

'Live and Learn,' Judge Tells Maker of Silken Teddies

Man Who Gave Seamstress $4 Hose Seeks to Replevin Fancy Dress She Made for Girl.

"A fellow can live and learn," asserted Judge George Holmes in municipal court yesterday morning when Aberdeen Irene House Davis, dressmaker, Elms hotel, testified that $15 is a fair and reasonable charge for making one pair of silk teddies.

The judge wiped his spectacles and remarked that this is a wonderful age, with radio and everything like that.

Mrs. Davis was defendant in a replevin action brought by Francis M. Longley, 1910 South Thirtieth street, deputy assessor, who sought to obtain possession of a five-piece fancy dress made for his 6-year-old daughter, Elizabeth.

A charge of $15 was made by Mrs. Davis for the work. Longley stated that he would pay a reasonable amount.

The judge was told by one witness that the dress could be made for $5 and another witness from a fashionable downtown dressmaking establishment stated that $45 would be a fair charge.

Mildred Ryan, 2507 Jones street, was referred to as one of the patrons for whom Mrs. Davis made silken teddies at $15 per pair for sewing. Miss Ryan appeared as witness.

Mr. Longley testified that when Mrs. Davis came to Omaha from Missouri Valley a few months ago, in a condition of poverty, he befriended her by providing for her keep and he bought her a pair of $4 hose. In return for that kindness Longley testified Mrs. Davis agreed to make the dress without charge.

Mrs. Davis threatened to appeal from the decision of Judge Holmes.

Dog Hill Paragrafts

By George Bingham

Sidney Hocks had a narrow escape from serious injury one day this week. He was on Musket Ridge and was walking across a deep gully on a plank. When he had reached the middle he took a large chew of tobacco and became overbalanced.

The Dog Hill preacher is doing a lot better in his sermons now than he did and ought to be encouraged. Quite a number of the congregation now sit clear through the sermon without thinking about anything else.

Clab Hancock says in his judgment the only thing that can thrive without a foundation is a false rumor.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF NIMBLE DEER BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER XVII. Wahn Brownie Wanted. Nimble Deer had stopped at Brownie Beaver's pond to get a drink. Just as he raised his head

Nimble Deer looked puzzled. from the water he spied Brownie a little way off on the bank, gnawing at a box alder tree.

"Good evening!" Brownie Beaver answered. "I see you're busy, as usual," Nimble remarked.

"Yes!" Brownie replied. "And what are you doing—if I may ask?"

"I'm just rambling about," Nimble explained. "Then you're not doing much of anything," said Brownie Beaver.

"Since you're not working, perhaps you'll be willing to help me," Brownie suggested.

"Certainly," Nimble cried. He liked Brownie. Everybody liked him—unless it was Timothy Turtle, who had a grudge against the whole Beaver tribe.

"Maybe I can make arrangements with you to—" Brownie began. "Of course you can!" Nimble interrupted.

"That's very kind of you," Brownie said. "I'm sure I'm much obliged to you."

"You're quite welcome," Nimble assured him. "You're sure you won't mind?" Brownie Beaver inquired.

"Not at all! No, indeed! What is it you want me to do for you? Do you want me to help you roll a log into the water, when you've finished cutting down that tree? I might use my horns for a cant hook, such as the lumbermen have."

"No! It's not that—thank you," Brownie Beaver mumbled. He had not stopped working, while he talked. And having some chips in his mouth he did not speak any too clearly.

"Maybe you'd like me to walk back and forth along the top of your dam and make it firmer," Nimble suggested.

"No, it's not that," Brownie told him. "The dam is firm. It has been here a great many years, ever since my great-grandfather's time. You've noticed my house, I dare say, it went on."

"I have," Nimble answered. "It's a good one, though the chimney looks a bit lopsided, to me. Shall I give it a push and see if I can straighten it?"

"No, indeed—thank you!" said Brownie hurriedly. "For mercy's sake, don't touch my chimney! I worked a long time to make it. And if I do say so, it's the best one in the whole village."

