

Bootleggers Have Lining in Federal Court

Over 20 Cases Chalked Off Docket—Four Months in Jail for Man Who Sold to Youths.

"Busy day with bootleggers" would be an apt title for yesterday's proceedings in federal court. More than 20 cases were chalked off the docket—pleas entered, cases tried, sentences imposed or cases dismissed.

Alfo Rabino, charged with selling liquor to young school pupils, fared the worst. Judge Woodrough gave him a four months' sentence in the county jail and a $5 fine. The charge against his wife was dismissed.

Given Jail Sentences. George Gray, whom a jury found guilty, was sentenced to 60 days in jail. Frank Devilla and Lorenzo Julieta got 30 days. William Watson and Theodore Feda were found not guilty when a case of entrapment by federal officers was proved.

Nick Marino was fined $200 and the case against his wife dismissed; Camello Vinciguerra, Vincenzo Centamore and Alfio Gemma were fined $100 and the case against the wives of the latter two were dismissed. William Wageman paid $25.

On motion of the district attorney's office, cases against Willard and Ed Flor, Frank Skrupa, Fred Mondelino and Frank Castillo were dismissed.

Charges Against Police. The case of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Clernt will be the first called this morning. The clernts accused police and federal officers of taking $300 when they searched their home for liquor. Mrs. Clernt, too, tried to escape from the United States marshal's office, after she had been put under arrest.

Clernt was yesterday given a charge in the case against his wife dismissed if he would plead guilty, but he refused.

Tourist Camp at Elmwood Will Be Built This Spring. The tourist camp at Sunset Point, Elmwood park, will be built this spring to be ready for the thousands of summer campers. The final obstacle was removed yesterday when City Attorney Van Dusen, in an opinion to Park Commissioner Hummel, stated that the city has an obligation to appropriate for this purpose. The cost is estimated at $10,000.

Mr. Van Dusen also gave an opinion that the council cannot appropriate city money for free concerts in the park. The City Concert club has asked $16,000 for the purpose. In regard to paving the roads in Elmwood park at an estimated cost of $85,000, the attorney gave an opinion that such paving must be paid for by the whole city and that adjoining property owners cannot be specially taxed.

Skinner-Dold Packing Co. Hearing Set for March 8. Federal Judge Woodrough yesterday set March 8 as the date for a hearing in the case in which Keith Neville, receiver for the Skinner company, seeks to have set aside the contract by which the Dold Packing company acquired the Skinner plant.

Brief City News

Held on Check Charge. James Moffit, 28, Sioux City, brought back from Chicago at the conclusion of a three months' prison term, is held on the charge of having passed a worthless check for $100 to Sam Swartz, manager of the Eagle Loan company, 1201 Douglas street, after purchasing a diamond ring for $18.50.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF PONY TWINKLEHEELS

CHAPTER XVII. A White Vixen.

The white mare that the blacksmith was shoring looked much surprised when Twinkleheels told her he was not a colt.

"I'm a lady - I am."

"Your life, I can tell that by the way you act." And she winced in a most unpleasant fashion.

"What shall I say to her?" Twinkleheels asked Ebenezer. "She hasn't apologized to me."

"Pay no attention to her," the old horse advised him in an undertone. "She's a low-bred person. I've often met her on the road and she always wants to stop and talk. But I hurry past her."

"What are you saying?" the white mare asked in a sour tone. "Are you gossiping about me?" She laid her ears back and showed her yellow teeth.

"You see why I don't care to have anything to do with her," Ebenezer muttered to Twinkleheels.

"I'd kick you if I could reach you—and that pony too," the white mare squealed. "I'm a lady—I am. And you'd better be careful what you say about me."

Because she was angry, and couldn't kick either Twinkleheels or Ebenezer, she felt that she must kick somebody. So she let fly at the blacksmith, who had just stepped up beside her.

Strangely enough, instead of jumping away from her, the blacksmith crowded as close to her as he could get. He knew what he was about. He hadn't shod horses for 20 years without learning something about them. He stood so near the white mare that her kick hadn't room to get going well. And the blacksmith wasn't hurt. He was merely disgusted.

"I declare," he said to Farmer Green, "this mare is the meanest critter that comes into my shop. She doesn't know anything except how to kick a horse's bite. That old horse of yours is worth a dozen like her. I'd give more for his tail than I would for her."

Ebenezer tried to look unconcerned. "The blacksmith had a hearty voice. Nobody in the shop could help hearing what he said. And Twinkleheels made up his mind that the blacksmith shouldn't have any reason to speak of him as he had of the silly white mare."

Twinkleheels watched sharply as the blacksmith captured a hind foot of the white mare, and held it between his knees. Then the smith began to nail on the shoe.

One thing puzzled Twinkleheels. Every time the blacksmith struck a blow with his hammer he gave a funny grunt. Twinkleheels nudged Ebenezer with his nose. "Do you hear that?" he asked. "Is he related to Gruntly Pig—a sort of cousin, perhaps?"

