

Assassination of Hara Was Deed of Political Fanatic

Insane Youth Plunged Knife Near Heart of Japanese Premier, Who Died Without Uttering a Word.

Tokio, Nov. 5.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Japanese cabinet resigned office after a meeting of the members held this morning. The resignation of the cabinet, which came as a direct result of the assassination of Premier Hara yesterday will not cause any immediate change in the government as the ministry in obedience to imperial injunction, will continue in office until further notice from the throne. There will be no change in policy, either diplomatic or domestic, especially toward the Washington conference on limitation of armaments and far eastern problems, acting Premier Uchida stated.

"The delegates will put forth their best efforts for the sake of world's peace in pursuance of the fundamental policies on armament limitations already laid down in the name of the government," he said.

Viscount Uchida will take up the affairs of the ministry of marine, to which Premier Hara had been giving attention after the departure of Admiral Kato, the head of that ministry, for the Washington conference.

Tokio, Nov. 5.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Japanese ministry, deprived of its head through the assassination of Premier Hara yesterday, went to function today under Viscount Uchida, the foreign minister, to whose designation as acting premier the imperial approval was given at the palace shortly after the tragedy.

Within an hour of the assassination of the premier, the cabinet met in extraordinary session, Viscount Uchida presiding. Immediately upon the conclusion of the cabinet session, Viscount Uchida, accompanied by Minister of the Interior Tokomami, went to the palace and secured the imperial approval of the designation of the viscount as temporary premier, which had been decided upon at the cabinet session.

Political Fanatic

Scant information was available at first regarding the identity of the youth at whose hands Premier Hara fell, but it became known today that the assassin was the son of a former member of the Samurai soldier class constituting the lower nobility under the Japanese feudal system, who had been a man of importance during the restoration period. The son, it appears, was of an erratic nature and is regarded as a political fanatic. He was arrested immediately after the stabbing. Detective Tsunajima, who was escorting Premier Hara was badly cut on the arm and hands in disarming the assassin.

Premier Hara, it develops from details of Friday's tragic events that have come out, never spoke after the first shot of the assassin. The premier arrived at the station where he was to take a train for Kioto 10 minutes before the train was due to leave and the station master invited premier and his party to rest in the station office for a moment. Between this office and the gate through which passengers reach the platform is the station blackboard, and it was behind this blackboard that the assassin was lurking, as the premier emerged from the office and approached the gate.

Darting out from behind his shelter the youth came immediately into contact with his victim and thrust his knife into the premier's breast, close to the heart.

The premier collapsed instantly, falling to the floor without a sound. Friends carried him to a station-master's office and a physician who was a member of the party gave him immediate medical attention.

The premier, however, could not be revived, and died within an hour without regaining consciousness. His wife, who had been summoned directly after the attack, reached the station too late to see him alive.

Body Removed. Shortly afterward the body was removed to his home, around which for blocks bonfires and lanterns lighted the streets, while officials and friends streamed to the residence to offer condolences.

During the evening an emissary from the imperial household brought word to the home that the late premier had been raised to the first grade of the second rank of the imperial court.

It seems generally assumed that the designation of Viscount Uchida as premier was only a temporary expedient in the emergency. In any event there seems little doubt that the cabinet will be reconstructed within a few days.

New Premier

Considerable speculation as to the probable new premier is voiced in today's Tokyo newspapers. The probabilities, according to the newspaper views, appeared to point to Baron Kenjiro Den, governor general of Formosa, as the selection for the premiership.

Meanwhile the elder statesmen are likely to hold a conference shortly to consider the policy to be pursued as a result of the tragedy. The Aashi Shimbum says today, it is known that Marquis Saionji is on his way to Kioto from Kioto, possibly in this connection.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The American embassy in Tokyo in a telegram dated 11 a. m. Saturday and received by the State department today said that the Japanese cabinet planned to meet Saturday and that Baron Uchida would succeed the late Premier Hara, at least temporarily.

The assassination of Premier Hara, the dispatch said, caused nothing approximating disorders or disturbances in the Japanese capital.

