

Four Autoists Are Victims of Sneak Thieves

Burglars Loot 3 Homes, Take Cigars Worth $1,300 From Cigar Store—Enter Pool Hall.

Mrs. S. J. Barr, 4031 Erskine street, reported to police yesterday that burglars broke into her home and stole $7 in cash and a revolver.

While the family was away, thieves entered the Perry Grim home, 501 William street, through a basement window, and made off with a woman's watch, a ring and a revolver, valued at $100, he reported.

Four tires and two rims were taken from the automobile of J. A. Beale, 4117 Commercial avenue, in front of his home Thursday night.

Cigars Worth $1,300 Stolen.

Anton Homal, 3243 South Twenty-second street, reported that sneak thieves stole the cushion from the rear seat of his car at Ninth and Harney streets.

The Gordon Parker Cigar company, 709 South Sixteenth street, was robbed of $1,300 worth of cigars during the night, officials reported.

A dark colored cravat coat and a safety razor was the lot of thieves who entered the home of W. Ideiowski, 2418 N. street, he reported.

General Store Robbed.

Preston O'Hill, College View, Neb., told police someone stole a suitcase full of clothing from his auto in front of the postoffice. He valued the clothing at $25.

M. J. Stern, 2532 Chicago street, missed a tire, a tube and a rim from his automobile, which he left standing in front of his home.

J. J. Quigley, 4516 South Twenty-seventh street, telephoned the station that between 7 and 10 p. m. burglars gained entrance to his pool hall. Nothing was taken.

The sheriff at Milford, Neb., telephoned Omaha police that the general store there was robbed of a quantity of merchandise Thursday night.

Treaties Reported by Committee to Senate

cal with that of a reservation adopted by the senate in connection with the Versailles treaty and supported by all republican members of the committee at that time, including President Harding.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota and Senator New of Indiana, who enjoy unusually close relations with the administration, vigorously opposed the Johnson reservation. They contended that it would be wrong for the senate to attempt to tie the hands of the administration in carrying out a policy of participation in the reparations question. Senator Kellogg insisted that it behooved the United States to have an official representative on the reparations commission as soon as possible.

The effect of the reservation on the status of the unofficial observers now representing the United States in the reparations and other commissions under the Versailles treaty was discussed. The prevailing opinion in the committee was that these men were purely informal representatives of President Harding and that no act of congress could prevent the president from having his own personal representatives, anywhere he chose.

Lodge Supports Plan.

The vote on the adoption of the Johnson reservation was 8 to 2. In the course of the discussion, Senator Lodge decided to support the reservation instead of his own. Others who voted for it were Borah, Brandegee, Johnson and McCumber, republicans, and Swanson, Shields and Bonner, democrats.

The unexpected acquisition of the three democratic votes made possible the adoption of the reservation. Senators New and Kellogg voted against it.

The committee also adopted a reservation offered by Senator Pomerene, designed to protect the United States against what Senator Pomerene regarded as a "joker" under which, he pointed out, Germany might be able to escape payment of damage claims growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania and other ships carrying American passengers. Senator Pomerene claimed that the language of the treaty should include American nationals as well as the United States government, just as the Knox reservation provided.

When put to a vote, the reservation was adopted through the alliance of "irreconcilables" and democrats. The vote was 6 to 4. Senators Brandegee, Borah, Johnson, Swanson, Shields and Pomerene favored it.

After it had been adopted the committee informed Secretary of State Hughes of its action. He suggested a change in the language of the reservation for the sake of clarity and Senator Pomerene immediately agreed to the modification.

Big Cattle Ranches Are Using Utmost Economy

Ellsworth, Neb., Sept. 23.—(Special.)—The main office of the Richard & Constock company, one of the biggest ranches in western Nebraska, has been moved to Ellsworth. C. C. Jameson, president of the company, recently came from Denver to make this his permanent headquarters. This move is as a result of the rigid economy that prevails throughout the cattle country owing to the extremely low price of cattle.

fell in two panels to the hem of the under-dress. The panels were edged with the sequins and a narrow band of the sequins trimmed the bottom of the under-dress which was cut short.

The bodices was a mass of sequins and crystal beads studded with pearls. It was cut in a Jenny neck and finished without sleeves. Her stockings were of white lace, and her slippers of silver with large rhinestone buckles.

Diamond Necklace Discarded.

The diamond necklace and court train which has been worn by former queens were discarded this year.

The new court train hung from the shoulders. It was made of silver cloth and trimmed at the edge with a double row of sequins made in a conventional design, and cut in a V-shape at the back. The whole was lined with silver-toned satin and held at the shoulders with silver court tassels.

The only jewel was a bar pin of platinum set with sapphires and diamonds, the gift of the board of governors.

The court crown looked particularly beautiful, this year, on the titian-colored tresses of Miss Daugherty.

Princesses Gowned Alike.

The princesses of the court were gowned alike in pink and green satin with over-dresses of self-tone chiffon. The skirts were cut in uneven length and the bodices finished with the Jenny neck. The slippers and stockings matched the gowns and court trains of silver cloth hung from the shoulders. They carried arm-bouquets of pink snapdragons, ragged roses and baby's breath, and wore wreathes of flowers in the hair.

First to enter were Miss Izzetta Smith, in pink, and Miss Ruth Wallace, in green. Then followed the Misses Jeanette Johnson, Winifred Brandt, Katherine Davis, Eleanor Burkley, Catherine Goss, Emily Burke, Frances Patton, Josephine Schurman, Helen Hoagland and Helen Rogers.

Miss Rappe's Manager Takes Witness Stand

with the ladies," he added. Pressed further, he said his memory about Arbuckle was "vague."

