

Vaudeville Dancer Fights Husband's Suit for Divorce

Actress Says She Worked in Restaurant While Her Mate, Heir to Big Estate in Iowa, Was Idle.

Peter McMartin is a good spender. He admits it. D. Cole McMartin, on the stand in District Judge Sears' court, where he is suing his second wife, pretty Pearl Washburn McMartin, vaudeville dancer, for divorce, he told yesterday of squandering $42,000 in the months which elapsed between the death of his first wife and his marriage to his actress-sweetheart in Chicago, November 1, 1910.

Some of the money he spent where lights were low, and the rest where the lights were much brighter. He admitted having a "good time." This was with her said, and women, and presumably so.

Charges Wife Deserted Him. Twenty-four thousand dollars are of the amount belonged to him personally. The other $18,000, he said, he borrowed from the McMartin estate, in which his interest, it is alleged, runs close to $100,000.

She wept on the stand as she told of the first visit of D. Cole McMartin, a lawyer, and Peter's brother, to their apartment on One Hundred and Tenth street, New York, shortly after their marriage.

Through a bedroom door, she said, she heard Cole tell her husband that "they had looked her up, and found out that she was a girl, and that their mother was nearly prostrated with grief."

"I told them I wasn't a bad girl," she said, her voice trembling. "And then he wanted to settle. He told me he would take care of my family, if I would agree to give up Peter."

Then Peter left her in New York, she testified, while he went to Des Moines in an effort to patch things up. He left her $5, and was gone five days. She had to borrow money from the elevator man, she said, to live on until he got arrested.

She testified that she first met her husband in an automobile in front of her home in Chicago. Eight months later, they were married. The very next day, when they left the train in New York on their honeymoon trip, three detectives arrested her husband. At the jail she was not even permitted to talk to him, and didn't know what it was all about, she testified.

She went to a hotel, where he came for her three days later, and they moved to a cheaper apartment. A few days later they moved again, this time to the apartment on One Hundred and Tenth street.

He went out looking for work, she testified, but failed to find any. It was then he decided to take her home. With money advanced by her people, she decided to return to Chicago and he to Des Moines.

Upbraided by Mother-in-Law. Her voice choked, and she kept again when she told of her first meeting with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary C. McMartin.

Mrs. McMartin, she said, upbraided her for marrying Peter, instead of choosing "some one in her own sphere."

"What right have you to come to this house?" she asked. "But mother," Peter protested, according to his wife, "my wife comes first. If you can't accept her, we'll have to go."

"There's the door," was Mrs. McMartin's answer. Hand-in-hand, the couple left the house, and went to the Kirkwood hotel. A few days later, Mrs. McMartin came to the hotel, and begged them to return. They went to live in the big home, but her mother-in-law would only talk to her when Peter was in the house, Mrs. McMartin testified. The rest of the time, she would lock herself in her room.

Peter's grandfather, C. C. Cole, at that time chief justice of the Iowa supreme court, was the only one in the house who treated her "nice," she said.

Once more she wept when she told how Mrs. McMartin gave her some law books, and asked her to read to the judge, and then ridiculed her when she was unable to pronounce the hard words.

Returns to Her Home. After three weeks she left for her home in Chicago. Peter was to follow, or to send for her as soon as he could make arrangements for a separate home.

Two weeks later he joined her in Chicago, and then followed a period of privation, while Peter looked for work, and Pearl obtained employment as an entertainer in a loop restaurant.

"What did you do with the money?" she was asked. "Why, it went to pay the rent. We lived on it."

Peter would come after her on pay nights, she testified. They moved to a cheaper flat, and pawned their silverware. Finally they went to live with her parents. Then they went back to Des Moines, but later returned to Chicago. Peter was planning to buy a garage, and induced her to sign a quit claim deed to certain property he held, in favor of his mother, the girl testified. But she never saw any of the money which it was supposed to raise.

Denies Charge of Desertion. She denied emphatically that she ever deserted him, and said she was willing to live with him once more, anywhere but in his mother's home.

Shortly after she signed the quit claim deed, she said he returned to Des Moines, and in a few days came a letter in which he told her he was leaving for the west, and that it would be useless for her to write him. In the letter, she testified, he made an unjust accusation against her. She never heard from him afterward, nor received a single penny from him.

"Your husband was always kind to you?" she was asked on cross-examination. "Yes, he always was kind. The only trouble I ever had with him was that he wouldn't work."

Although she wept several times while unfolding the story of her broken romance, Mrs. McMartin underwent a grueling cross-examination with the utmost composure.

Unshaken by Cross-Examination. Not once was her husband's attorney able to shake her story; she parried with ingenious naivete his every effort to attack, and the pinches, a failing memory served her well.

Redirect examination brought out the fact that she knows how to cook; that she makes $40 a week at her dancing when the act is booked, and her expenses consist of $15 a week hotel bills, her meals, and her stockings, which she wears out at the rate of two pairs a week, at $3.25 a pair.

"You follow the stage life because you like it, don't you?" her husband's attorney insisted. "No, I do it because it's the only work I know how to do. I've been at it since I was 7 years old. It's a hard life."

