began to fire at them point blank at short range. It was a critical moment, for while the tanks will withstand heavy fire they cannot be expected to stand up long under big shells hurled from guns only a short distance away.

British Storm Batteries.

The British infantry which swarmed through behind the tanks saw the predicament of their iron friends and by the transport Rose. The men lost deliberately charged the enemy arwere drowned when the destroyer partly submerged immediately after with rifle and hand grenades. All the guns were captured and their she was struck.

Both vessels were running without crews were killed.

A similar incident occurred at Premy Chappelle, northwest of Marcoing, where three guns were stormed | nel. and their crews annihilated. Some of the most spectacular work of this nature fell to the cavalry. The mounted troops got into Marcoing Verona, Mo., Nov. 22.—George Wilkes, 64 years old, a well-to-do and Masnieres last night and in the latter town engaged in sanguinary Wilkes, 64 years old, a well-to-do "You need not hesitate to use Ories battle with German infantry. Brotherhood Heads Lay Plan Before President at Conference Called By Him to Discuss Problems.

Washington, Nov. 22 .- Heads of the four railroad brotherhoods came here stuck to their guns, today at President Wilson's request to discuss with him their proposed new demands for higher wages. The president was prepared to take up the problem with a free hand, so far as been formally notified that the roads will abide by any steps he sees fit to

An entirely new proposal which, it is said, the brotherhoods plan to make Militants Well Treated is that rail transportation during the war with respect to relations of the carriers and employes be dealt with through the formation of a new federal commission to have complete jurisdiction and power over the companies and workmen. They plan, it is stated, to ask the president to ap-point such a commission with plenary powers.

Opposed to Mediaton Board. Opposition to intervention by the and sanitary conditions are excellent. and conciliation, of which Judge William L. Chambers is chairman, is unin the proposal for a new commission. The brotherhood heads are said to be unalterably against any plan which would give the present board any power with relaton to wage demands. They want a new and distinct commission similar to that now in control for the war of England's rail lines.

The brotherhood chiefs also are expected to urge their claims for higher wages, suggesting that the increase come either with the carriers themselves or in war bonuses from the government along the line of the British bonus system.

From the railroads President Wilson has the letter of Fairfax Harrison, chairman of the American Railway association's executive committee, commiting the roads unreservedly to the principle of arbitration and placing their interests in the president's hands. The brotherhood heads to meet the president are:

W. G. Lee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, A. P. Garretson of the Order of Railway Conductors and W. S. Carter of the Brotherhood of Loomotive Firemen and Enginemen. Any announcement regarding the conference, Mr. Lee said, must come from the president. Refusing to dis-cuss the possibility of a strike or the brotherhoods' attitude, he said: "We are here at the president's request, to receive and answer any proposition he may have to make,"

Orkin Bros.' "Removal Sale" Puts New Aspect to Apparel Trade of Omaha and Nebraska

$100,000 Stock Melts Away Because of Eager Purchasing By Those Who Seek to Lower the Cost of

A woman is, after all; far keener than a man.

Advertise a sale of men's garments, put forth all earnestness in the desire to sell, offer real incentive, and still you will find only a slight percentage of men who take advantage of the price lowerings.

But advertise a "Sale" of women's attire, put a logical "reason" back of it, offer extreme values, and you certainly will get a crowd. But bear in mind that the prices must really be reasonable or even lower than reasonable, and the merits and styles of the merchandise must be right beyond question, else the "Sale" will react upon you and the women will say things to hurt your trade.

Orkin Brothers, however, Nebraska's largest, best known and busiest women's outfitters, have to offer a "Sale" that is earnest and honest from the very ground up. They term it the "Removal Sale" because it is a "Removal Sale." They say they must rid themselves of every dollar's worth of present attire stocks because they really must rid themselves of the stocks. Fancy a firm like Orkin Brothers entering one of the finest designed and handsomest apparel establishments in the land with any old stock. The idea is absurd, is it not?

So you see, Madame, this is a sale with a "straight" motive. Or-kins are going to have an absolutely new store over in the Wolf-Hiller-Conant Hotel Building at Sixteenth and Harney Streets. In the language of the Orkins them-selves: "Nothing will be carried into the new store from the old store but the firm name." If anything else were to be carried over it wouldn't be an entirely new store, would it, now?

In the meantime Orkin Brothers are offering every dollar's worth of Women's garments at "Removal Sale" prices. That doesn't mean a reduced price or a leader here and there, but it means a thorough, all inclusive, decided, start-to-finish cleaver-like cut on everything and anything in the house.

Come in and choose a tailored suit, a dream of loveliness in a dress, a stunning evening wrap, a treasure of a waist, a useful skirt or a warm fur, and buy the object of your choice at a price quite out of joint with the times. In place of having to submit to "higher," always "higher" prices you will once again smile the old smile, for "Removal Sale" prices take one back to the untroubled times "before deavoring by the intensification of the hunger blockade against neutral countries to force out to sea neutral cargo space which is keeping in port, and to press it into their service. As hostile shipping and hostile sailing in hostile interests are being supplemented by violent measures, the German government in its struggle against Great Britain's violence, which trampled under foot all rights, especially those of smaller nations, finds itself obliged to extend the field of operation of its submarines." Channel to Greece Closed.

It adds that the extension principally consists of the "establishment of a barred zone around the Azores, which had become in economic and military respects important hostile bases of Atlantic navigation, and in closing a channel to Greece hitherto left open in the Mediterranean, as it had been utilized by the Venizelos government, not so much for the sopply of the Greek population with foodstuffs as for the transport of arms and ammunition."
