What's What

The sort of sham civility which is put on and off like a cloak is not courtesy at all; indeed, it is nothing but glaring rudeness, accentuated by assumed patches of politeness. We cannot be courteous at one time and discourteous at another time without recognizing the reason for the change. We may be inconsistent in temper, but we cannot afford to have inconsistent manners. The girl in the illustration may imagine that she is merely acting the coquette when—without reason—she rudely ignores one friend, because it suits her at the moment to be especially cordial to a newer acquaintance. Needless to say, her crude action gains for her the esteem of neither, since one of the men will nevermore give her credit for sincerity, and both are conscious of her gross rudeness. The well-bred girl makes no such raw blunders. It is her pleasure and her privilege to make every one feel at ease in her presence.

Carry Lists and Relieve Your Memory

It is a convenient thing to carry with you in your handbag certain measurements that may prove very useful when you are shopping. They may all be condensed on a small card and can surely not be a burden to you.

For instance, at this time of the year when many of the department stores have special sales of table and bed linen it is a good plan to have the dimensions of your beds and dining table. Often you see veritable bargains in bed spreads and sheets but hesitate to buy them because you are not sure that they will fit your beds.

Often you can find odd tablecloths or remnants of table linen that you could make use of if you but knew exactly the size of your table. The dimensions of your rooms are also something that you might carry about with you. A little floor plan of your house giving the important dimensions might be put on the back of the card containing your other list.

It may be that you will find a rug that just suits a certain location, but you are not sure of this without definite knowledge of dimensions. You may see a table, lounge or other piece of furniture, but you hesitate to buy it because you are not sure that it will fit into a given space.

Other lists that are a convenience to carry about with you are the sizes of stockings, gloves, shoes, collars, etc., of various members of your family, and your own, too, if you are one of those persons who find it a bore to have to keep such details in mind.

If You Have Plants. Have a piece of glass cut to fit the window sills on which plants are to be placed. It saves the woodwork better than anything else. A jardiniere holding a plant sometimes mars a polished table and ruins the centerpiece beneath it. A square of glass will prevent this; placed on the centerpiece it neither scratches the table nor hides the beauty of the embroidery, saving both from the damp which forms under all jardiniere.

Lower Rent--Lower Prices

IN August, 1920, the rent of our former storeroom became a serious problem—the increased rent caused me to decide to close out my entire stock of beautiful jewels. After ten months of the sale so much stock remained, exquisite pieces collected from jewel artists of the world, that it became necessary to move them to another location. Pleading indeed is the background of our new shop—rented at a fraction of the other shop rental—a sum so nominal that it permits the selling of rare jewels at prices within the reach of all. A JEWEL STOCK ADEQUATE TO MEET EVERY PRICE LIMITATION OR LATITUDE.

Eatmor Cranberries

Now is the Time to Buy Cranberries for Preserving!

Then you can enjoy the delicious tart flavor of this health-giving fruit every day in the year.

Cranberries are reasonable in price. They are easily and quickly prepared—no peeling—no cores—no waste. Economical!

Try these recipes:

Cranberry Jelly Cook until soft the desired quantity of cranberries with 1 1/2 pints of water for each two quarts of berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag.

Cranberry Sauce Measure the juice and heat it to the boiling point. Add one cup of sugar for every two cups of juice; stir until the sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for five minutes; skim, and pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds.

Cranberry Butter Three pints cranberries, 3/4 cup water, 2 cups sugar. Cook the cranberries and water until the skins of the fruit are broken; then press through a sieve, and cook this pulp until it becomes quite thick; add the sugar and cook for 1/4 hour over a very gentle fire, stirring constantly. When slightly cool turn into jars, and cover closely. This makes a delicious and healthful spread on hot biscuits, bread, buttered toast, or cake.

Strained Cranberry Sauce If a strained sauce is preferred, cook the cranberries and water; then press through the strainer, keeping back the skins; add the sugar and finish the cooking as suggested.

Cook cranberries in porcelain-lined, enameled or aluminum vessels—never in tin.

To be sure of a selection of the choicest, cultivated varieties—ask for EATMOR CRANBERRIES.

A recipe folder, containing many ways to use and preserve cranberries, will be sent free on request.