Before Semmacker's second departure half an hour later, Fischbach also left the room. Semmacker said Semmacker said he went out with Ira Fortlouis, returning about 4 o'clock, finding the party still drinking, dancing and enjoying phonograph music. Arbuckle was present, according to Semmacker, but he was not sure about Mrs. Delmont and Miss Rappe.

He paid no attention to further movements in the room and soon left to buy cigarettes.

He came back again in about half an hour. The party was still in progress, the witness continued, but about 10 minutes later two of the women went into room 1219 (where Miss Rappe later was found).

My best recollection is that on my return, the door to room 1219 was shut," he testified.

"Arbuckle was in room 1220," Semmacker declared. "My recollection is the women came out from room 1219 in excitement," Semmacker continued.

"They said we should all come in, as Miss Rappe was ill," he said.

Arbuckle Nervous.

Arbuckle began to show signs of nervousness, during this bit of testimony, clasping and unclasping his hands and rubbing his cheeks, but a five-minute recess then declared by the court gave him opportunity to regain his composure.

All the men went back into room 1220, Miss Blake, Mrs. Delmont, Miss Prevost and one other woman remaining, Semmacker said.

"I am dying, I am dying," Miss Rappe exclaimed, according to the witness.

"Arbuckle requested some one to get a physician," Semmacker asserted. "The ladies offered various suggestions for relieving Miss Rappe."

"Someone called a physician and I heard that someone called Manager Boyle of the hotel on the telephone to get a room for her."

Before being removed to room 1227 Miss Rappe became sick at her stomach when given a glass of water, the witness went on. Arbuckle was still in his pajamas, he stated.

He told of gathering up her garments, some of which he said were in a waste basket, torn.

"Mr. Boyle assigned a room for her and I saw some one carry her out."

"Was it a man, woman or child?" persisted Golden and even Arbuckle smiled faintly. Semmacker recollected that it must have been a man or a woman.

The garments he left in room 1227 where Miss Rappe and Mrs. Delmont were, Semmacker testified, and then joined the rest of the party in room 1220.

Subsequently, he said, he had his baggage brought to the St. Francis and the entire party, including Arbuckle, had supper in the comedian's rooms.

The torn garments he put in the pocket of his automobile, he said, for exhibition to Miss Rappe and also to dust off his car.

On reaching his home in Los Angeles two days later, Semmacker added, he put them in his dresser, where they remained until turned over to the Los Angeles police.

At this point the hearing was adjourned for the day.

Trio Arrested at York Are Taken to David City

York, Neb., Sept. 23.—(Special Telegram.)—Lee Smith and two women he said were his wife and sister, were arrested here and taken to David City by Sheriff Ike West who said Smith will be charged with stealing an automobile from J. H. Krauser. York police became suspicious of the trio when they searched town shortly after midnight in a machine without a license plate.

Assailant Was 32

Miss Hanan is 24 years old, while Mrs. Lawes was 32. The younger woman, according to the police, had been married to Jerome Wagner of this city, but a divorce had been granted about three years ago.

Borland, a graduate of Dartmouth college, was questioned for several hours by Assistant District Attorney Wilson and detectives. Although admitting that he liked Miss Hanan very much, he denied that they were engaged.

The police said that the two women had been almost inseparable for four years. They expressed belief, however, that Mrs. Lawes had become so incensed by Miss Hanan's acceptance of social invitations from Borland that her mind had become affected. Miss Gotschalk told the police that Mrs. Lawes had been in love with Borland and had been extremely jealous.

The police announced an examination of Mrs. Lawes' stomach would be made to determine if she had been a drug addict.

In an effort to save Miss Hanan's life a blood transfusion was made. Dr. Harvey Fiest was the donor. Assembled at the hospital were Borland and the girl's mother and brother.

Had Been to Dinner.

Questioned at the hospital by detectives Miss Hanan declined to say what had led up to the shooting, but gave the following description of the affair:

Mr. John Borland, a Dartmouth university graduate, and engaged in the import and export business here; Miss Dorothy Gotschalk, Brooklyn and I had dined at my home last night. At 11 p. m. we arrived in my automobile at Miss Gotschalk's home.

"We remained in Miss Gotschalk's apartments for two hours, during which time we discussed the general topics of the day. Mr. Borland spoke of looking for apartments in Brooklyn, and his business affairs."

Tells of Shooting.

"We had just emerged from the vestibule when I saw Mrs. Lawes step from an arway on the left of the entrance. The next thing I heard was three pistol reports. I dropped to the sidewalk and when I got up saw blood running from my arm."

"I ran for 100 feet and collapsed. I then heard another shot fired. Mr. Borland picked me up and carried me to the steps of a house on Schermerhorn street. A policeman came running up. Mr. Borland asked him to get an ambulance. I was brought up to this hospital and that is all I can remember."

In their endeavor to determine whether Mrs. Lawes was a drug addict the police showed interest in an incident preceding the shooting described by a woman neighbor of Miss Gotschalk's.

This woman, who was looking out of a window, said she saw Mrs. Lawes sit down on a doorstep, raise a cup to her lips and then dash it into the street. Detectives found the

Woman Denies Relation

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—Mrs. M. E. Dittmars, said to be the mother of Mrs. Grace Lawes, denied such relationship when questioned by the representative of an afternoon paper at her home today. She cut short the interview by closing the front door in his face.

Mrs. Dittmars bears the name and lives at the address noted on the farwell letter found in Mrs. Lawes' handbag. She is also the only Mrs. M. E. Dittmars in San Francisco, according to all available directories. The representative of another afternoon paper was told by neighbors Mrs. Dittmars that she had quickly packed her belongings after being notified of the New York tragedy and departed for a secret address.
