

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

Conducted by Ella Fleishman

Red Cross

Red Cross work rooms in the Masonic temple and the public shop resumed activities for next year's war work this morning. Attendance in the surgical dressings department was limited. Mrs. Walter Silver, chairman, reports, by this also having been the opening day for school and many mothers were kept from reporting on time by the necessity of seeing children off to school.

Until September 15, the time will be used completing the August quota. The September quota has not yet been received.

Mrs. J. J. McMullen took up her duties as chairman of auxiliary supplies and credentials, the former post of Mrs. O. C. Redick.

At the public shop, Mrs. Lee Huff and Mrs. Frank Ellick were busy receiving materials and starting work on cotton pads and gauze wipes. These chairmen announce the following women who will be in charge each day in the week: Monday, Mrs. Leroy Pegau, Mrs. E. H. Bruening and Mrs. Miller; Tuesday, Mrs. W. E. Bolin, Mrs. C. H. Boyles, Mrs. T. J. O'Brien; Wednesday, Mrs. Charles Knorr, Mrs. G. M. Allen, Mrs. R. E. Wilcox; Thursday, Mrs. P. W. Mikesell, Mrs. A. King, Mrs. O. L. Hart and Mrs. Bolin; Friday, Mrs. H. W. Anderson, Mrs. F. J. Newton and Mrs. T. M. Orr.

Two evenings a week will be given over to night work. Mrs. H. E. Cotton, Mrs. Bolin and the Misses Ethel and Minnie Eldridge will have charge Tuesday evening, and Mrs. T. M. Orr with a corps of assistants, Thursday evening.

When the knitting department moves Thursday from its present quarters in the court house to the Keeline building, Seventeenth and Harney streets, the court house quarters will be given over to executive offices of the Omaha chapter. Mrs. Frank W. Carmichael, chairman of auxiliaries, will then move her office from the Masonic temple to the court house, where she will be found each day. There are 238 Red Cross auxiliaries at work.

Scottish Rite Women's club auxiliary for hospital garments will not be able to begin work Wednesday on account of a delayed shipment of materials. Notice will be given in The Bee of the date when work will be resumed.

Old French peasants driven by the German invader from their peaceful homes in the north of France are finding kindness and pleasant work in the colony which the American Red Cross has established at Baubonne. Here they have been encouraged to go back to their accustomed occupation, tilling the soil, and are assured of safety.

Lincoln School Community auxiliary in surgical dressings, Mrs. Horkey, chairman, and Miss Olive Huntley, supervisor, will resume meetings at the Lincoln school, Eleventh and Center streets, Monday evening, September 9, at 7 o'clock.

Miss Ruth Lewis, 1301 Baldwin street, Harlan, Ia., Saturday enrolled for overseas Red Cross motor service.

For Salvation Army Drive.
Mrs. Eva Wallace chairman of the woman's committee for the Salvation Army war fund drive announces the appointment of Mrs. Harry Tukey as assistant chairman. Mrs. Martin H. Harris will have charge of the publicity.

Women already named on Mrs. Wallace's executive committee are Miss Frances Wessells, Mesdames W. H. Wheeler, E. T. Swobe, J. E. Davidson, S. S. Caldwell, T. F. Kennedy, E. S. Westbrook, Louis Clarke, Barton Millard, N. P. Feil, T. L. Davis, Willard Hoford, Harry Jordan, C. L. Burdick, A. V. Shottwell, William Nicholson, Will Burns and Will Redick. The list is not yet complete.

Personals

Canning Winners at State Fair

Canning club winners are off for Lincoln and the big fair this week. All last week the clubs displayed 375 jars of goodies put up for winter, in the vacant room across from the court house on Seventeenth street. There were 32 varieties of fruits and vegetables represented.

The winning canning team, consisting of Mary Haney of Mason school, Emma Koenig of Lake and Gladys Pottinger of Central, with Lydia Reed of Farnam school, as alternate, have gone to the fair under the chaperonage of Miss Julius Rosenzweig. Mrs. Bell is chaperoning the winning team of negro girls, composed of Inez Battles, Margaret Bell and Josephine Ratsleff. Esther Casper of St. Mary's school won the prize for having put up the most jars of any girl, and Nick Schultz put up most among the boys. There were 102 prizes given for the best, second and third jars of various fruits and vegetables. All prizes were thirt stamps.

