A Christmas Thought

By Helen Keller.

(This message of Christmas was written at the request of The Bee by Miss Helen Keller in her dressing room in the Orpheum theater on her own typewriter. It is significant that only a typographical error was made by Miss Keller in writing the message.)

This is the season of festivity and good cheer when every heart glows and expands with the thought of making somebody happy. Christmas brings us nearest to Him whose gospel of peace and good will we profess. Never has mankind needed spiritual comfort and faith more than today. To a world destroying itself with hatred and famine comes Christmas with its promise of peace and good will.

Let us pause in our holiday round of pleasures, and consider whether we are doing our bit to bring about the fulfillment of this promise, and make this a saner, brighter world. If we have a glimmering of the Christ-spirit in our consciousness, we shall desire to see His teachings substantiated upon earth. The test of Christianity is a wise and understanding heart.

Sympathy is the greatest asset in the cultivation of a friendlier and more prosperous world. It is the best cure for industrial depression, unemployment and strife. In our affairs we need the human touch and the spirit of Christmas kindness. We are too apt to leave out of our calculations this spiritual force. I think it was Tolstoy who said, "You think there are circumstances under which you can deal with man without love, and there are no such circumstances." Behind the hard facts of trade, business and labor stands the human being, working, loving, desiring, suffering. Let us, then, give a thought to the man and woman behind the machine the tolling multitudes with hammer, brush and plow. Remember that Christ Himself was a carpenter, and His friends were bondsmen, fishermen and tentmakers. How much happier we shall be if we will only be all good friends together, scrapping all snobishness and all distinctions of race, color, class and creed! Then will the 20th century be the golden age of the world, and Christmas will be Christmas indeed. The future is full of immense possibilities of good, and through the spirit of brotherhood they shall be realized. Failure to foster this spirit can lead only to world wide disaster. We are all bound together. As St. Paul pointed out in his epistle to the Corinthians, "we are members one of another. If a member suffers, all the members suffer. This is equally true of all social and economic relations. The strong members cannot afford to ride in glittering chariots of success over the broken fragments of their weaker brothers. Let us work all together to make the most of the glorious opportunities that nature and science have placed within our reach. Then shall all our joy greater blessings than our fathers dreamed of possessing—comfort and happiness founded upon work, useful work and comradeship. Let us resolve, therefore, to play the game of life fair and square, and poverty, famine, strikes and wars will disappear as the mist before the rising sun at break of day.

I have tried to write the Christmas message for you, but the theatre is not friendly to intellectual effort. I have written this between the ordeal of "making up" and numberless interruptions. But possibly there is a matrix of a message in what I have written. If there is, I know you will dig it out from its bed of words, and your skill as a newspaper man will enable you to give it a suitable setting for the "Bee."

Sincerely yours,
Helen Keller.

This is a facsimile of the note which Helen Keller wrote to accompany her "Christmas Thought," together with a reproduction of her signature. The note is a typical example of Miss Keller's success with the typewriter.

'No Developments' In Bomb Plots

Wall Street Undisturbed by Threats—Reports From Warsaw Awaited.

By The Associated Press.
New York, Dec. 18.—No developments. This was today's report, both on the second explosion against which Wall Street had been warned, and the government's investigation of the 1920 blast.

Lower Manhattan apparently failed to take seriously letters mailed to brokers, predicting that by night-fall skyscrapers within a five block radius of the stock exchange would be laid low.

Clerks appeared concerned only with getting to work on time. J. P. Morgan, who was supposed to be the chief object of the plot, arrived unattended at his office at his regular hour. The usual noon day crowd at Wall, Broad and Nassau streets seemed greater if anything, for New York is a city of the curious.

True, a few more guards could be seen and the special prerogative of Santa Claus to secrecy was violated as suspicious looking Christmas packages were searched.

William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation, the Department of Justice, was still here awaiting cabled reports from Warsaw concerning the arrest of Wolfe Lindenfeld, alleged acquaintance of Lenin, in connection with the 1920 explosion. He professed himself mystified at the non-arrival of any such reports and scanned with interest Associated Press dispatches, volunteering the comment that the correspondent was getting "good information."

Farmer Keeps Note Given in Stock Deal

Greenfield, Ia., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Fraud alleged to have been practiced by a salesman of stock in the company of Des Moines, was the defense which John C. Connelley, retired farmer here, laid in resisting payment of a $2,500 note given in payment of the stock. He had obtained possession of the note through a writ of replevin and was suing for its recovery by a Des Moines bank. A jury in district court here decided Connelley need not return the note. The jury's decision has been confirmed by the state supreme court.

