MRS. W. E. NORTH DOESN'T NEED SYMPATHY NOW

Friends Congratulate Her Upon Her Recovery—Gains Thirty Pounds.

"My friends who used to sympathize with me on account of my ill health, are now congratulating me on my wonderful restoration," said Mrs. W. E. North, residing at 5204 College avenue, Kansas City, Mo., in relating her remarkable experience with Tanlac, recently. Mrs. North's high Christian character and kindly disposition have won for her a host of devoted friends. "The past two years," she continued, "has been just one unbroken period of suffering for me and I had become very near being a nervous wreck. My appetite was very poor and my stomach was so upset, that I couldn't eat anything but what would sour and make me miserable for hours. After meals I would bloat up with gas and have such awful spells of palpitation and fluttering of the heart that I would become alarmed fearing my breath would stop. I was extremely nervous—just a little noise would startle me—and I became so weak that I could not do my housework. I could not sleep, lost weight continually, and as nothing helped me I became so despondent that almost gave up hope of getting well. "My husband had been reading about Tanlac and was so anxious for me to try it that he brought me a bottle and it's the truth, I had not taken it half up before I noticed a difference in my condition. My appetite got better and I wasn't so nervous. I have taken five bottles now and have actually gained thirty pounds. That within itself proves how great Tanlac is, but that's the least of what it has done for me. Why, I am now able to eat just anything I want and never suffer a particle from it. My nerves have quieted down so that I can sleep like a child and I have not enjoyed such good health in years. I have the greatest faith in Tanlac and my wonderful restoration justifies it. I have recommended it to many of my friends, who are now taking it, and I am glad to make this statement to be used in letting others know about it."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha at all Sherman & McConnell Drug Company's stores, Harvard Pharmacy and West End Pharmacy. Also Forest and Meany Drug Company in South Omaha and the leading druggist in each city and town throughout the state of Nebraska.—Adv.

CROWDS ATTEND SIXTH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

Cook Fight Features Opening Night—Tank of Mallard Ducks Attracts Attention—Rabbit Display Also.

Large crowds were attracted to the sixth annual exhibit of the Omaha Poultry association at the Auditorium last night. There are 1,500 fowls, of 25 varieties, as well as several varieties of ducks, pigeons and pheasants on exhibition. A large tank just inside the entrance of the Auditorium filled with handsome mallard ducks attracted much attention. A coop of ring-neck pheasants, exhibited by a member of the Boys' and Girls' Poultry club of Omaha drew considerable comment. A feature of the evening at the Auditorium was a "humane" fight between two game cocks. The birds were equipped with "boxing gloves" and "muzzles" of rubber, to prevent serious wounds during the battle, but the fight was lively, nevertheless. There will be another bout tonight.

Announce Prizes Wednesday.—Much admiration was showered on Sarah, the property of John W. Welch. Sarah's habitat is Cherry Croft farm and she has 247 eggs laid during the past year, to her credit.

Experts were judging chickens exhibited in competition yesterday afternoon and prize winners of some classes will be announced Thursday. The display is one of the largest and best ever held in the country, experts say. Rhode Island Reds are in a slight majority over the other entries.

The Nebraska Rabbit Breeders' association also has an exhibit of 250 rabbits, including New Zealand, Flemish Giants, Rufus Reds and fancy breeds. In a far corner in the Auditorium stage is an exhibit of tiny, pink-eyed guinea pigs.

Honey Display Also.—The Douglas County Honey Producers' association has a varied display of honey products in the Auditorium.

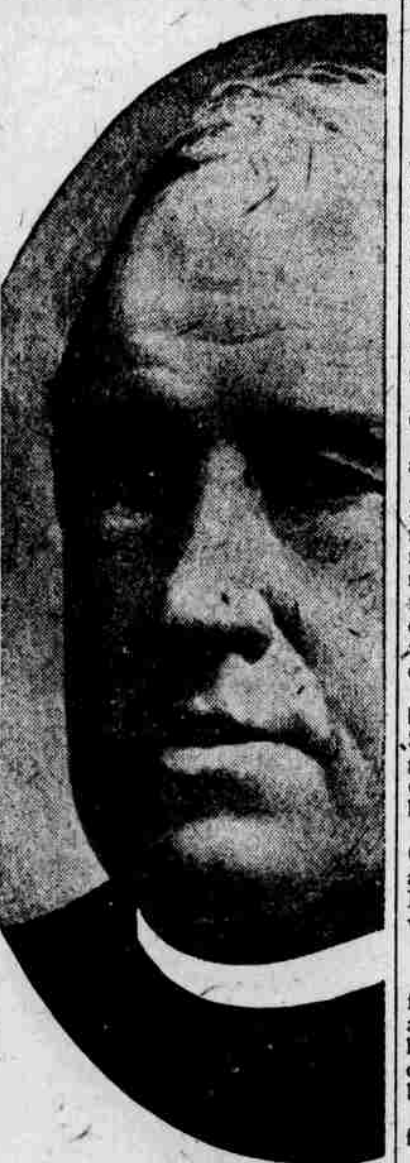

The United States Department of Poultry Husbandry is taking an active part in the exhibition, and has furnished two carloads of equipment for handling the poultry. The show is also sponsored by the bureau of publicity of the Chamber of Commerce. The largest number of poultry entries of any show yet held, were on exhibition yesterday morning when the show opened.