The old horse Ebenezer gasped. "Bless you, no!" he exclaimed. "Then why does he grunt?"

"Oh, that's just a way he has," said Ebenezer. "Some blacksmiths think it's stylish to grunt like that." By this time the white mare seemed to be in a pleasant frame of mind. At least, she let the blacksmith nail a shoe on each of her feet without making any objection—except to switch her tail now and then. And just as the blacksmith finished with her a man came and led her away.

"Now," said the blacksmith, "I'm ready to shoe the pony. And if he's as clever as he looks, he shan't have a switch of tail with him."

When he heard that, Twinkleheels made up his mind that he would behave his best, no matter what happened. (Copyright, 1921, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

Levy to Give 5 Per Cent of Jewish Relief Fund

Morris Levy, formerly head of the Nebraska Clothing company, today pledged to give 5 per cent of the total amount raised in the Jewish war relief drive now being conducted in the city. He placed his minimum contribution at $3,000.

Omaha's quota is $75,000, of which $40,000 has been raised. The quota in the state is $125,000.

The city has been divided into districts with a captain at the head of each. Every Jewish home in the city will be canvassed.

Henry Monsky took charge of the local campaign in the absence of Selwyn Jacobs, active chairman, who became ill at the opening of the drive.

Suspect in Drake Court Richard Cooper, 608 South Thirty-eighth street, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Treglia and Farmer, to be questioned by Chief of Detectives Van Dusen in connection with many burglaries in the Drake Court apartments, Twenty-second and Jones streets.

Cooper denied guilt, but was ordered held pending a further investigation as to his whereabouts.

40 Public Dance Halls The board of public welfare reported there are 40 licensed public dance places now in Omaha.

John 'Falls' for Sweet Voice of Woman Officer

Man Wanted for $75 Board Bill Ensnared by Telephone Call of Welfare Worker.

John Hohalmer, 2011 Webster street, promised himself yesterday that never more will he believe a woman who speaks in dialect tones to him over a telephone.

Mrs. Ida Levin of the board of public welfare was given a complaint against Hohalmer, who is said to have owed a board bill of $75 and was preparing to decamp without settling his account.

"Is this you, John, dear?" Mrs. Kevin inquired over the telephone, the inquiry eliciting a prompt affirmative from John.

"This is Mary, and I am coming right over to see you," the welfare woman added.

John donned his holiday raiment and anxiously awaited the coming of Mary.

Admitted to John's room, Mrs. Levin placed him under arrest and accompanied him to the police station.

"Oh, boy, she did have such a wonderful voice over the telephone," was John's plaint at police headquarters.

Blackwell Made Land Bank District Registrar

The Federal Farm Loan board has announced the appointment of S. H. Blackwell as registrar of the eighth federal land bank district, effective March 1, to succeed M. L. Corey, who tendered his resignation in order that he might devote more time to the legal department of the Federal Land bank of Omaha, of which he is also general attorney.

Mr. Blackwell has been the assistant registrar since the organization of the bank in 1917. He has had a broad experience in the farm loan business.

Attorney for Damato Will Ask for New Trial

William Lovely, attorney for Mike Damato, who was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury Tuesday, announced last night he would file a motion for a new trial, on the ground that he has obtained new evidence and that the verdict rendered was inconsistent with the charges placed against Damato.

"Damato was either guilty of murder in the first degree or he was not guilty at all," said Lovely.

Former Skinner Secretary to Sue for Contract Breach

Lily B. Ring, former private secretary to Paul Skinner, ex-manager of the Skinner Packing plant, yesterday received permission from Federal Judge Woodrough to institute suit against the company for breach of contract and back pay.

Miss Ring sets forth that she entered into a written contract on December 29, 1919, for employment for five years. "With other considerations," she was to be paid $3,000 per year and a $2,000 bonus at the end of each year, she says.

The company breached the contract the following March, she states. On account of the receivership, Miss Ring had to receive the judge's sanction prior to filing suit.

Thieves Get Big Haul at Julius Orkin Store

Julius Orkin's women's clothing store, 1512 Douglas street, was broken into Tuesday night and suits, dresses and furs valued at $3,500 were stolen.

The thieves entered by prying the bars from a rear window in the basement and breaking the window.

They apparently packed their loot in gunnysacks. Then they opened a rear door by unscrewing the hinges and made their escape.

McGinty Enjoined From Visiting Wife

Real Estate Man Released on Bond After Spending Hours in Jail.

Frank M. McGinty, wealthy Omaha real estate man, signed a $1,000 appearance bond yesterday afternoon, after spending several hours in jail, where he was held on a capias for contempt of court, issued by District Judge Sears.

"Remember," warned Judge Sears, as McGinty departed, "that you're enjoined from going to your wife's home."

"I can't even go to my own home, can't I?" was McGinty's response.

Mrs. McGinty, who is suing her husband for divorce, filed an affidavit last week alleging he appeared at her home with a revolver and "threatened to put her in a cemetery" unless she came to a settlement in her divorce suit.
