

Co-Operation To Save Farmer, Says McKelvie

Entry Into Politics Marks Demise of Farm Organizations, Asserts Governor in Speech at Springfield, Mo.

Springfield, Mo., Aug. 31.—(Special.)—Co-operation and politics are the salvation of the American farmer, Gov. S. R. McKelvie of Nebraska declared here today before a meeting of the Missouri Farm clubs.

"For 50 years farmers, realizing the need of organization to protect their interests, have banded together in various organizations and the demise of nearly all of these farm organizations was marked by their entry into politics," Governor McKelvie said.

"There is not a state in the union that has not some record of progress that has been made by producers in the application of the principles of co-operation. Local conditions have exercised a large influence upon co-operation, and the more localized the interest involved, the more prompt was the success of the undertaking."

Organizations Multiply.
"Marketing organization of fruit and vegetable growers has been followed by similar organizations of grain and live stock producers, until now the number of local organizations in the United States amounts well up into the thousands."

Then the governor dwelt on one present day tendency to go to the legislature for relief for everything.

"There has been a great deal of talk about the remedies that can come to farming through legislative channels, and I think we all realize that much good does come from this source, but this legislation should be founded upon the theory that the farmer can work out his problems if he is given an opportunity, and not upon the theory that farming needs to be subsidized or controlled or owned by any agencies of the state."

Fallacy of Price Fixing.
"The government fixing and controlling of prices during the war surely indicated the fallacy of such a program and we should keep just as far away from that kind of action as possible."

"On the other hand, the laws that have been placed upon the statute books that protect the farming business against unjust encroachments from other quarters have been highly beneficial."

Summing up the farming situation, as he sees it, Governor McKelvie said:

"On the whole, I think that the outlook for the farming business is most encouraging. Low prices have been offset in the corn belt by increased yields. Obligations are being met, the farmer is buying the things that he actually needs and ultimately bank deposits will gradually increase. The very great inflation in land values and the encumbrances that were assumed by a large number of farmers can be liquidated only in a gradual way under the low rate of prices that now obtain, but when this is done, a safe foundation will have again been established."

Fremont Methodist Church Brings $395 at Auction
Fremont, Neb., Aug. 31.—(Special.)—The old Methodist church building which is to be replaced by a new structure, was sold under the hammer for $395. The furnace and stoves in the church brought $72.50. Bidders were few and bidding was cautious. Hardenbrook and Wallace of Fremont are new owners of the condemned church building. Wrecking operations will begin at once.

AT THE THEATERS

ANOTHER treat for the kiddies has been arranged for by Manager Edoux of the Empress, in the form of a show to be presented every day starting tomorrow. Rhoda Royal's Elephants are to give one of the best performances of animal training that has been presented here. A feature of the show is to be the offering of Rinehart and Duff, whose vocal attainments and effective repertoire promise a pleasant variation. John and Ella Burk are to show their versatility in singing, dancing and juggling. Edouard to present a monologue that includes short stories and a line of comedy songs.

This kind of weather isn't quite warm enough for Herbert Williams. He wears a fur coat and straw hat. At least, he bundles up in this fashion during his performance at the Orpheum, where he and Miss Wolfus are presenting their extraordinarily laughable skit, "Soiling the Whites." Another headline this week is presented by Tompest and Sunshine. There are six pleasing scenes in their vocal and dancing performance, and the act is very amusingly staged. Their song numbers are as well liked as the dancing. One of the funniest features of the John show is the farce, "Mind Your Own Business," as presented by the character comedian, Hugh Herbert. He himself is the author of the play.

Tickets for the opening week of the popular Gaiety's 13th season of musical burlesque go on sale at 10 a. m. at the theater's box office. There have been so many inquiries as to when the season would open that all doubt as to the demand for light, frothy entertainment has been discarded and immense crowds are anticipated for the opening performance of "A Whirl of Gaiety," this week, Saturday. The show is brand new in every respect.

School days fun in its entirety will be the attraction in the big dance palace at Lakeview park tonight. School days favors, prizes and refreshments are scheduled for a big program. Prizes are being offered for the best characters.

PAGING OLD ACQUAINTANCES

Where's the chap who used to say that there would come a time some day When he'd eschew the bubbling brew That held him in its clutches, And, being able to abstain from liquor which benumbed his brain And chilled his soul, he'd gain the goal That only greatness touches?

He's kept a portion of his vow; he isn't drinking any now And yet his mind is not inclined Toward any high endeavor. And our young hero parted, At prohibition rates for booze he simply can't afford to buy Beer, gin or fizz, and yet he is The same old bum as ever!

Where's the man of whom 'twas said that the besotted life he led Obscured his fame and kept the flame Of might genius hidden, The man his friends proclaimed would rise and write his name across the skies In brave array when dawned the day That liquor was forbidden?

For him the liquor ceased to flow on July 1, two years ago, Upon said morn J. Barleycorn And our young hero parted, He is not handicapped a bit because he's jingled, corned or lit, But if his aim is still for fame He'd best be getting started.
