

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Do Men Respect Women nowadays?

If there are any men extant these days who take a girl out and consider a handshake and a pleasant good night sufficient reward for their pains, I have yet to meet them, writes F. K. M. "There is a type of man," she goes on, "who is loud in his scorn of the 'baby doll' and makes a point of seeking the society of girls who are patently 'nice.' But he cannot see why when he takes such a girl out for an evening's entertainment she objects to kissing him and making love—or what he calls love—as a remuneration for his magnanimity in bestowing his attentions upon her."

"I am not speaking idly but from sad and bitter experience. During the last summer I was forced to drop four, apparently nice, respectable, pleasant young men for this reason. I cannot for the life of me see why I should kiss a man the first time I go out with him, and have tried to impress this idea on the minds of the men, but it is useless. The ethical side of the situation never seems to occur to them. They say blandly: 'What's the harm?' Then comes the usual dissertation of being a prude."

"Now, I am considered pretty, dress well, am able to sustain a conversation and have cultivated the art of listening. So when a man asks me out I naturally think it is my personality that appeals to him, but my self-esteem drops with a sickening thud when I realize that, after all, they just want what the veriest 'jazz baby' could get."

"Boys, read and ponder! Isn't there something in what this girl claims? Have you any standard of fine womanhood? Do you take the trouble to differentiate between the girl who offers you her mind and the stimulation of pleasant conversation and the silly little animal who caters to you on your other basis? Have you clung to your best ideals of manhood? Or do you think of nothing but excitement, stimulation, emotions and the cheap pleasures of the moment?"

"One of the dearest, sanest, sweetest girls I know put it like this to me: "You know that I've had the advantages of a practical education. You realize that ever since I came out of college I've been earning my own living, and making good. And it isn't my social position or wealth that gets me all the invitations I'm lucky enough to have. It's the fact that folks seem to find me interesting. And I'm sure I'm interesting to them, because every one and every thing in this world of ours interests me. But sometimes I get so sick and tired of going to theater on Tuesday with one man and somewhere else on

Things You'll Love To Make

Velvet Chrysanthemum Ornaments. If your material is very lovely and you wish to use but little trimming, make this tied-bodice for evening frock. Cut a long sleeveless bodice that is slightly fitted at the waistline. With pencil mark off at the bottom two-inch bands at five-inch intervals. Have the bands 10 inches long. Then mark into points as shown. Have the bodice hemstitched on these lines and cut into picot edges. Tie each adjoining two ribbons into a knot. If the bottom of the bodice is faced with a contrasting color before the hemstitching is done the effect of this tied-bodice for evening frock is even more stunning. Crystallized Fruit.

Crystallized plums, crystallized cranberries, fine flavored pears, chilled cooked rice. Peel and quarter the pears, cook in either lemon syrup or sour cider and sugar syrup until tender. The rice should be sweetened and flavored to taste, set in a ring mould and chilled before turning out. Drain the pears and heap up in the center of the rice ring. Your Own Shock Absorber

To absorb the shocks of walking—repeated 4,000 to 5,000 times a day, for that is the number of steps you take—nature made the foot arch flexible. "The imprint of the human foot," writes Dr. Lillian Whitney, "shows that only the heel, ball and outer border touch the earth, while the hollow of the foot, that part upon which the greatest weight rests, does not touch the earth at all. Here lies the great elasticity of this wonderful mechanism." A flexible, elastic and shock absorbing foot arch calls for a flexible shoe arch. But all ordinary shoes have a rigid piece of steel embedded and concealed in the shank. No wonder that women find the day's duties less tiring, less of a strain on nerves and muscles, when they wear Cantilever Shoes with flexible arches. The Cantilever shank is all-leather, and conceals no hidden metal. The movement of the foot, elasticity in walking, a normal support to the foot while standing, make Cantilever Shoes the shoes you should wear for standing or walking. They are modish in appearance and wonderfully comfortable.

A Cantilever Christmas Certificate makes an acceptable gift. SIZES 2 to 11, Widths AAAAA to EE. For Men and Women. HOSIERY, SEATS AND RUBBERS Sold in Omaha Only by CANTILEVER SHOE SHOP Moving to New Location, 1708 Howard St. Opposite Y. W. C. A. Bldg. Write for Free Booklet.
