

Teachers Elect Morton as Head Of Association

Educators Co-Operate With Legion in Language Fight—Convention Closes With Concert.

W. H. Morton, superintendent of schools at Fairbury, Neb., was elected president of the Nebraska State Teachers' association at a meeting of the teachers' delegate assembly in the Auditorium yesterday morning. Mr. Morton served as vice president during the last year. Miss Emma Miller of West Point was elected vice president and John F. Matthews of Grand Island was re-elected treasurer of the association.

The association promised hearty co-operation with the American Legion in the establishment of a universal requirement of English as the only basic language of instruction in all schools.

The association also endorsed the movement for the limitation of armaments and introduced a resolution to that effect.

It was recommended that economy should be practiced in the school affairs, but that necessary reductions in school budgets should be made without decreasing teachers' salaries. A message of recognition was sent to President Wilson, for the service he has rendered in the cause of world peace, and world betterment.

Urges Physical Fitness.

"Teachers themselves must keep themselves physically fit so they can do the work that is assigned to them," was the message of Z. E. Scott, superintendent of schools of Louisville, Ky., to the Nebraska Teachers' association convention yesterday.

"Teachers need freedom from disease and buoyant health to take care of the education and health of our young people," he said.

N. E. Engelhardt of Columbia university, spoke to the pedagogues on "Educational Dividends." He compared the school systems of other countries, especially those denying individual expression, with that of the United States.

Mr. Engelhardt declared that America should build up such an educational system as would forever prevent a recurrence of war.

About 1,200 eight grade pupils opened the morning session with a song program, completely filling the huge pit used for the Gipsy Smith chorus. Several college and university organizations held banquets yesterday noon.

Concert Closing Event.

Doors of the Auditorium were thrown open last night to the public as well as the visiting Nebraska teachers, so that as large a number as possible might hear the voice of Miss Mary Peterson, Metropolitan grand opera star.

The concert, given under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, was the closing event of the 37th annual session of the Nebraska State Teachers' association. Many teachers bade goodbye to Omaha last night, but a goodly number tarried over to sleep today. Walter H. Head, representing the Chamber of Commerce, invited them to return to Omaha for their next convention.

Yesterday afternoon's program of the convention was carried out as scheduled, although crowds entered the Auditorium for the patriotic celebration before the program was completed.

Tells of Opportunity Plan.

Miss Emily Griffith of Denver was the first speaker. Her subject was "The Opportunity School of Denver." She emphasized the good done by the school, through the elasticity of its rules. The school opens at 7:30 a. m., and remains open until 9:30 p. m. Pupils may remain all day or only half an hour, and they may enter the "Opportunity School" even though they never before have been in school, she explained.

"We keep our school close to industry," said Miss Griffith. "To that we owe our success. If there is a need for cobblers we teach that trade, if there is a need for tailors we teach tailoring."

E. A. Steiner of Grinnell, Ia., speaking on "The Elements of Youth in National Life" declared that "history has taught us nothing."

Greed Kills Nations.

"If history taught us the saying that history repeats itself it would be untrue. Nations die of greed, envy and hate. We are as simple and unsophisticated as children. Our country will not die from Ellis Island up; it will die from Fifth avenue down.

The United States will endure while nations of Europe fall and are forgotten, if we give the individual a chance. Not until the economic well-being of the common masses is assured will our nation be safe. We must give the common people a good education and the best possible physical background. Then will come a time when the man is bigger than the gun."

Girl's Testimony Frees Geneva Man

Geneva, Neb., Nov. 11.—(Special Telegram.)—A jury in district court returned a verdict acquitting William Staritz of a robbery charge brought following the recital of Anna Stejskal to Lincoln police that she was with Staritz when he drove to the vicinity of Christian Clausen's home, October 17, 1920; that he went into the home of the aged man with a handkerchief over his face and a flashlight and revolver in hand. After his return to the car they drove to Lincoln to her home.

