Something new is a set of hat, scarf and cuffs to match. One set whether it is black fur or caracul, is of broadtail fabric fashioned with a large circular beaded ornament. The cuffs are made with a flare and resemble a muff when the hands are held together. The scarf is a choker style and appears to be held in place by the ornament. The hat which is small and turns up directly in front, where it is held in place by the ornament, has two narrow ribbons attached to the rear which hang down over the shoulder and are attached to the cuits.

Fall Fashions Follow Charmful Colorings and Designing of Foreign Lands

DARIS has dipped her clever hands into the romance and glamour of other days, in far-oif countries, and has brought trailing bits of gorgeous color and design, whispers of romance, and fragments of sheer beauty back to her salons in the Place Vendome.

From China she brought a certain gorgeous oriental theme that appears again and again like the colorful leit motif of Sumurun—and with exactly the same scarlet and gold impression. On afternoon frocks, evening gowns and even on tailleurs, are used bits of embroidery suggesting Chinese motifs in design and color. Small details on girdles and buttons, straight wide sleeves, fabrics in Chinese colors—all of these are used to weave in the Chinese oriental theme.

The long slender silhouette, with its slim bodice pulled low over the hips in soft folds or with its low waist line accented by a lovely ornamental girdle, is essentially moyen age. The neck line is only another ver-sion of the typical moyen age neck line that traced itself over the white skin of Guinevere and of the tragic little lady who watched, in her mirror, the people going down the ribbon of a road that led to Camelot. The wide sleeves that fall over the hands in soft folds, are those that were worn with the pointed and veiled hennin when ladies swept down stone halls to the accompaniment of bobbed haired page boys who held their floating draperies and made the whole affair a very grand occasion indee d. So many of the draperies that float from the shoulder or the corsage are reversions to the old moven age type—they borrow the same grace and simplicity and the same flowing length of line.