Some of the prize cans were auctioned off Saturday night, the children receiving the cost of the fruit and vegetables and the profits to the Red Cross.

SOCIETY

For Bride-Elect

Miss Elizabeth Reed will be honored at one or more social affairs every day preceding her wedding, for the social calendar chronicles luncheons and dinners every afternoon and evening for this charming bride-to-be. Monday afternoon Miss Gertrude Metz was hostess at a delightful bridge and Miss Regina Connell entertained at a beautifully appointed luncheon at the Blackstone today for Miss Reed. A mound of bride's roses formed the centerpiece for the luncheon table and marked the places of the wedding party and two other intimate friends of the honor guest, including Miss Mary Megeath, Miss Josephine Congdon, Miss Peggy Reed, Miss Gertrude Metz, Miss Erna Reed and Miss Helen Eastman. Miss Esther Wilhelm will entertain at dinner at the Blackstone this evening in Miss Reed's honor, when covers will be laid for 14 guests. Miss Josephine Congdon will be hostess at a luncheon Wednesday, and Thursday Mrs. Isaac Carpenter will entertain at luncheon for the bride-to-be.

Boat Club Closes

With the formal closing of the Colwell Bluffs Boat Club at Lake Manawa we begin to realize that the summer season is indeed on the wane. Owing to pressing duties at home, many Omahans have found it very convenient to spend restful weekends at the club this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Victor White are among the members who have spent much time at the club this year, and Mr. and Mrs. Gould Dietz are to be found in the colony.

Labor Day marked the closing of the club and the links were dotted with golfers from early morning until dusk. The sparkling waters of the lake did not attract as in the August days, for the breeze had a bit of a fall twang and the white caps looked chilly for bathing.

For Visiting Girls

Miss Peggy Reed will entertain at luncheon at the Country club Friday in honor of Miss Esther Jerald of New Haven, and Miss Elizabeth Gilman of Boston, who will spend the week with the Misses Margaret and Mary Wattles.

Swimming Party

Open New Clubrooms

Formal opening of new clubrooms, 301-5 Lyric building and installation of officers for the Young Men and Young Women's Hebrew associations will take place this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Picnic Supply

Mr. Helen Dumas entertained nine guests at a picnic Saturday in honor of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Cook, who has returned from several weeks spent in Portland and San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Kalleck Rose have returned from Alexandria, Minn., where they spent several weeks.

"Dreamland Adventures"

By DADDY—"Jerry the Clown"

A Complete New Adventure Each Week, Beginning Monday and Ending Saturday

CHAPTER III. In the Dressing Tent.

"Peggy and the Birds are outside the circus grounds when three animals, belonging to the act of Jerry the Clown, escape. The clown and Little Countess Alice, his daughter, are in despair until Billy Belgium and Peggy volunteer to supply their places with Balky Sam, Johnny Bull and Billy Goat."

HEE-HAW! Hee-haw! Save us from those terrible Eagles," brayed Circus Mike, bucking frantically in vain efforts to get rid of the Birds on his back.

Peggy laughed at his thinking that the Swallows, Woodpeckers and King Birds were Eagles, but nevertheless she called off their attack.

"That was quick work," she said to General Swallow. "Please keep on guard, so if these animals try to escape again you can drive them back." "Don't you worry about that," brayed Circus Mike, trying to reach his sore spots with his tongue. "We'll not venture into that awful woods again while these voracious Eagles are at large."

"Voracious Eagles," laughed Peggy. "Why, they were only tiny Birds." She pointed to the Swallows, Woodpeckers and King Birds, who were grinning down at the animals.

"Nonsense," brayed Circus Mike. "They were Eagles or Vultures or Ostriches or maybe Auk. I could take off the heads of these whippersnappers in one bite." He made a snatch at General Swallow, who dodged quickly.

"Oh, could you?" screamed General Swallow. He darted at Circus Mike's back and dug in with his beak.

"Ouch! Oh! Quit!" brayed Circus Mike, thrashing out with his feet whirling around and reaching out with his wide-open jaws. But General Swallow had been wise enough to choose a spot where Circus Mike could not reach him, and there he kept boring in and boring in, until Circus Mike yelled for mercy.

"Stop!" he brayed. "I believe you."

"Hee-haw! Hee-haw! Hee-haw!" laughed Balky Sam. "Licked by a Swallow! Hee-haw! Hee-haw!"

