Author and Speaker Is Advocate of First Person

"I learned one lesson early in my career as a public speaker," declared Agness Greene Foster, who with Mrs. Foster is spending several days at the Fontelle. "A speaker can't be too careful how he addresses his audience as 'you' I taught school in a small town when I was young, and I had a model school. I was asked to talk before a number of Chicago teachers. In my youthful zeal I used the word 'you' more than the word 'I' and those teachers went away saying 'she told us to wash.' It would have been all right if I had talked about my own washing. No one would have cared how often I washed. Now I stick to the first person."

Mrs. Foster was one of the earliest writers of verses for Christmas and gift cards, and figures in "Who's Who" as a magazine and newspaper writer, as well as a lecturer. She was the compiler of the popular "Friendship" in her student days when she won an oratory scholarship for study in Dublin and at the Paris Conservatoire, and later on she studied with Steele McKay, father of Percy McKay, who spoke under the Fine Arts auspices last week.

Mrs. Foster is famous with inner circles in both countries. Very likely he is a journalist—they have a faculty of getting more inside information than anyone else.

China in Need of Doctors, Says Miss Paxson. Medical missionaries are greatly needed in China, according to Miss Ruth Paxson, foreign missionary worker, who spoke before the political and social science department of the Omaha Woman's club Monday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. on "Conditions of Life of Women in China."

Miss Paxson showed three styles of shoes that are worn by the Chinese women. The shoe worn by non-Christian women is only one and one-half inches in length. The wearers of this barbarian type get about by creeping along the cobblestones of the narrow streets, which, by the way, have no sidewalks. Miss Paxson showed photographs of a child whose feet had been amputated owing to gangrene caused from binding the feet.

The second type of shoe, copied from our oxfords, was about four and one-half inches long and shaped like a triangle. It was made of black leather with leather sole and a semicircular heel.

The third type, known as the freedom shoe, was about as long as our American size 2. These are made of brocaded satin with a leather sole.

Miss Paxson has lived in China for 10 years and has traveled extensively throughout the country. She expects to return there next year.

Nowadays the family's place in the community is determined largely by the family home. It is the sure index of family character. It is not at all a matter of size, or wealth, or lavish furnishing. It is dependent on the good taste with which the home is furnished. To glorify your home.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

An Open Question. H. G. S.: Nebraska law forbids the marriage of first cousins. You can find out the other states by writing to their state secretaries. As a rule, the marriage of first cousins is considered inadvisable, as the laws of heredity show that any defects or bad tendencies are twice as likely to be handed down to their children. Nevertheless, there are plenty of cases on record where such marriages have taken place without any unfortunate results.

Conventionalities. My Dear Miss Fairfax: I am coming for a little advice. Give me some advice as to what to do to pass time when a boy visits a girl in the evening. We cannot spend the whole evening in talking, and we usually spend a little time at studies, but our evenings when the lady comes over here are rather dry. We are both about 17 or 18, also high school students. Would you please give me some instructions as to how to introduce a person. If you are going with a boy for the first time along with a group, and when he leaves you he says he is glad he has met you and asks if he may call at your house, what should one say? Should you tell him you are glad that you have met him? Is it proper for a girl or boy to write first? I moved from a small town to a larger one this summer. I have a friend in my former town whom I am very fond of. I don't mean to love or anything like that, but as a good friend. We quarreled a short time after I left and have not kept up our correspondence outside where he may contact you across streets or should you keep to the inside? Many thanks in advance. F. A. L.

If you have a piano or victrola, why not devote part of the time to music. Picture puzzles are always interesting and there are numerous games to play. Books are interesting subjects for conversation. When introducing your boy friend simply say, "Miss Smith, may I present Mr. Jones." It is perfectly proper for you to say you are glad to have met him. If you value the boy's friendship, he wrote yesterday asking me to answer. His letter was friendly, although not as friendly as before. Our quarrel was over a non-sensical little selfish thing. Jealousy was the main cause. Should I answer his letter? Would you suggest a few topics for conversation when meeting a new boy. When walking with a boy who has a broken right arm, is it proper to walk on the ship, of course, you should answer his letter. When a young man is injured his comforts should be considered first, regardless of conversation.
