

Omahans Would Bring Hotel Men's Convention Here

Delegates to Meeting of Northwestern Association at Des Moines Plan Move for 1922 Affair.

Efforts to bring the next annual convention of the Northwestern Hotel Men's association to Omaha will be made by members of the Omaha Hotel Men's association who will attend this year's convention in Des Moines Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

This move was decided upon at a dinner served to members of the association Thursday night by George Brandeis at the new Brandeis restaurant.

Several Omaha men are on the program at the Des Moines convention. Rome Miller is down for a talk on "The Sample Room—Its Uses and Abuses." Henry B. Payne will talk on "Hotel Leases," while R. D. McFadden, chairman of the Nebraska committee on public information, will read a paper entitled "Wholesome Hotel Publicity."

Members of the Omaha association who plan to attend this year's convention include Harry L. Keen of the Keen and Flatiron hotels; Ernest L. Sweet, Hotel Hamilton; H. L. Harper and C. J. Kreil, Hotel Loyal; Charles Schimmel, Hotel Blackstone; D. B. Young, Hotel Conant; Rome Miller, Hotel Rome; Fred Rothery, Omaha Athletic club; E. C. Eppley, Hotel Fontenelle; John Egan, Hotel Sanford; Fred Ramey and H. P. Payne, Wellington inn; Fred Castle, Hotel Castle; Miss Mills, Hotel Rome; Wilbur Brandt, Orchard-Willhelm company; G. H. Conant, Hotel Conant; R. B. Wallace, R. D. McFadden and I. A. Medlar of the Mid-West Hotel Reporter.

Former Real Estate Man Here Dies in Ohio

Charles R. Glover, 72, former Omaha real estate man, died Thursday night at Canton, O., according to word received by his son here, C. D. Glover, president of the Omaha Real Estate board. Another son is E. L. Glover of the M. A. Disbrow company.

Mr. Glover made his home in Omaha until 11 years ago, when he retired, dividing his time since then between Cuba and New York.

He is survived by his widow in a sanitarium at Asheville, N. C.; by three daughters, Mrs. Allen Rice of Canton, Mrs. Harry Lund of Gendale, Cal., and Miss Mazie Belle Glover, Asheville, N. C.; and by another son, J. F. Glover, of Cincinnati, O.

C. D. Glover left for Canton last night.

Policeman Fired From Force for Beating Boys

Police Commissioner Dunn yesterday dismissed E. A. Heller, patrolman, who is alleged to have beaten three boys on their way home last Sunday night, and to have taken them to the station on the charge of vagrancy.

The boys filed affidavits to the effect that Heller was intoxicated and that he swore at them and knocked two of them down, and emptied his revolver.

A statement from Sergeant Russell, who was at the station at the time of arrest, accompanied the affidavits.

Undertaker Arrested on Stolen Property Charge

Leslie O. Moore, undertaker, Twenty-fourth and Wirt streets, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Trapp and Munch on a charge of receiving stolen property. The detectives allege he bought two stolen tires from Dan Walburn, alias Dan Allen.

Sam Villioni, Sixteenth and Locust streets, was arrested charged with buying shoes from Walburn.

6 Pairs of Shoes, Believed Box Car Loot, Recovered

Six pairs of high topped shoes, thought to have been stolen from box car shipments in the Burlington yards recently, were recovered yesterday with the arrest of Dan Walburn, alias Dan Allen, 2828 North Sixteenth street.

The arrest was made by Detectives Trapp and Munch and Special Officers Reidy and Gustafson of the Burlington road.

Brief City News

To Address Nurses—Dr. A. S. Pinto, city health commissioner, will address the Nebraska State Nurses' association when that body convenes for its annual convention, September 24, at the Hotel Castle. He will talk on "Our Board of Health."

Receives Officer—13 Days—Earl Montgomery, who battled with Officer Peter McGuire at Fourteenth and Farnam streets Thursday afternoon, was sentenced yesterday to 15 days in jail. Several bystanders took the part of Montgomery and not till Sergeant Swigart arrived on the scene was Montgomery subdued.

