

Wahoo Attorney to Retain Post, Governor Rules

McKelvie Refuses to Oust H. A. Bryant Charged With Law Enforcement of Prohibition Law

Lincoln, May 20.—(Special.)—H. A. Bryant of Wahoo, Saunders county attorney, will be given an opportunity to let the people of that county decide whether he is guilty of enforcement of the prohibition law.

Governor McKelvie refused today to remove Bryant from office as had been requested by 95 residents of the county in a petition filed with the governor.

Bryant appeared before the governor today and presented petitions signed by 950 Saunders county taxpayers urging the governor to permit Bryant to continue his duties as county attorney, branding the attempt of certain residents to remove him as a "political frameup."

Bryant told Governor McKelvie that certain attorneys interested in getting him removed were also interested in getting $130,000 in bridge claims from the county. Bryant asserted his activities in fighting these claims in order to save the taxpayers his money had angered certain influential people who were behind the fight made upon him.

Bryant pointed to numerous liquor prosecutions made by him and offered to bring State Sheriff Gus Hyers and his deputies before the governor and prove by them that he always had cooperated with officers in enforcing the prohibitory law.

Bryant admitted that one night in January, when he was arrested on a drunkenness charge, that he had had a drink, but refused to admit that he was drunk.

"I think you should be censured for that," the governor said, "but under the law I have no power to remove you for such an offense. An official must be guilty of habitual drunkenness before I can remove him."

Bryant asserted he would be a candidate for re-election.

"And I'll lick that gang again," he said.

Radium Increases Red Corpuscles

Leak of Radium in Blood May Be Secret of Thinness and Anemic Symptoms

A noted authority recently said of radium rays caught in sugar of milk and eaten internally—"red blood corpuscles are increased by 2400 within forty-eight hours." Radium in this form is perfectly harmless and is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, especially among old people and the results are nothing short of marvelous. A fair trial of science stands revealed. The radium rays referred to are those contained in Radium tablets and are the genuine. A number of leading druggists recognizing the enormous value of these tablets must have been ready to supply the public either through physicians or over-the-counter. They are put up in vials of 210 tablets, each with a gold holding radium and uranium oxide and are $1.50 a vial.

All anemic people should see what this natural of science may do in restoring them to strength, weight and the full round, pink cheeks of robust health. Be sure to ask for Radium as they are the genuine.

They are sold by Sherman & McConnell, Boston Drug Co., Green's Pharmacy and Haines Drug Co.

Bride of Valentino Slips Through Omaha in Night

Winifred Hudnut.

While Omaha slept Miss Winifred Hudnut, known professionally as Natasha Rambova, recent bride of Rudolph Valentino, slipped through Omaha on the Continental Limited at 2:10 yesterday morning.

Miss Hudnut, whose elopement to Mexico, Lower California, with "The Sheik," is being investigated by state and federal officers, was not disturbed here.

The conductor on her Pullman car saw that.

"Yes, she's on the train," said that stalwart guardian of her peace, "but I can't call her or tell you in which car her stateroom is located."

Two soldiers, traveling east also on the Continental Limited, admitted they had seen the daughter of the wealthy New York perfume manufacturer once or twice since they got aboard.

"But the only time she leaves her stateroom," they confided, "is when she goes to the baggage car to see that her pet dog gets his food."

"Yes, all the passengers on the train have been craning their necks to get a glimpse of her, but they haven't had much success so far. She even takes her meals in the stateroom."

The bride of the screen's most recent and favored Lothario is traveling under the name of Miss Winifred Shaughnessy, according to the train conductor, who failed to exhibit much concern over the fact that so noted a beauty was aboard his limited, and she holds a ticket to Chicago but has her baggage checked through to New York City.

Edison Says Ford No Mercenary in Fight for Shoals

"What in Hell Does He Want With More Money?" Says Electrical Wizard to Senators.

By GEORGE F. AUTHIER.

(Washington Correspondent of The Bee.) Washington, May 20.—(Special Telegram.)—Thomas A. Edison, the noted inventor, while appearing today before the senate agricultural committee presided over by Senator Norris of Nebraska, in favor of the development of Muscle Shoals as a nitrate plant, declared Henry Ford in making a proposal for the purchase of the plant, was not urged by mercenary motives.

