An example of Mrs. Abbott's idea for presenting music at the club programs is found in the first meeting,

September 28, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Russell.

The play for the day, under the direction of Mrs. W. O. Perry, will be "Two Faces," an allegory of life.

A garden forms the setting. The play is light and fantastic. Music for the occasion, suiting the spirit of the play, will be a presentation of

"Dancing as a Synthetic Art," with a gypsy dance solo by Miss Pauline Capps, Mrs. Abbott will accompany

Tea Carts and Maternal Instinct

By GABBY DETAYLS.

OW a teacart is really a very handy bit of furniture thinks Gabby and makes a room seem so cozy and intimate in the late afternoon. So did a certain group of sorority girls until-but

The girls purchased a teacart for their house just to lend a homey touch and soon they were besieged with pleas for tea-hour invitations. Even the young men in nearby fra-ternity houses clamored for the privilege of sipping tea at its side in order to be cozily tete-a-tete with a fair coed. Such a thing was, however, too good to last.

One afternoon the perpetual buga-boo, a flat-heeled, round-toed, bobbed-haired, shirtwaisted, bespectacled earnest senior student of psychology announced to one of the flappers, "Nothing but the maternal instinct after all. You propel that not because you want to drink tea, but because you want to push a baby carriage.

It was enough. The cart is in the Miss Overstreet has completed a year at the Recreational Training school of Chicago, living at Northwestern university settlement during that time. Since her graduation from York High school she has been a student and graduate of St. Marys school, Knoxville, Ill., and has attended both the University of Nebraska and the University of Southern California. While at the latter she did International institute work in connection with her sociology courses.

Miss Overstreet is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and has many friends in Omana.

Mrs. Ula G. Echols returned from New York early this month after a year at Pratt institute in Brooklyn, and is re-established at the Omaha Public library, where she is in charge of the children's department.

Among the excellent lectures Mrs. Echols heard in connection with her library study in the east was one by Dorothy Canfield Fisher, well-known author, and formerly a Nebraska girl.

"Now this is a good book" is a suggestion which children resent, according to Mrs. Echols, who has many splendid plans for the Omaha department. "At one of the largest American colleges, the dean of student affairs said to me recently, 'We don't owe it to the student to teach him dancing," yet the dancing in that school was abominable. My view is that the educator does owe it to society to keep the student's morals on a par with his intellect as far as possible. If they let misguided youth think that dancing is merely hugging to music they have failed in their opportunities. "Omaha dancing, though clean, is poor and stiff and awkward. They just do the one thing here, they walk to everything." Mr. Ryan recommends that the welfare department offer municipal training in the "It is much easier to dance well than poorly, if the thought is directed in the right channel of instruction. There is no difference in dancing from Maine to California, save for combinations that may differ lo-cally. The principle of dancing is always the same. "Much has been said about modern dancing and many claim it the cause for deplorable conditions. It makes no difference what the dance, modern or olden, it's what they make it.' Mr. Ryan claims that in dancing man finds a universal source of pleasure. Motion is universal, he says, and man is endowed with a capacity to appreciate its beauty and rhythm. Dancing is the art of expressing sentiments of music in mo-