George A. Keyser Made Aide to U. S. Attorney

George A. Keyser.

George A. Keyser, hero of the late war and until a month ago, United States district attorney in the Virgin Islands, will be assistant to J. C. Kinsler, U. S. attorney here. Kinsler has forwarded his name to the attorney general for immediate appointment.

Keyser is 32, Omaha bred, a Creighton graduate and was admitted to the bar in 1913. Among the first to enlist in the first officers' training camp at Fort Snelling, he was early on the firing line, wounded several times and was decorated for bravery.

On his return from service, he received the Virgin island appointment which he gave up recently on account of his wife's health. She was formerly Miss Marie Bennewitz.

Jack and Jill

It was a gala night with Jack and Jill.

"Do you think my frock looks all right?" asked Jill, anxiously surveying her figure in the tall mirror in the hall.

"You are just a darling," said Jack, with worship in his eyes. She kissed him.

"—ah—I look all right, eh?" he asked.

"Jack, you look so wonderful in evening clothes I am jealous of you. Better not let me catch any strange woman looking at you as if she wanted to eat you up."

They laughed, they were going to be guests of the rich Barnabys, new friends that Jack had acquired in a business way, at first. It was their first, timid debut in high society.

Then, suddenly, Jack stared at Jill's bodice.

"Say, you think that frock is o. k.? I mean, ah, it isn't too low, is it?"

"Low? Oh, you mean too décolleté. No, I don't think so."

"Seems pretty low to me," muttered her husband.

"Why, Jack, you don't think I would wear an immodest frock, do you?"

"Sure not," he hastened to assure her, "only it looks sort of too much on you."

"Why, hon', this is the kind of a frock that young girls wear to the opera. The modiste told me it was a 'misses' model. Thought I ought to have something a little more—"

"Not a little—lower?" cried Jack in genuine alarm.

Jill nodded with a smile.

"Goodness, Jill, leave something to the imagination."

"Jack—that's vulgar."

It was after two o'clock when they returned home. They had enjoyed it wonderfully. Jack's eyes positively glittered when he switched on the lights of their room and Jill allowed the Paisley cloak she had worn to slip from her shoulders.

"Wasn't it great, Jack?" she asked gaily.

"Corking—just corking. Best time I ever had in my life."

Jack lighted a cigarette and inhaled a deep grateful draught of smoke.

"Wonderful gowns, eh?" murmured his wife, surveying herself in the mirror.

"Yep," said Jack shortly. He thoughtfully considered the prettiest little lemon-colored frock of chiffon which adorned Jill's slender girlish figure.

"I think you ought to have another dress, though, for these parties we'll probably be invited to this winter," he said slowly.

"Don't call it a dress, Jack, for heaven's sake. It's a frock or a gown," he insisted.

"What's the matter with this one?" "Oh, that's all right, I suppose, but as long as you are such a good-looker, you ought to wear 'em cut the way the other women do. You certainly have got a better—ah—form than most of 'em, and I want you to look as well as they do. Better get another gown and have it cut—oh, you know."

He avoided Jill's eyes—and she blushed!

"All right, hon'," she said lightly.

New Commanding Officer Assigned to Fort Omaha

Maj. J. D. Reardon of Arcadia, Cal., has been appointed commanding officer of Fort Omaha to succeed Lt. A. C. McKinley, who has been acting commanding officer since the post was abandoned as a balloon training school.

Lieutenant McKinley will remain at the fort in command of the Ninth and the 12th companies transferred nominally to "airship service." The change means that both companies probably will be sent to an army airship station for active training soon, army officers said.

Hospitality

We like to visit a hostess who makes us feel at home.

It is a rare gift—that of hospitality and welcome.

We like to enter a home that is cozy and tasteful and welcoming.

It is an intangible impression, but very real.

May not a great department store, too, extend an equal welcome to its patrons and friends?