Admiral Baron Kato, one of the Japanese delegates to the armament conference, acting in accord with other members of the Hara cabinet, today cabled his resignation as minister of marine to Tokyo. The resignation of the cabinet, it was explained by Japanese here, was wholly a matter of form and without significance.

Wing Walking Just Trick, Asserts Girl Dare-Devil

Elsie Allan.

"Flying's wonderful; it's an art. But wing walking is just a trick." Thus did Miss Elsie Allan of Grand Island sum up her profession at North Omaha field during the Aero congress Friday afternoon.

"I took up wing walking just to see if I could do it," continued Miss Allan. "When I found I could climb out on a wing of the plane, lift myself from the lower wing to the upper one, crawl out on the tail of the ship while the pilot was doing stunts in the air, I was satisfied.

"Doing that's just tricks. I want to quit it. But flying a ship, well, that's different."

Walker on Each Wing. "Oh, look!" Miss Allan interrupted herself by pointing skyward. "That's Pat McCarty doing stunts on the wings while J. Hodgins Smith pilots the ship. Why, it's our good old about down. Oh, a perfect landing!" "Watch Pat. He's going out on the wing now. Mr. Smith has flown

Mrs. Obenchain Unable To Answer Questions Before Grand Jury

Los Angeles, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain got the opportunity she had sought to appear before a grand jury and be heard, but was unable to utilize it because of a physical collapse. The same collapse caused postponement of the case where in she was charged with murder in connection with the death of J. Belmont Kennedy when it came up in court today.

Thursday Mrs. Obenchain wrote to the foreman of the grand jury asking an opportunity to be heard, in case it took any further action regarding her. As a result of the request a summons was sent to the jail for her yesterday.

Mrs. Obenchain collapsed soon after the summons arrived and was weeping when she was taken into the jury room. She proved unable to answer any questions there and soon was excused.

Physicians who examined her told the court she would be unable to

When the United States entered the "Great Struggle" for the preservation of her ideals there was among her citizens a certain Dickran Kalbian, known to many Omahans as an Armenian Rug Connoisseur.

Eager to serve his country and wishing to fight in the Near East, Dickran joined the legion d'orient, but like many other wartime plans, events took him to France, and kept him there until the end of the war, and it was not until 1920 that he reached Constantinople. In this city he found thousands of disbanded soldiers of all nations and tens of thousands of refugees from Russia and Anatolia and Syria. The struggle for a bare subsistence was the common lot of all; high ranking officers of Wrangel's Army rubbed shoulders with Ethiopians in the daily struggle for any job—from dish washing to cleaning shoes, that would provide a meal and shelter—but for Dickran a hopeful prospect loomed.

Did not the American Dollar look like a cart wheel, were not fine Oriental Rugs being offered for a mere song? Certainly they were and Dickran Kalbian became in due course Orchard & Wilhelm's buyer in the Near East.

—and that's why we are able to announce a Sale of Orientals

Omaha Made Goods

The entire output of two Omaha factories is marketed by Orchard & Wilhelm Co.—the one making furniture, especially overstuffed furniture—and the other making mattresses.

If a large number of people have come to rely upon "O. & W. made goods" and to look to O. & W. to set "the quality standard," it is interesting to know why such confidence is reposed and how the efficiency of these two industries is sustained and augmented.

The stock of both the furniture factory and the mattress factory is held for the most part by the factory workers or by the employees in the O. & W. store. Every item in the line, every new pattern is therefore subjected to the severest criticism as soon as it comes on our display floors. This criticism is constructive and advisory and made by people who have been studying mid-west needs for up to 30 years, this, and the fact that there is no "factory-selling expense," is what gives our trade style, dependability and lowest prices.

Orchard & Wilhelm Furniture Factory products are specially featured in Sixteenth street windows and salesfloors this week.

A delightful showing of fine new Overstuffed Living Room Furniture in a variety of rich new tapestries, velours, velvets and mohairs, in plain and combination effects. Made with extra care, under the supervision of experts.
