charge of having disposed of mortigage of property. The complaint is by A. J. Barak, vice president of the Farmers' State bank of Petersburg, Neb.

A letter from Barak alleges that the Pendergraff boys left a farm they were working and not lied bank officials to look after livestock left on the farm. The two young men came to Omaha and got jobs in one of the packing plants. Both of the men told police they left everything on the farm that they had there when they got the mortgage.