The second day of the hearing Anna Stejskal repudiated the story and broke down the state's case. Staritz testified that the girl invented the story because he and she had quarreled. Evidence brought by the defense showed Staritz was in Omaha on the date of the crime. Men brought from Omaha to contradict the testimony arrived too late to testify.

Teachers Urged To Keep Selves Physically Fit

Health and Vitality Chief Sources of Power, School Superintendent Tells Nebraska Pedagogues.

Health and vitality combined with buoyancy of spirit are the chief sources of power in the individual, and teachers especially should keep themselves physically fit so they can do the work that is assigned to them, was the message of Z. E. Scott, superintendent of schools of Louisville, Ky., to the Nebraska teachers' convention in the Auditorium Thursday.

Mr. Scott was scheduled to speak on the subject, "Keeping Fit," but changed the title of his discourse to "Sources of Power."

"As one interested in success and the success of others, I often read the Bible," Mr. Scott said. "One of my favorite quotations found therein is 'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my strength.'"

"Life isn't a level plain, but is made up of peaks and valleys. We reach the peaks by steady work and hard climbing.

"We teachers need freedom from disease and buoyant health to take care of the education and health of our young people. The great secret of good teaching is to attune the children to do the work assigned to them, and this we cannot do unless our lives are attuned. Life's diseases are not caused by work, but by worry.

"Capitalize your experience," Mr. Scott advised the teachers. "Be human, not bookish."

Mr. Scott advised the teachers to have a personal hobby, but not a professional one.

School Systems Compared.

Following Mr. Scott, N. E. Engelhardt of Columbia university spoke on "Educational Dividends." He told of the old educational system of military Prussia and cited the dividends it paid through the inevitable ravages of war. He compared the school systems of other countries, especially those denying individual expression, with that of the United States.

"The war brought some of those countries to a realization of the fallacy of school systems that will not fit in with democracy," Mr. Engelhardt said. "Our own system is far from perfect, although we are on the right track. But many of our ex-soldier boys realize now that they did not stay in school long enough, and would willingly go through the whole process of education again. Many of our soldiers were unable to read the letters sent them from home."

Mr. Engelhardt declared that America should build up such an educational system as would prevent forever a recurrence of the past war.

Ulster Cabinet Rejects Plan for Peace in Ireland

Objects to Loss of Representation in Parliament and Sinn Fein Control in Proposed Irish Council.

London, Nov. 11.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Ulster cabinet today rejected the government's plan for a settlement of the Irish question, on the ground that it contained fundamental principles which, under existing conditions, were impossible of attainment. The Ulster ministers, however, are putting forward counter proposals.

A communique issued by the northern Ireland cabinet suggests that the government should consider these counter proposals before the proposal meeting of the British and Ulster cabinets.

The suggestions put forward by the imperial government were received late last night and were considered. The Ulster cabinet is drawing up a detailed reply which it is hoped to forward shortly.

Fundamental Principles.

"As, however, certain fundamental principles are involved in the suggestions which under existing circumstances are impossible of attainment, Sir James Craig (the premier), with the unanimous approval of his colleagues, has informed the prime minister that no useful purpose would be served by holding a formal consultation between his majesty's government and the government of northern Ireland until certain suggestions in the government's proposals are withdrawn.

"The formal reply of the Ulster cabinet will indicate other and more practicable means of securing peace without infringing upon the rights of Ulster."

The Ulster cabinet ministers were summoned here recently by Sir James Craig to consider the government's proposals, and they met this forenoon to discuss the plan for a settlement of the Irish question which was contained in a statement from the British ministry. This, as noted in the communique, was received last night, and was understood to be in the form of certain definite suggestions for a scheme, in which Ulster was asked to join, for an all Ireland parliament.

Ulster's objection to the plan is believed to be that it would deprive her of representation in the imperial parliament, which she regards as her strongest safeguard, and also that it would give the Sinn Fein a majority on the proposed central council for all Ireland.