Well, Nimble Deer couldn't guess what it was that Brownie Beaver wanted him to do. He couldn't think of any other way in which he might help.

"Then what—" he demanded—"what is it you want?"

"There's something I need for my house," Brownie explained. "Shingles!" Nimble cried.

"No!" Brownie said, as he shook his head. "I hope you don't want a pair of antlers to fasten over your chimney piece?" Nimble explained.

"I shouldn't care to part with my antlers—not just at present!"

"Well, Brownie said once more, "I'm glad of that," Nimble replied. "For a moment he had been somewhat worried."

And then Brownie Beaver told him what he had in mind: "I need a flag to fly over my house."

"That would be fine," Nimble observed. "But I don't see how I could help you with that."

"I've heard that you have a flag, I thought perhaps you'd let me have it—or borrow it, at least," Brownie Beaver told him.

Nimble Deer looked puzzled. "I haven't any flag," he said. And then he cried, "Yes! Yes, I have one." "Ah! I was told you had," said Brownie Beaver. "Who told you?"

"Old Mr. Crow!" Brownie Beaver said. "I might have known it," Nimble muttered. "He has played a joke on you. It's true that I have a flag; but it's not the kind of flag you want."

"No, indeed—thank you!" said Brownie hurriedly. "For mercy's sake, don't touch my chimney! I worked a long time to make it. And if I do say so, it's the best one in the whole village."

Police Aid Hungry Girl Who Loses Money and Job

Lizette Barlake, 35, came to Omaha from St. Paul, Neb., three days ago and went to work at the Brandeis cafeteria.

She put her purse containing all her money, $15, on a shelf and it disappeared. Then she lost her job. Hungry and facing eviction from her room at 1414 South Fifteenth street because of unpaid rent, she appeared at Central police station for aid.

Desk Serg. A. Sinclair gave her $3 and told her to return tomorrow if she didn't get a job and the officers would raise a fund for her.

Three Delectable Suggestions For Any Day Of The Week

Save these tested recipes for future use:

CAKE FILLING

1/2 cup Rich Milk
1 Egg—yolk only
2 square Baker's Chocolate
1 tablespoon Kingsford's Corn Starch
2 tablespoons Kero (Crystal White)
1/2 cup Sugar
1/2 teaspoon Vanilla

Scald the milk. Melt the chocolate over water. Beat the egg, add the sugar and the cornstarch well mixed together. Pour on the hot milk gradually. Add the chocolate and cook, stirring constantly till it comes to the boiling point. Remove from fire and add vanilla.

CREAM FILLING

2 tablespoons Kingsford's Corn Starch
1 Egg
1/4 pinch of Salt
1/2 cup Sugar
1 cup Milk
1 tablespoon Kero

Mix the cornstarch and the salt and mix to a smooth paste with one-fourth of a cup of the milk. Scald the rest of the milk, and add to the cornstarch. Cook in a double boiler twenty minutes. Add the beaten yolk of the egg and cook long enough to set. Remove from the fire and add the vanilla and Kero. If the mixture has been carefully stirred while thickening it will be smooth. If lumpy, strain, cool and fill the cold puffs.

CREAM PUFFS AND ECLAIRS

1 cup Boiling Water
1/2 tablespoon Kingsford's Corn Starch and sufficient flour to make 1 cup
4 Eggs
1/2 cup Maltol
Put Maltol and boiling water in a saucpan, add the flour and cornstarch well mixed, all at once, and cook, stirring constantly, till it leaves the side of the pan. Remove from the fire, cool by beating, and when cold, beat in, one at a time, the unbeaten eggs. Line a baking sheet with oiled paper. Drop the batter in rounds on it and bake in a hot oven for thirty minutes. When cold, split and fill with whipped cream or the cream filling.

FREE: Ask your grocer or write Corn Products Sales Co., 8th and Jackson Sts., Omaha, Neb., for beautiful folder of the new Kingsford Corn Starch recipe.
