Winner of Game To Claim State Gridiron Title

Capital City Squad Sure to Give Neville's Men Tough Battle From Start to Finish.

North Platte, Neb., Nov. 21.—(Special Telegram).—With Lincoln High school resting between North Platte and the state high school football championship honors, Coach Keith Neville of the local aggregation of pigskin warriors resumed practice here this afternoon, preparing his charges for the grueling game scheduled for North Platte field Thanksgiving afternoon, when Lincoln and the locals clash for the state title.

Thursday's game is without a doubt the most important high school contest in the state, for hanging in the balance is the state title. The little town of North Platte is bubbling over with football interest. Regardless of the weather, the largest crowd of grid fans ever assembled together in this section of the state will line the field Turkey day afternoon to witness the Capital City gridsters and Coach Neville's men battle through four periods to determine what team will trot off the field with the state title.

In meeting Lincoln, the North Platte gridsters must not forget that they are bucking up against one of the strongest eleven in the state. The Capital City eleven is a well-balanced team and its backfield is capable of skirting the ends and plunging through the tackles for long gains.

Quarterback Lewis of the Lincoln team is a player North Platte must watch. This dusky gridster is one of the fastest foot ball men in high school circles in the state this season.

Signal practice is on the program for North Platte tomorrow afternoon and Wednesday the gridsters will be given a rest, only "skull" practice being in order.

Lincoln will arrive here Thursday morning and will take a short workout on the field in order to get accustomed to the lay of the ground.

According to the advance sale of tickets, everything indicates a large crowd.

Scottsbluff Will Attend Meet

Representatives From Six Towns Will Consider Formation of Loop Sunday.

Scottsbluff, Nov. 21.—(Special).—Scottsbluff will be represented at the meeting at Sterling, Colo., next Sunday when the formation of a class D league in organized base ball, made up of Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming towns, will be considered.

This city, and Sterling were members last year of outlaw Midwest league, which proved a costly venture to the six towns enrolled. Both Sterling and Scottsbluff prefer the protection of organized base ball, and the lower salary roll of a Class D organization.

The league will be made up of six or eight towns, including, probably, Sterling, Scottsbluff, Cheyenne, Sidney, Brush, Greeley and North Platte.

Missouri Valley Easily Wins Over Fox's All-Stars, 34-0

Outplaying the Fox All-Stars in all departments of the game, "Pip" Cook's Missouri Valley semi-professional team easily trounced the locals Sunday afternoon at Western league park before the largest Sunday crowd of the season, by the score of 34 to 0. At no time during the contest was the Iowans' goal in danger.

The strong Valley line plowed through the local line with ease, while the backfield of the visitors skirted the ends and punctured the line for gain after gain.

Tommy Foran, right end for the Stars, played the best game for the losers, while Jones and Armstrong starred for the Iowans.

Two Hawkeye Players Should Make Mythical All-American Eleven

New York, Nov. 21.—Because of things that happened this fall when western foot ball teams invaded eastern gridirons the east has been compelled to give the west adrege of recognition never conceded in the past, but, although the east has seen Chicago down Princeton, Centre defeat Harvard and Notre Dame crush the Army and Rutgers, the east has not yet seen the best the west affords.

Probably there are three teams of the western conference better than Chicago. Two of the three are at least the equal of Notre Dame and one undoubtedly is superior.

One who has seen all of the strong teams of the middle west and most of the big ones of the east feels quite safe in predicting that the eleven from the University of Iowa, western conference champions, would beat any foot ball team in the country today.

It has been 21 years since Iowa was on top in the west and while its ascension is largely due to the superb coaching of Howard Jones, brother of Tad of Yale, the height never would have been reached without the superlative playing of four members of the team—Capt. Aubrey Devine, Locke, Slater and Belding. And the greatest of these is Devine.

Howard Jones has been quoted as saying that in all his experience he has not known a man as proficient physically and mentally in foot ball as this year's Iowa star.

Aubrey Devine is quarterback of the team. His brother, Glen, is a halfback. While Devine is quarterback, he always is the man farthest back in Iowa's offensive play.

All-American Material. In the Illinois game he never once was up behind the center. From his position, five yards behind the line, he was liable to run with the ball, forward pass or kick. He actually punted well a half dozen times in that game from his place five yards back of the line of scrimmage.

In the opinion of many unbiased experts, Devine is deserving of all-American honors as quarterback this year. Probably his only rivals are Bo McMillan of Centre and Killinger of Pennsylvania State.

But the east has not seen Devine and he may be lost in the shuffle, along with the other three Iowa stars, one of which, Duke Slater, right tackle, stands out far above all linemen of the west.

Locke is Best Full. Locke undoubtedly will win all-american honors for the fullback position among a majority of the experts, the nearest rivals being Thomas of Chicago and Sundt of Wisconsin. Belding, at end, was all-western selection of most of the experts last year and will be so again and compares favorably with the best of the east. The tackles of the west who approach in efficiency are Huffman of Ohio State and McGuire of Chicago.

Because of the peculiar offense of Notre Dame and Chicago there seems to be a belief among eastern experts that the west attains much of its strength in attack through shift plays.

No other teams of the west use the shift to such extent as do Notre Dame and Chicago. Iowa has no more shift formations than has Yale or Princeton, and Wisconsin has practically no shift at all, while Ohio State makes little use of it.

Iowa-Yale Game Next Year. While it has not been officially announced, it is almost certain that Iowa will play Yale next fall. The inside story of the arrangement is that about a year ago Howard Jones and brother, Tad, got together and Howard wanted a game. Tad knew something about Howard's team and declined to take it on this year but agreed to give a game in 1922.

In 1922 the Iowa team will be without the services of both Devine boys, Slater and Belding, only Locke remaining of the stars. The Yale team that beat Princeton and the Harvard that toppled Yale were great machines. But it would have been worth while to see either working against Iowa with the Aubrey Devine passes, dashes and kicks, the Locke plunges, the Slater blocking and charging and the Belding receiving of passes.
