

Farm Interests Well Protected in Tariff Bill

Many Increases Recorded in New Measure as Drafted by Senate Finance Committee.

Washington, March 28.—Agricultural interests have been well taken care of in the tariff bill. The measure, as it will be reported to the senate by the senate finance committee within a week, includes many increases in duties on agricultural products over rates in the house bill, although some of them represent reductions from rates of the emergency tariff law. In most cases rates recommended by the farm bloc of the senate have been approved. The new bill provides a duty of 30 cents a bushel on wheat. The duty in the Fordney bill is 25 cents and in the emergency law 35 cents. Wheat flour, semolina and wheat products carry a duty of 20 cent ad valorem in the emergency act. The 70 cent rate was advocated by Senator Ladd, North Dakota, and it nearly meets the demand of the millers for a duty of four and one-half times the rate on wheat, on the theory that it takes four and one-half bushels of wheat to make one barrel of flour. The rate on bran, shorts and other by-product feeds is placed at 10 per cent ad valorem in the senate bill, as against 15 per cent in the house bill. Hulls of oats, barley, buckwheat and other grains are dutiable at 10 cents per 100 pounds as in the house bill. The duty on mixed feeds, consisting of mixtures of grain with oil cake and other ingredients is 15 per cent ad valorem compared with 6 per cent in the Fordney bill. Screenings, unground, carry a duty of 75 cents a ton, and when ground $1.50 per ton, the same as in the house bill.

Wife Named Guardian of Buffalo Capitalist

Los Angeles, March 28.—Mrs. Mary Wendt was appointed guardian of the person of her husband, William F. Wendt, eccentric capitalist of Los Angeles and Buffalo, and Frank Kelsey of Los Angeles was named guardian of Wendt's estate, by Judge James C. Rives in probate court here yesterday. This was the result of proceedings brought by Wendt's daughter, Miss Margaret Wendt, in which she alleged her father was incompetent to manage his affairs and sought appointment of a guardian for him. The application was contested by Wendt, who declared he needed no guardian, but that if one was appointed, he wanted the court to name his sister, Mrs. Augusta Stafford, Judge Rives, in deciding the case, said he was satisfied Mrs. Wendt and Miss Wendt had done "everything they should have done" in agreeing Wendt and his business affairs.

Eight women and four men are on the Tossine jury. They were given the case yesterday and after deliberating until late last night, without agreeing were locked up until this morning.

Spurns Big Salary for Job as Teacher

Problems That Perplex Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Advice to Marcella. Dear Miss Fairfax: I have wondered whether the advice given to Marcella in these columns on March 27 was tempered by the heat of wisdom. I take Marcella to be a young lady who deserves every consideration, because in her thought of the future she has sufficient good judgment to include the question of her faith. And it is because of her apparent sincerity that I should like to have her see the pending question from also another angle. Your advice to the worthy young lady is based upon the assumption that she is a "very orthodox" one (whatever they may be) and a negligible quantity in the choice of a life's companion. It is the notion so often met with—"all churches aim at the same goal, so what's the difference?" But is that really the case? Is there no difference? On the contrary, our creed is the real factor in shaping our lives of service. What we believe, that is what we live. Many organizations did relief work in France, but our boys will tell you that none rendered the unselfish and self-sacrificing service of the Salvation Army lasses; and, without indicting others, it was their creed that made them do it. Other examples might be adduced to prove the contention that faith or doctrine, if it means anything at all to a person, is of the highest importance. It yields the pattern for our life. Experience teaches that congregations of different faiths uniting externally, unmindful of their respective creeds, have sadly been torn asunder, with much hard feeling resulting, because they were not united in the belief that many homes erected on two creeds, when both husband and wife were convinced of the correctness of their respective creed and had the courage to adhere to that of which they were convinced as truth, were wrecked.

Chiropractor Egged by Medical Students

Morgantown, W. Va., March 28.—A number of eggs were thrown at Dr. James G. Greggerson of Davenport, Ia., a chiropractor, as he was delivering a lecture before a gathering of chiropractors of this district in the court house last night, by a group of a dozen medical students of West Virginia university. More than a dozen eggs were hurled at the speaker, besides a number of "stink bombs."

Mr. Borsheim had been in the jewelry business in Omaha about 30 years. For the last 20 years he had been in business with his son, Louis, Jr., on South Sixteenth street. Another son, Alfred P., of Kansas City, Mo., who came here two weeks ago, survives.

My Marriage Problems "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"

The Way Katherine Took Lillian's News. An unworthy little feeling, not positive enough to be dubbed envy or jealousy, but having in it elements of both emotions, sprang into life at Lillian's words. So Katherine was my friend's "ace of trumps" in the game she was playing to learn the identity and nefarious design of the man who had been so terribly injured by a motor car just as we were about to overhear his conversation with Katie. For a tense second the joy with which I was already welcoming Katherine in my thoughts was chilled. Then, with a swift reaction—a feeling of abysmal disgust at my own littleness—I scorged from my soul every vestige of the thought and I frankly hoped that Lillian's keen eyes had not detected any trace of it in my face. That I would never know, however, and we went on with our plans for Katherine's coming, which included giving her the maximum of rest possible before sending her to the hospital to care for the wounded man. "It's a crime to rush her over there so soon after her long train journey," Lillian said, "but simply am at my wits' end. The people lack of that man may appear at any time, and I must have somebody on the spot continually." "If I know Katherine," I interposed quietly, "and I think I do, there will be nothing in the world she will welcome more than a chance to take up her old profession. She won't feel any fatigue, and I'll wager that a few hours' rest at the longest will be all she will consent to take." Lillian said that she had had much physical labor—she has always had a woman accustomed to heavy work, and keeping her tiny house in order and cooking for two must have been child's play to Katherine's capability. But I can read between the lines and see that she is about starved for some outside interest. Can't you imagine how she'll welcome getting into the great game again in any capacity?"

Parents' Problems

Is condensed milk a suitable food for children? If babies are meant by the word "children," consult your physician. The best food for a baby is its mother's milk, next best is fresh cow's milk, properly modified. Other foods should be given only on the advice of a physician. Older children sometimes like condensed milk, used as a sandwich filler. Do not encourage this taste; jelly is a preferable sweet and fresh milk a better kind of milk.

Common Sense Do You Know the Value of Education?

Parents who are tempted to take their children out of school before they have sufficient education to make it possible for them to hold responsible positions, with good pay, are reducing the earning capacity of the children many thousands of dollars throughout their entire lives. Statistics show that every day of schooling is worth $9.00 to a person. Consequently every day the boy or the girl is out of school results in a lifetime loss of $9 for each day. The salary of the man increases after he is 30, if he is educated, while the man who works by brawn finds his earning capacity decreases after 30 years of age. Some parents, and some boys themselves, because they intend to enter the trades, think that it is not necessary to have much schooling. This is a wrong idea. Education is not alone what is gotten out of books, it is mind training. A trained mind means that an artisan with education is far more efficient than one with an untutored mind, and the man with little education, even though he possesses much natural ability, is handicapped when in competition with an educated man in the trades.
