

Omaha Waifs Are Shod in Winter By The Bee Fund

Widowed Mothers, Fighting Discouraging Battle With Poverty, Are Cheered By These Gifts.

A certain measure of poverty is a good thing for the children. But the abject misery in which many waifs live through the caprice of fate endangers their very lives. A pair of shoes for a child is an impossibility in many of these families where widowed mothers fight a discouraging battle with poverty.

Your contribution will bring joy to such a home and protect tender feet from winter's cold. No other agency besides The Bee's fund, attends to this.

Every cent given to this fund goes to buy shoes for the abjectly poor children. Every case investigated strictly without cost to the fund.

Send or bring whatever you can spare to The Bee and help this very needful benevolence.
