Longer Skirts. Winter modes stress slender lines and longer skirts, says the December "Designer." Fashion has generously taken care of the large figure, for one's proportions are slenderized by the long, graceful panels, soft side draperies and longer hem line that dominates the season's tendencies.

Indian Apple Pudding. Heat a quart of milk in a double boiler with a teaspoon of salt and sprinkle into it half a cup of cornmeal. Cook for half an hour, stirring frequently. Add half a cup of chopped suet, half a cup of molasses, two cups of pared and quarter apples, half a teaspoon of ginger, a teaspoon of grated nutmeg and a pinch of cinnamon. Turn into a deep buttered baking dish, bake slowly for three hours and serve with cream or hard sauce.

Irresistible Display of Watches in Christmas Gift Showing. SUCH beautiful new watches are in the Christmas gift showing at the John Henrickson Jewel Shop, Sixteenth and Capitol. Uniquely shaped are the new cases which hold such standard watch makes as the Hamilton, Elgin, Waltham, Illinois and Howard.

Ten Thousand Christmas Pictures Framed Ready For Delivery. TO quote Mr. Hospe of the A. T. Hospe Art and Music Store, 1513 Douglas. Gift pictures to fill every need. Lovely new book ends of original designing, too, will prove of unusual interest to the holiday shopper—these from $2.50 up.

Sleeveless dresses will undoubtedly prove a popular fall and winter garment. Capes and Wrappy Coats for Holiday Occasions. LAMOND'S Specialty Shop, 17th and Farnam, are showing an advance shipment of wraps for holiday wear; black wool chinchilla satin is the wrap-coat with widely-flared sleeves decorated in oriental crannies of gold threads and Mohawk silk, the rich Mohawk tint carried out in the heavy crepe lining; deep-furred peltries of Siberian squirrel, dyed a dark shade of intriguing charm, fashion the enveloping collar; pan ve-laine is the fabric chosen for one of the new capes, with collar of black fox, the lining of gray crepe, unique in its wide hem trim of black wooden beads, each one hand-tied in heavy black threads. Wraps for every holiday need, moderate in pricing.

The consensus of opinion is to the effect that skirts will be let down only a few inches. Silken Flowers to Add Colorful Note to the Furry Costume of Winter. THE Mode Pleating Company, fourth floor, Paxton block, Sixteenth and Farnam, offers lovely silken blossoms in dainty nosegays to add the desired bit of color to Milady's winter costume. Don't forget that you may order dainty "bankies" in any number here.

Blouses, Hose and Negligees in Holiday Boxings of Gay Colorings. WITH the most pleasingly youthful touches imaginable are the delicately hand-stitched flesh, bisque and white Peter Pan blouses offered at Herberg's Blouse Shop, main floor, 1519 Douglas, for $2.95 and $3.95. Sure of an appreciative reception on Christmas morning are the cheerily beautiful hose in plain and novelty weaving, from $2.95 up. For dress wear lace insets add further loveliness; the silk and wool in suit shades are in both plain and heater mixtures, many of them clocked in embroidered designs. But it is the showing of negligees that fascinates persons feminine for their colorings are so vivid, their textures so luringly silken! Curodours have been chosen for lounging and breakfast coats ranging in price from $3.95 to $9.85. Frivolously fun for each follower the classic Grecian lines are the negligees of crepe de chine, satin and taffeta in a price range of $7.95 to $35. Delightfully holiday in appearance is the first floor of the Herberg Shop—reminding one to "Shop Early For Christmas."

Fall millinery will feature felt and velvet combinations and felt and satin. Hillcrest Dinners Suited to Holiday Tastes. HILLCREST, the popular home cafe of Alfred Jones, 2811 Caldwell, phone Webster 0752, is filling every need of the holiday appetite for luscious delicacies in turkey dinners with "fixings," salads and desserts the particular object, rich dressings to accompany the royal bird and pastries of exceptional deliciousness. Chicken, steak and fish dinners to order if one prefers. A holiday hospitality that quite delights the heart.