Mrs. McMartin's sister, Dorothy, testified that she met Peter once in a restaurant in Chicago, after he and Pearl were separated, and he admitted his accusation against Pearl was false, and promised to "make it all up to her" at his mother's death, when he would inherit a large fortune.

He asked her if Pearl still cared for him, and she told him she thought so. He also asked for a picture of Pearl, she testified, which she gave him the next night.

Mrs. C. W. Washburn, the girl's mother, also testified. The case will be continued today.

Woman Asks $10,000 of Tram Company for Alleged Hurts. Suit for $10,000 was filed against the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway company in district court yesterday by Linda Woolley, for injuries she alleged to have received when thrown from a car step at Twenty-fifth street and Capitol avenue September 6, 1921. She suffered an injury to her left leg, she says, and internal injuries which necessitated her being taken to a hospital.

Nebraska Woman Had Almost Lost Hope - Had Suffered For Fifteen Years.

"Tanlac not only improved my digestion wonderfully, but it also made me gain surprisingly in weight and strength," said Mrs. Joha. Madsden, Seventh and Avenue K, East Omaha, Neb.

"My trouble was a very stubborn one and Tanlac deserves all the more credit for what it has done for me. I had suffered with stomach trouble, nervousness, and headaches for 15 years and had almost lost hope of ever being well again. I was compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time on account of my run-down condition."

"Tanlac proved to be just what I had been needing and I could feel myself getting new life and strength with every dose. I cannot praise it too highly."

Tanlac can bring health to you as it has to thousands of others. Tanlac is sold in Omaha by the Sherman & McConnell Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere.

Every man, woman and child addicted to pills and cathartics for constipation should know that Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed, will give permanent relief naturally if they will eat it regularly. Pills and cathartics never do more than give temporary relief, and at the same time they aggravate the delicate intestinal pathway and pave the way for grave disorders.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed, is simply nature's food, and made delicious and appetizing by the Kellogg process. Eat it as a very appetizing cereal or sprinkle it on your favorite cereal or on other food.

Your physician will endorse the constant use of bran for constipation. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will give permanent relief to every sufferer from constipation if at least two table-spoonfuls are eaten each day. For chronic cases, eat as much as is necessary.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps and cleanses without discomfort. Its natural mechanical action is wonderful. Thousands of all human ailments would be eliminated and there would be a new and better race of people if bran was universally eaten daily.

Kellogg's Bran can be used in many delightful foods such as bran bread, pancakes (the best you ever ate), macarons, etc. See recipes on each package.

P. S.—Kellogg's Bran will clear up a pimple complexion and free the break from obnoxious intestinal

4 Days Sale Tuesday Wednesday Thursday Friday Two Standard Items Sold for the Price of One, Plus One Cent

The Rexall Store ONE CENT SALE!

2 Standard Items Sold at Price of 1, Plus One Cent

NEXT TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY AND FRIDAY, November 8, 9, 10 and 11, 1921, we shall hold our 8th "One Cent Sale." Such sales have been held in all the principal cities of the United States during the last few years, generally in the Rexall Drug Stores, and have been the sensation of the hour. We could not hold these sales, except by the help of the manufacturer, which in the case of most of the items offered is the United Drug Co. of Boston. This sale should be particularly timely just now when Christmas is approaching, and many of the items offered will make very appropriate gifts. The plan of the One Cent Sale is as follows: You buy one article at the regular price and then obtain another of the same kind for one cent. By its means the manufacturer, anxious for a wider distribution of his products, makes a special concession in price, thus encouraging the retailer to co-operate by holding these sales. Thereby a large volume of merchandise is quickly distributed to the public, of course, without a cent of profit, but with the effect of quickly introducing some meritorious article, perhaps hitherto unknown, or increasing largely the distribution of well-known and standard articles. In a few cases we wish to "close out" an item on which we have over-stock—and we offer, such goods at a positive money loss to ourselves. This is a little more than 50% reduction on nearly every item mentioned. There will be sweeping reductions made on all sorts of standard merchandise which is not mentioned below:

Random Remarks About the 1c Sale

This is our 8th One Cent Sale. Each has been a little larger than the previous one. The first and original 1c Sale was held about eight years ago in a Rexall Drug Store in conservative New England, but it was a success even then, and even there.

This will be preferably a "Cash and Carry" Sale, but at that we can make charges to our old-time customers or to any person who follows that best of thrift rules, "Pay bills promptly each month."

This Sale held in THREE ONLY of our five good Drug Stores, viz.: 16th and Dodge, 16th and Harney, 19th and Farnam.

It takes organization and room to hold a 1c Sale. Buy ONE article at the REGULAR PRICE and then another of the same kind for 1c. Yes, that's the plan.

Colonel Lloyd O. Grimes, representing the United Drug Co. of Boston west of the Missouri river, will be Field Marshal of this Sale.

If the crowd is too thick at either of our 16th street emporiums, go to our 19th and Farnam Street Store, where there will be possibly a little more room and a little less rush.

If you visit one of our Stores during this Sale and find "stock all sold" of item desired, this same article may possibly be found by promptly calling at another of our three stores where sale is being held.

We hope you will save this list and bring it with you to our Sale. It will help materially in your shopping. DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NOW.

No mail orders filled, for we are sure first-hand buyers will wish all the 1c Sale goods we have.
