

New Year's Eve Will Be Occasion for Many Gay Home Parties

New Year's eve is the one night of the year when people seem to feel that they must celebrate in some way, and several gay parties are planned already to usher out 1921 with fitting ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davidson will entertain a supper at their home, following which the party will go to the last performance at the Orpheum, and then to the Omaha club. Their guests will be the Messrs. and Mesdames George Frinz, W. H. Wheeler, Joseph Barker, Harry Tukey, A. L. Reed, C. T. Kountze, Frank Judson, W. A. C. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Hull, Mrs. Fred Nash, Charles Hull.

A jolly supper party, which is becoming an annual institution, is that given by Mr. and Mrs. Moshier Colpeter at their home for 40 or 50 of their friends. This is the sixth year that the Colpeters have given this party, and it is always a popular one. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bohling of St. Louis will be here for it this year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brandeis and the guests whom they are to entertain at a holiday house party will spend the evening at the Brandeis restaurant party.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Elmer A. Carey. Her bridesmaids were Misses Helen Carey, Robert W. Whitson of San Diego. The wedding will be a quiet one at the home of the bride's parents and will take place December 28. The young couple will make their home there.

Miss Carrier is a graduate of Omaha high, of Christian college at Columbia, Mo., and has studied kindergarten work in Chicago. Mr. Whitson is a graduate of Stanford and an Alpha Delta Phi. They met several years ago when Miss Carrier was in California, and the romance started at that time, according to their friends. Later, while she was at the National Kindergarten school in Chicago, he was at the Great Lakes Training station. For the last two years Miss Carrier has been doing kindergarten work in Omaha.

The wedding will take place on Christmas day in Hendley at the home of Miss Wilburn's parents. Miss Wilburn is a graduate of the Peru Normal school and has made her home in Omaha for the last four years.

This is her first visit home since she returned from overseas service with the Jewish Welfare Board. She is an honorary member of the First Division society, having been stationed in Coblenz, Trier and Montauban and marched in the procession honoring the Unknown Soldier in Washington on Armistice day.

Get Acquainted Club.

Train Children in Small Courtesies

Have the children in your home been taught to say "Good Night" every night before they go to bed? Or do they slouch off when they are told to retire and never think of lingering for the courteous "Good night"? There was a good old custom in middle class families that is rapidly declining in this country.

A reader has asked whether or not a stenographer on leaving her employer's office should say "Good night." Usually there is no question about this, for the employer goes half way and should the stenographer hesitate he would make the courteous speech himself.

Kris Kringle Candy. Two cups brown sugar, quarter pound (half cup) butter, two tablespoons molasses, one teaspoon vanilla extract, one can condensed milk, half pound (two cups) chopped nut meats, quarter pound (one cup) desiccated coconut and pinch cream of tartar. Put the butter, sugar, molasses and condensed milk into a saucepan, and when dissolved add the cream of tartar. Stir and boil to 260 degrees, or until almost brittle when tested in cold water. Add the nut meats and vanilla extract. In certain parts of the country one hears the expression "Good night" used where in most places one would say "Good evening." That is, "Good night" is a form of greeting used any time after dark. However, this is not the general use of the expression. It is a localism that proves sometimes a little confusing to those who are not used to it. It is a little disconcerting to have a hostess greet you when you call after dinner with a "good night." You feel as if you had been dismissed before you had been welcomed. According to popular use "Good

New York.—(Special Correspondence.)—The rage for plumage has gone beyond any former limits. Lace fans are edged with feathers; evening gowns are trimmed with them; the coq fan for evening in both black and colors has become an epidemic; bags made of ostrich are a novelty of the season, and latest to join the group are feathered shoes. So far no one has been seen wearing the last, but one never can tell.

The lady of the drawing is carrying a feather fan of coral tint. It and her coral earrings and the rhinestone fringe with coral drops are the avenues which she selects for introducing a touch of color to her gown of white velvet.

These evening gowns of white fabric are becoming more and more fashionable, but they are dependent, of course, upon artificial accessories for tone and brilliancy. This model presents an unusual feature in the draping wrapped about the figure into a train caught at the side by a coral ornament.

Mrs. James Brooks Henderson, widow of the former Missouri senator, is called the "Mother of Washington" because of her long years of active civic work in the capital city.

Of Interest to the Shopper

Lamp cords of chenille may be bought separately for a dollar or so. They are long silky chenille cords to attach to the short chain of a high lamp. These cords end in big tassels. They may be bought in black and in some colors.

Silver playing card holders are a good choice for a card party prize. They are little stands holding upright two packs of playing cards. They keep the cards neatly in packs and take up little room.

Stone letter seals, ready to have one's initials, seal or monogram cut in them, sell for $20 each. They are made in beautiful pink and green and blue and amber stone, hand-carved, small and simple, but of graceful shape and lovely color.

Doll bedside lamps are sold for varying prices. For six and a quarter dollars there is a very good lamp, with the little doll dressed in dress or old gold silk. These dolls, of course, can be had ready to dress for varying prices, too. They are charming, some of the more expensive ones having lovely hair or china features, with real blue in tiny curls about their brows. The dressing of them is fun, too, and any woman with clever fingers can compass this task.

Dyed rags for rugs, in bunches, are sold in the shops. They are clean rags, dyed in fast colors, and in almost any color you might wish. So if you have a loom and weave your own rugs, or if you have almost enough rags but not quite enough for your favorite rug, you can buy these rags already torn, tied and dyed.

Nursery rugs of rags and of wool are woven with decorative and appropriate borders, showing Mother Goose characters, children and little animals in a gay border around the edge. These rugs come with some neutral gray, blue or tan center.

There are fascinating ribbons for trimming these hats. Some of them are wide, of two colors—brown and tan, for instance, or light and dark blue. The bands of color run lengthwise. The ribbons are ribbed, cross-wise, and may be so creased and folded that more of one shade than the other shows.

Tan suede gloves embroidered in brown silk are particularly attractive. A big flower is embroidered toward the top of the back of the glove—on the wrist. The glove naturally wrinkles under this flower, which adds only to its charm.
