

Employe Says Oil of Juniper Belongs to Him

Head of Company Unaware of Presence, Witness Testifies at Hearing Before Dry Officer.

A quantity of oil of juniper found in the Union Products company building belongs to W. F. Walker, an employe, not to the proprietor, Henry McKinney, the former testified yesterday at the hearing before U. S. Rohrer, federal prohibition enforcement officer, seeking to revoke McKinney's alcohol permit.

"I use it to manufacture a kidney medicine," McKinney didn't even know I had it," said Walker.

That McKinney manufactured almond extract without so specifying on his permit, is one of Rohrer's charges.

George Kleffner, employed in Rohrer's office, was put on the stand to testify to percentages of alcohol sh'nage in the preparation of extracts.

Hearing on charges against the All-American Chemical company will be concluded this morning and the cases of the Standard Laboratories and the U. S. Chemical company will come up for review. That of the A. V. Harmon company was again postponed until Monday.

Dr. B. D. Flaughner of the Tait Dental company denied yesterday at the hearing that he purchased 25 gallons of iodine, as shown on the books of the All-American Chemical company. Rohrer is seeking to connect the iodine sale with that of a like amount of synthetic gin, said to have been sold to a federal agent, the iodine alleged to have taken the place of gin on the records.

Chinaman Says He Hasn't Kissed Girl in 40 Years
Sing Hi, Chinaman, shook his bald head as he sat on the witness stand in District Judge L. B. Day's court yesterday and denied that he had kissed the cheeks of Sylvia Lane, 16, white and pretty.

"I'm not kiss woman in 40 years," said the impassive Sing. Sing was sentenced to jail for 90 days in police court and appealed the case.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

TODAY, YESTERDAY AND FOREVER

We're not so modern as we thought;
We learn, from old romances
That Bolingbroke a court-jester taught
Our very newest dances.
Rough steps did not originate
With any Mamie or Chimmey,
Prince Hal knew how to undulate
And Falstaff did the shimmy.

And even farther back than that—
The people broke all trammels
When old King Cheops was at bat
And tattered like the camels,
Before they built the pyramids
The turtles were the model
On which the smart Egyptian kids
Devised a zippy toddle.

The cave-man, ere he learned to talk
Or even hurl a hammer
Could give the Dinosaur Walk
A wild, entrancing glamor.
And Adam, we believe, was hep,
Before his sad disaster,
To every kind and sort of step
That modern feet can master.

In almost every age a King
Has here and there arisen
And tried to ston this sort of thing
By fine or who or prison.
But neither mandates from the crown
Nor acts of legislature
Can hold a tripping slipper down;
You can't change human nature!

EXCEPTIONS.

The unemployment situation is improving. By fall there will probably be jobs for everybody but ex-service men.

BIG CONSUMERS.

It looks to us as if the Klu Klux Klan was a conspiracy to boost the price of cotton goods.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Perhaps Caesar's confidence in fat men would have been shaken if he had lived in film star days.

"The Man With a Smile"
The man with the smile is the man worth while. To go about with a long face but makes a rough road the rougher.
How many things happen every hour, in a great city or in a great store, to make one laugh and another weep!
Yet, at the end of the day it is the smile and the friendly word that we remember.
To do a day's work cheerfully and well, is a privilege and a responsibility as well.

Rupert Hughes' Amazing Novel of Movie-land "Souls For Sale"

From the very beginning this master novel thrills. It assures one of the absorbing interest this story will create. Get a copy of the October Red Book Magazine and read about the beginning of Remember Steddon's strange career.

Frank—But True

No one but Rupert Hughes could portray so perfectly the soul-raking problems of a village girl who ultimately climbed to the peak of success in movie-land.
For no man knows so well the inner life 'midst California's film studios, as Rupert Hughes.
The temptations that beset Remember Steddon, the queer fantasies of Fate, and the final climax all keep one interested from the very first.
Yet all is handled so delicately and so humanly that one can hardly keep from feeling that the story is a true biography of some famous movie star we all know.

Intimate Adventures

The October issue of The Red Book Magazine contains the first installment, in elaborated synopsis, together with the second installment.
You can begin this fascinating story and follow it through. The September issue sold out quickly. So we advise getting your copy at once of the October issue.
"Souls for Sale" is bound to be one of the most discussed novels of the year. For in addition to being a revelation of life in movie-land, it brings out anew that thousand years' discussion of: Can Good Come Out of Evil—Can Right Emerge from Wrong?
Don't miss this master novel! Begin it at once—so you won't have to wait for it to come out months later in book form.

We are now announcing our Second Monthly Title Contest

This one for October—Watch for November
Last month we offered $5,100 in prizes for the best titles submitted for a story in the September issue of The Red Book Magazine. Thousands of answers have been received from all parts of the country. The prizewinners will be announced in the November issue of The Red Book Magazine. Money will be paid to prizewinners October 1st. Here's another chance for you. We are again offering

$5,100 in Cash Prizes

There is a story in the October issue of The Red Book Magazine called "And That's That." The Editors have never been quite satisfied with this title. Can you think of a better one? For the best 1000 titles submitted, we will pay $5 each. For the best one of them all, we will pay $100.
We'd like to satisfy ourselves on a policy of naming stories. And we are willing to pay our readers for this help. It will take only a few minutes of your time and a test of your imagination.

This Is the Story:

Thornton Moore, fitted by Eulalie, who becomes the rich Mrs. Weston, finds greater love in his own marriage with Eulalie.
But the fascinating Eulalie returns from abroad and out of bravado carries on a flirtation with Thornton which shocks the town. Then begins a terrible battle of wits between two women.
The climax of intrigue comes after a dramatic scene in which Eulalie overhears a part of a conversation between Eulalie and Thornton. Before it can be explained, she becomes desperately ill—his delicious ravings he

So Easy to Earn

Merely submit what you consider a better title by letter or by post card—writing your name and address at the top. Only one title can be submitted by each person. To receive consideration, it must be received in our office by October 20th, 1921. Checks will be mailed November 1st to successful contestants, whose names will be published in the December issue of The Red Book Magazine.
Address all titles to Title Editor 27 B, The Red Book Magazine, 36 S. State Street, Chicago.
