

Dahlman Defends Police Against Butler's Attack

Mayor Characterizes Criticisms, Directed at Department by Finance Commissioner, as 'Pure Bunk.'

Mayor James C. Dahlman vociferously denounced the attack on the present police administration yesterday. He characterized the criticisms of the department as "bunk."

It was announced by City Commissioner D. B. Butler, in charge of the department of accounts and finance, that next Tuesday morning he would present to the city council an ordinance proposing the abolishment of the position of inspector of police, now held by Andrew Pattullo. He will propose to the council that Inspector Pattullo be transferred to a captaincy to fill the vacancy caused by the recent retirement of Henry P. Haze.

Police Commissioner H. W. Dunn said he agreed with the suggestion that Commissioner Butler might be assigned to the superintendency of the police department. However, Commissioner Butler asserted that he had no inclination to be police commissioner.

Mayor Dahlman stated that "when this administration went into office last May it took over the most corrupt and disorganized police department that Omaha or any other city ever had."

He also stated that he was not aware of any discord in his official family.

Veterans' Bureau Here Is Enlarged

Omaha Becomes Headquarters for Eastern Nebraska and Western Iowa.

L. A. Crandall has come to Omaha to take charge of the government veteran's bureau for eastern Nebraska and 10 counties of western Iowa, headquarters of which have been established in Omaha with offices at 701 Woodmen of the World building. The Lincoln and Omaha offices have been consolidated in the one Omaha office, although Leland Towle has been left at Lincoln to handle matters arising in that area.

The area now approximately 900 ex-service men receiving vocational training in this area, Crandall stated, with 1,700 still eligible.

The local office is prepared to handle claims of ex-service men formerly attended to by the federal board, bureau of war risk insurance and public health service.

Carload of "Quack Ducks," New Toy, Received Here

A full carload of "Quack Ducks," said to be the first full carload of toys ever shipped to one consignee in Omaha, was received yesterday by the Stephens Tire Stores, Inc.

The "Quack Duck" is a new toy, built like a "Kiddie Kar," but shaped like a duck and having rubber tired wheels. It is being introduced in the toy stores of the city. It will be followed by other little vehicles made in the shapes of rabbits, roosters, etc., and all having rubber tired wheels, says H. F. Trumble, local manager of the Stephens stores.

When All the World is Young

Hallowe'en is over—Thanksgiving Day and Christmas—those two great home festivals, are close at hand.

It is the period of all the year when we most consciously appreciate the preciousness of home and of home ties.

Christmas is in the air—the time of holidays and gift-giving—the sleigh bells do not sound so often and so merrily across the snow as in the olden days, but Santa Claus still comes with his sleigh full of toys—and all the world is young.
