Walks From Norfolk to Omaha to Enlist in Army Gerry Luttrell, 18 years old, walked all the way from Norfolk, Neb., to Omaha, arriving here early Thursday morning, after a two-day hike, to join Uncle Sam's navy. Luttrell, whose home is at Dallas,

S. D., was robbed at Norfolk, and, unaware that there is a recruiting office at Norfolk, headed eastward for the long journey. He is an orphan. His nearest relative is an aunt, living in Colorado.

Luttrell was cold and hungry when recruiting officers found him. He had not tasted food for 24 hours. He passed the physical examination with flying colors, the only defect discovered being a case of second degree flat-footedness, which army men say may have been caused by his strenuous drive across the prairies.
