

Death Report First Notice of Diphtheria Case

Student Who Attended Victim
Absolved of Blame by Dean of Medical College.

Phyllis Preston, daughter of Oscar Preston, 847 South Twenty-first street, died yesterday of diphtheria, at her home.

She had been under the care of G. B. Stryker, senior at the University of Nebraska medical college. Health Commissioner A. S. Pinto declared yesterday afternoon the case had not been previously reported as diphtheria. He telephoned Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the medical college, for the facts in the case.

Dr. Cutter absolved Stryker from all blame. "The Preston case was one of the out calls of the college free dispensary to which Stryker was assigned," said Dr. Cutter. "He has been doing this work for several months, and has acquitted himself satisfactorily in every way."

Culture Found Negative.

"He was called Saturday night to the Preston home and found the girl had been sick since Wednesday. He examined her throat, and found she had what appeared to be a case of tonsillitis, but to make sure, he took a culture which he left at Dugan's drug store, Seventeenth and Douglas streets. Sunday morning the health department reported the culture negative. On receiving this report, Stryker did not see the case until Monday morning.

"The girl did not appear to be improving, and he called a hospital staff physician. The child died shortly after the staff physician arrived.

Order Disregarded.

"In addition, Stryker gave orders that the child was to remain in bed. While he was in the house Monday morning, the girl came into the kitchen and asked for something to eat. This, in itself, might have been sufficient to cause death in a diphtheria patient.

"There is a very definite epidemic of diphtheria in Omaha, and while we are in sympathy with the efforts of the health department to bring it under control, it is a shame it has not been controlled before this. It is also true that although the health department was notified of the girl's death at 2 p. m. Monday, no one from the health department visited the house until 9 a. m. the following day.

"Mr. Stryker is absolutely blameless in every way for the girl's death."

There is absolutely no one to blame in this matter," Mr. Preston told Mr. Stryker last night. "I know you did your best."

Wherein Our October Feature Items Offer Greater Value Than Sale Merchandise

A sale is a thing of the day or the hour. However great the value offered, it may possibly come at an inopportune time, and then the opportunity is gone.

Never were greater values offered in any sale, than those values offered through our October Feature Items, for they represent the most desirable seasonable merchandise of standard quality at far below present retail prices. Greater values are not to be found.

But that which makes their value greater even than their low pricing, is the fact that many of these items were bought in quantity—that they are to be found in the various departments as long as they last—they will be here for your selection, when you want them.

Have you asked for our October Feature Items? In whatever department you may be shopping you will find it well worth your while to ask to see the Feature Items of that Department.