Connelley bought $17,500 worth of Associated Packing stock through a salesman. He gave the salesman $2,500 in cash and notes aggregating $15,000. It was one of these notes that was in controversy in the suit.

Danish Minister Covers 28,000 Miles on U. S. Tour

Harlan, Ia., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Twenty-eight thousand miles were covered by Rev. H. C. Valsted, Danish clergyman, in his sight-seeing travels over the United States. The clergyman is visiting here at the home of his friend, Rev. Mr. Vidabek.

Rev. Mr. Valsted is pastor of a Lutheran church in Copenhagen. He now is on his way to Berkeley, Cal., where he will do post-graduate work in the state university.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES

THE TALE OF MISS KITTY CAT

By ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER XXI
In the Pantry.

Of course everybody knows that while the cat's away the mice will play. So what happened during Miss Kitty Cat's absence from the farmhouse was really no more than anyone might have expected. There were gay banquets in Mrs. Green's pantry, at midnight. And among those present there was no one that had a better time than fat Mr. Moses Mouse. He was always the life of the party. He made jokes about Miss Snopser—as he called Miss Kitty Cat. And nobody laughed at them harder than he.

With every night that passed, Moses Mouse grew stouter and merrier. Some of his companions even claimed that they could scarcely eat, he made them giggle so violently.

On the fourth night of Miss Kitty's absence, and at the fourth banquet, Mr. Moses Mouse balanced a bit of cheese on the end of his nose, exclaiming at the same time, "What a pity it is that Miss Snopser isn't here! How I'd like to offer her this delicious tid-bit!"

To his great surprise, none of his friends laughed. Mrs. Green's friends looked at him with a frown. "Look out, Moses!" Mrs. Mouse cried the next moment.

"Don't worry, my dear!" said he. "I shan't lose this nice piece of cheese. If I drop it I can find it again. I've practiced this trick a good many times. It's too bad Miss Snopser isn't here to see it."

Still nobody even snickered—though Moses himself would have thought he had not been afraid of joggling the cheese off the end of his nose. He thought the silence very strange. And removing his eyes from the cheese, which he had been watching closely (though it made him look cross-eyed), he took a quick glance about him. Everybody had vanished.

"She's said Moses Mouse to himself. 'They're playing a trick on me. They're hiding.' And he promptly lost his temper. Much as he loved to cut capers and play tricks on others, Moses Mouse did not have anyone get a laugh on him. And now he gave a sort of snort, because he was angry.

Thereupon the bit of cheese fell off Moses' nose and rolled behind him on the pantry floor. He turned to get it, or to at least himself face to face with Miss Snopser herself; for Miss Kitty Cat was home again.

Before Moses Mouse could jump she clapped a paw down on him. And there he was—a prisoner!

"Well, well!" cried Miss Kitty Cat. "Aren't you glad to see me? You were just wishing I was here. Moses Mouse didn't act glad—not the least bit! He struggled his hardest to get away. But Miss Kitty caught him the slightest trouble holding him, with only one paw, too."

"Now that I'm here," she said to him, "don't you want to balance that scrap of cheese on your nose once more, and offer it to me?"

Since Miss Kitty caught him, Moses hadn't said anything that she could understand. He had made only a few squeaks of fright. Now, however, he managed to gasp, "Yes! Just let me go a moment! I can't pick up the cheese while you're crushing me against this pantry floor."

Pipe Lit Near Gas; Man's Trousers Burn

Red Oak, Ia., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Trying to light his pipe while a truck was being furnished a supply of gasoline, Banner Shay started a fire which burned the trousers off L. D. Pratt, badly burned himself and also Tom Morgan. Pratt's truck was damaged and a service station nearby ignited by the flames.

Cossack Styles Return to Paris

Charity Days of Club Found- ed by Marshal Foch Shows Style Trend.

Paris, Dec. 19.—More than $3,000,000 raised to aid the starving nobility of Russia and the return of Cossack styles as a society had two results of two regular charity days at the inter-allied union, the famous club founded by Marshal Foch.

Fox, seal and monkey furs have been abandoned for sable, astrakhan and Russian fox, while the "jumper" style of Cossack blouse richly trimmed with fur, has ousted the low waisted cutaway which has been the rage since autumn.

Society boot makers are turning out an incredibly expensive Tartar boot, fashioned of sable skins and reaching half way to the knee. They are worn at the theater and at dances.

Similarly the Asiatic influence has invaded millinery. Round fur toques are replacing the popular wide hats with turned up brims.