"Well, if it isn't that tough old army mule brother of mine," brayed Circus Mike, surprised at seeing Balky Same there. "I can lick you, anyway." With that he went at Balky Same with bared teeth, and it looked to Peggy as though there was going to be a mad battle between the brothers, for Balky Sam met his attack just as savagely. But in a moment she saw that for all their pretended fierceness they were only fooling, giving expression in this rough way to their affection for each other—just like two puppies in growling play.

"bugle call sounding from the show grounds brought both mules to sudden attention.

"It's the get-ready call for our act," brayed Circus Mike.

"Our act," corrected Balky Sam. "We're going in your places."

"Are you a strike-breaker?" brayed Circus Mike indignantly.

"No; there aren't going to be any strikes in wartime," replied Balky Sam. "We're just going to show you how your act ought to be put on. Then we'll settle your trouble peacefully."

"Hee-haw! You'll show us! Hee-haw! That's funny! I'd like to see you do it," taunted Circus Mike, but Peggy thought there was a touch of jealousy in his voice.

"Then come on and see us," Peggy suggested. "You can have an afternoon's vacation and see the show like regular folks."

"It will not be much of a show with Balky Sam spoiling my part," brayed Circus Mike.

"I'll take Princess Peggy to where Countess Alice keeps her dresses," offered Nanny Goat.

"And I'll take Billy Belgium to Jerry's trunk, where he can get his clown outfit," volunteered Biston Bull.

"Then away we go," brayed Balky Sam, offering his back to Peggy, who quickly hopped on. Just as quickly Billy Belgium vaulted upon the back of Circus Mike, and with the Goats, the dogs and the Birds following they rushed down the hill and among the circus tents.

To avoid discovery of the change, the animals entered the tent separately, so the circus folks would think Balky Sam was Circus Mike, and Johnny Bull was Boston Bull, and that Billy Goat was Nanny Goat. Thus no one paid any attention to them.

Peggy slipped off Balky Sam's back, and Nanny led her into the women's dressing tent. Peggy found herself in a large canvas room, across which ran rows of trunks placed on the ground. Above these were ropes on which hung costumes and draperies. Around each trunk was arranged a tiny dressing room. In these dressing rooms were dozens of girls and women preparing for the afternoon show. They were having the merriest kind of a time laughing and talking. Many of them were talking English, but Peggy also heard snatches of strange foreign languages.

"Nanny Goat led the way to a trunk in the corner, and there Peggy found spread out a dainty, fluffy costume.

"It's one of Countess Alice's dresses. Hurry into it," bleated Nanny Goat.

Pulling the curtains, Peggy speedily transformed herself from an ordinary little girl into a "wondrous star of the arena."

(Tomorrow will be told how Peggy gets lost and then gets found in a most surprising way.)

Orkin Back from Buying

Trip; Says Outlook is Good

Joseph Orkin has just returned from an extensive buying trip to New York, and reports the outlook for the season to be very favorable.

"The demand seems to be for the very finest merchandise," says Mr. Orkin, "and styles have never been so beautiful. American designers have done wonderfully well since the war. In fact in many respects they have displayed better taste than the foreign artists. However, there are many models imported from Paris."

Mrs. Frank Selby will spend the winter in California.

Manawa Park Closes One of Most Successful Seasons

Manawa park closed one of the most successful seasons of its history Monday night. "War conditions were noticeable, but did not have the unfavorable effect that might have been feared," said Manager Carl L. Palm. Numerous picnic parties visited the resort yesterday; a few of the bravest went bathing, many went boating and dancing was popular all day.

Omaha Woman Writes Book. "Passing of Prudence Priscilla," from the pen of Mrs. Etta Parker Haight is just off the press. Omaha friends of Mrs. Haight have received the publishers' advance announcements.

The Margin of Safety

between the actual property value and the amount of the direct first mortgage, securing the six per cent first mortgage bonds which we offer, is generous, the property value being, in most instances, double that of the mortgage against it.

These bonds offer an absolutely safe investment with an excellent return—6%, payable semi-annually. They may be had in denominations from $50 to $1,000, maturing in from 2 to 10 years.

In the case of the longer term bonds, the already ample margin of safety is materially increased as the shorter term bonds mature and are retired, for no part of the mortgage is released until every bond of the issue has been paid in full.

Our booklet, "How To Choose A Safe Investment," gives full particulars concerning the merits of these bonds, as well as much general investment information. A copy will gladly be sent you free upon request.