Francisco-American Gift Boxes For Every Member of the Family. THE Franco-American Shop, 1025 W. O. W. building, Fourteenth and Farnam, will send upon request an illustrated booklet of the gift boxes for each member of the family. Delightful, indeed, are the dainty gifts in gilded containers, new this year.

Some of the new handles for umbrellas contain complete vanity cases. Just lift the "lid" and behold—powder puff and mirrors. Others boast elegant holders as an attachment, while some carry electric lights. Inexpensive Jewels Fill Gift Need. It is predicted that the very bar-back which besides being uncom-fortable is the cause of many colds, will disappear and the general decollete effect will be greatly modified. The bare arms will be retained. "Tux" Shirts Make a Gift Worth While. THE J. T. McQuillen Shop for Men, 1512 Farnam, is showing smart new "Tux" shirts, ideal for Christmas gift offerings. Exquisite quality silks, finely tailored in tiny pleats; they're priced at $5. In a large selection of styles are dress shirts for every preference at from $2.50 up. Make your Christmas shirt selections early this year.

Color in dresses has returned very decidedly, to the complete exclusion of all black. Beaded Bags for Gift Offerings. Bead bags still retain their popularity, but in many cases their cost is prohibitive for the woman of average income. However, it is possible for the woman who crochets to make a most attractive bead bag for herself, at a saving of at least half, and often more of the cost of the ready-made article.

All that is needed for bags is the silk of any preferred shade, crochet hook and beads. There are imported beads of wonderful colors that come in bunches. Or, one can also purchase the American beads in tiny bottles. Many women have not liked to work with the beads in crocheting because of the need of stringing the beads upon the crochet silk before commencing to work. One advantage of using the imported beads is that they may be used upon the string on which they are purchased. The bead skein (upon which the beads are strung) is tied with a single twist around a piece of ordinary spool silk about half a yard long. The other end of the piece of spool silk is then tied, also with a single twist, around the crochet silk. The beads will slip easily over these single knots, and may be moved along at the will of the worker. The bag of one color is crocheted in brown silk, with bronze beads. For the lower portion of the bag, every other stitch contains a bead.

For the middle portion, under the overhanging double fringe, a difference is made in the stitch by crocheting two stitches between every bead. The bag is silk lined, and a silk cord and tassel made of an entire bunch of beads add the finishing touches. In the bag of contrasting colors, plain dark blue is used for the background. The beads are not worked in with the silk, but loops are left hanging at regular intervals, starting long at the bottom and very gradually shortening toward the top. Silk thread for the bag costs $1.10 a spool, while the beads are 30 cents a bunch.

Garment gloves are being worn with sleeveless dresses, the space between the shoulder and top of the garment ornamented with bracelets.

Color in dresses has returned very decidedly, to the complete exclusion of all black. Beaded Bags for Gift Offerings. Bead bags still retain their popularity, but in many cases their cost is prohibitive for the woman of average income. However, it is possible for the woman who crochets to make a most attractive bead bag for herself, at a saving of at least half, and often more of the cost of the ready-made article.

All that is needed for bags is the silk of any preferred shade, crochet hook and beads. There are imported beads of wonderful colors that come in bunches. Or, one can also purchase the American beads in tiny bottles. Many women have not liked to work with the beads in crocheting because of the need of stringing the beads upon the crochet silk before commencing to work. One advantage of using the imported beads is that they may be used upon the string on which they are purchased. The bead skein (upon which the beads are strung) is tied with a single twist around a piece of ordinary spool silk about half a yard long. The other end of the piece of spool silk is then tied, also with a single twist, around the crochet silk. The beads will slip easily over these single knots, and may be moved along at the will of the worker. The bag of one color is crocheted in brown silk, with bronze beads. For the lower portion of the bag, every other stitch contains a bead.

For the middle portion, under the overhanging double fringe, a difference is made in the stitch by crocheting two stitches between every bead. The bag