"What in hell does he want with more money?" asked the electrical wizard. "Only recently he told me that he had $27,000,000 in banks subject to check."

However, Mr. Edison emphasized the fact he was not present to boost the Ford plan, and took occasion though to observe that if Ford secured a lease on the project he would establish there a great industrial center that would prove to be an asset to the country at large.

Points Out Possibilities. Mr. Edison gave it as his deliberate opinion that the government should make it possible to develop Muscle Shoals. He pointed out that within 75 miles of the plant there are large deposits which, under chemical processes now being developed, can be converted into potash fertilizer which can be sold at a price much lower than the German product.

In glowing terms Mr. Edison pictured how it would be possible to produce cheap commercial fertilizer in this country which would be a great blessing to the agricultural districts.

Members of the committee were much impressed by the arguments advanced by Mr. Edison but no decision were reached.

The meeting was held behind closed doors at the suggestion of Mr. Edison, who explained that he gets nervous when talking to a large audience. Members of the committee made no secret of what took place, however.

Senators' Opinions Differ. There appears to be a difference of opinion among the agricultural senators relative to the Muscle Shoals project. Senator Norris of Nebraska has favored the establishment of a government corporation there to construct dams and operate the plants as a government enterprise along much the same lines as proposed by Mr. Ford.

Loyal Cohn Held Up With Women; Bandit Gets Gems

Prominent Omahan and Party, Sitting in Car Near Residence, Are Victims of Robbery.

Loyal Cohn, cousin of George Brandeis, member of a pioneer Omaha family, and two young women companions, were held up and robbed as the party sat in an automobile at Thirty-third and Farnam streets at 9:30 Friday night.

The young women in the party were Miss Lorraine Rosenstock, sister of Miss Jesse Rosenstock, secretary of the Jewish Welfare federation, and Miss Carolyn Orkin, daughter of Max Orkin, retired merchant.

Near Rosenstock Home.

The machine was standing in front of the Rosenstock home, 301 South Thirty-third street, just a few feet south of auto-traveled Farnam street, at the time of the holdup.

"Put up your hands and keep still," the lone unmasked bandit told the party when he jumped out of the shadows of some trees onto the running board of the car.

Cohn did not put up his hands quickly enough so the holdup man said, "Don't you know what stickup is. You're being held up."

When three persons walked by on the sidewalk just a step away from the machine, the bandit muttered, "All of you keep still or there'll be some shooting."

Miss Orkin Loses Ring.

He obtained $25 from Cohn and a very valuable diamond ring from Miss Orkin. Several persons who approached from Farnam street caused him to leave before he obtained other jewelry from Miss Orkin, among them several pieces her father brought home from China recently.

The bandit left without taking anything from Miss Rosenstock. When she jumped from the running board and walked up Farnam street, Detective Walter Lickert and Police Officers Haley, Sullivan and Vinci scoured the neighborhood. Several suspects were arrested, but none were identified.

Location of Vessels Determined by Radio

By The Associated Press.

Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., May 20.—Out on the fog-wrapped wastes of Lake Superior, giant ore and grain laden freighters are rolling eastward down the lakes, past their upbound coal-carrying sisters, with only a decisive siren hoot for the hidden rocks of White Fish bay, the "graveyard of the ships."

For the first time since the Jesuit fathers in their frail Indian canoes ventured across the uncharted lakes, navigation on Lake Superior has been robbed of its terrors. On May 14 the first naval radio compass station on the lakes opened at White Fish point to direct the passing shipping by wireless.

At any hour of the day or night the captain of a ship lost in the swirling fog banks can call the radio station and ask his position. An instant later the call will come back giving the ship's direction from White Fish point for the vessel's navigator to plot on his chart.

Within three weeks two more radio compass stations will be open. The graveyard of untold scores of ships—lumber laden schooners of an earlier day and huge steel bulk freighters of the present day—stretches from White Fish bay to Grand Marais, the nearest port of refuge to the west. The 60 miles of desolate water, rimmed by sand dunes and lonely forests has claimed an annual toll in ships and lives and cargo since navigation opened on the

Mr. Young based his prediction upon the fact that a number of schools and colleges are already broadcasting, via radio, regular college courses. Although none of the latest innovations of the new art, the practicability of these courses assures a permanent place for them in the field.
