

United States Plans to Enter Wireless Field

Postal Department to Send Out Weather and Market Reports by Wireless Telephone.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Postmaster General Hays announced the embarkation of the government on the development of a stupendous undertaking in the realm of radio telephony.

The project is the dissemination of weather forecasts, market reports, government information and other matters of interest throughout the country, by the radio telephone.

Involved in the undertaking is the big question of the control of radio telegraphy and telephony by the government, to which President Harding soon is to direct the attention of congress as a result of a study of the problem by an inter-departmental board.

Some of the radio companies have asserted exclusive proprietary rights in certain wave lengths of ether employed in transmission, the result of which would be to debar other companies and the government from using such wave lengths. One of the suggestions considered by the inter-departmental board is that the government should assume control of the ether and allocate the radio concerns the various wave lengths employed, of which there are about 150.

R. B. Howell Active.
The system of disseminating government information by radio telephony has been worked out for Mr. Hays by J. C. Edgerton of the Postoffice department, W. A. Wheeler of the Department of Agriculture and R. B. Howell of Omaha, an authority on wireless. Mr. Hays announced that Mr. Howell is sailing for Europe Saturday to conduct an investigation for the government at his own expense, of the operation of radio telephony systems in Berlin and of a "telephone newspaper" in Budapest.

Mr. Howell is republican national committeeman from Nebraska and is reported to be a prospective candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Hitchcock.

With the system planned by Mr. Hays in operation, the farmer who installed the requisite receiving apparatus, now costing about $100, would receive on his farm, the market, live stock, weather and other government information disseminated from Washington at fixed times during the day. It is planned to have the country dotted with transmitting stations having a radius of transmission of 200 miles, from which the business man at his office, the farmer on his farm and the urbanite in his home, would receive the messages. The transmitting stations would receive the information broadcasted by wireless from Washington.

Establish New Bureau.
This radio service, Mr. Hays plans to place under the direction of a new bureau of communications soon to be created in the Postoffice department for the immediate purpose of systematizing government telegraphing. Mr. Hays says that by the use of leased wires and through other economies, the telegraphing bill of the government can be reduced $250,000 a year.

Radio telegraphy for the dissemination of market reports already is being employed by the Postoffice department. At 8 o'clock every night, the air mail radio station in the Postoffice department transmits the agriculture reports on grain, live stock, fruit and vegetables to the air mail radio stations at Cincinnati, St. Louis, Omaha, North Platte, Neb.; Rock Springs, Wyo.; Elko and Reno, Nev. The stations having a radius of 300 miles, broadcast the reports into the ether and they are received by such institutions and individuals as possess the requisite receiving apparatus.

London, Sept. 2.—A Reuter dispatch from Calicut, India, reports that the rebels, who previously had deserted from Paraphangadi, have returned in large numbers and cut the telegraph lines. British troops have been dispatched to restore order. More than 5,000 Moplahs are reported to have taken up a position in trenches around the mosque at Turangadi, while troops have departed to engage them. The rebels