Experts on poultry husbandry from Washington, D. C., will lecture each evening.

No admission is charged to either the rabbit or poultry shows.

Officials Probe False Report of Wilson's Death
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 24.—State and city officials today were investigating the hoax perpetrated here last night by an unidentified man who telephoned to the City Auditorium, where Vice President Marshall was speaking, that President Wilson was dead and that Washington was calling Mr. Marshall on the long-distance telephone.

My HEART and My HUSBAND Revelations of a Wife

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Is Madge's Guess Correct. "These," as little Mrs. Durkee took off their wrappings and laid them on the bed beside me, revealed themselves as dozens of roses with the exquisite varied colorings of the hybrid teas. I caught my breath in amazed admiration at the beauty and the profusion of the blossoms.

"I thought they would make you sit up," I carolled to my neighbor. "But I forgot, poor dear, you can't sit up. Do you know, though, I'd change places with you to have some of these happen to me."

"It's very evident that you never had a fractured rib," Lillian drawled, and I surmised that she did not like either the offering of the flowers from Major Grantland or little Mrs. Durkee's pessifage concerning it.

"Did you?" The little woman gave her a sly, mischievous glance which amused me. "No," Lillian responded promptly, "but I've seen them in action enough that I know that a few flowers wouldn't be compensation for it."

"A few flowers?" Mrs. Durkee shrilled. "Goodness the man must have bought the florist out! Aren't they the most exquisite things, Madge?"

"They are beautiful, indeed," I answered, but the profusion of the blossoms troubled me. I did not want Major Grantland to buy out a florist for me, no matter what the truth of my little neighbor's assertion that he felt himself responsible for my accident.

"Wherever will you put them?" she asked, looking around the room perplexedly. "Katie will bring you whatever you need in the way of vases or bowls," I replied. "Won't you arrange them for me?"

Mr. Durkee's Request. Now in our little circle, Lillian, with her highly trained color sense, is the final authority on the arrangement of any decoration. But I guessed that this particular task was one not to Lillian's liking. On the other hand, I was sure that little Mrs. Durkee, who possessed a distinct knack in this direction, was wild to delve into the mass of fragrant bloom.

Her fluffiness, however, looked dubiously at Lillian. "Doesn't Mrs. Underwood?" she asked. "No, Mrs. Underwood doesn't," Lillian flashed back with almost a touch of pettiness in her manner. "My patient is keeping me pretty busy, you see," she added more graciously, and you always do flowers so exquisitely and love the task so much that it would be a crime to keep you from them."

"You've said it!" my little neighbor asserted slangily. "Now Katie," she turned briskly to the waiting girl, and in another moment was completely lost to everything else but her directions.

"Now remember Katie, those big Chinese things in the living room, and that big copper bowl," Mrs. Durkee called after the girl as she went out of the door.

Is Katie Careless? "Just a minute, Katie," Lillian followed the girl out of the door and I heard a low colloquy in the hall, no word of which I could catch. Then Lillian came back and bent over me again. "Is there anything else I can do for you?" she asked tenderly. "Where is Dicky?" I asked. I was ashamed that behind the inquiry was vaguely piqued thought that again Major Grantland had made Dicky appear neglectful by his own promptness.

City to Keep Its Hands Off the Skip-Stop System of Street Cars

The city council committee of the whole yesterday decided to keep its hands off of the skip-stop system in use by the street railway company.

R. A. Leussler, vice president of the company, explained to the city commissioners that this is a matter which is under the jurisdiction of the State Railway Commission. He also stated that the skip-stop means a reduction of $80,000 per year in operating expense of the system, adding that this saving is all put back into service.

The city council recently made an unsuccessful attempt to induce members of the State Railway Commission to come to Omaha to meet with the city council on matters affecting the street railway company. The state commission replied that the council should first present these matters in writing and then the commission would arrange its own hearings.

One of The Bee Readers Sizes Up the Contempt Case

"If the people of Omaha had any idea that Victor Rosewater and The Bee would ever be called upon to pay the $2,000 fines levied by a district court judge the money would be raised by a self-starting voluntary subscription," said Dr. W. L. Capell, Omaha physician and father of Judge Frank Capell of the superior and police court of Council Bluffs, who was visiting his son there Sunday. That's the way a big majority of the people of Omaha feel toward The Bee and Mr. Rosewater. I am confident the $2,000 would be raised in less than two hours by any reputable man who would start out with such a purpose. The Bee has the warm support of the best people of Omaha.

An expert from the United States has been employed by the government to improve the quality of native tobacco.

made me open my eyes again quickly. "Oh, Katie!" she was saying. "You have left downstairs 'the thing I most wanted, that exquisite tal Chinese thing with the blue and white coloring."

"I no can find anywhere," Katie declared stolidly, and I distinctly saw her glance meaningly at Lillian when Mrs. Durkee had returned to her task. I put things together, jumped at a conclusion. Lillian must have instructed Katie to secrete that vase, and to keep it away from Mrs. Durkee.
