On Tuesday Sigma Alpha Epsilon initiated Messrs. Putnam and Robertson of Omaha, and Nye of Fremont. During the day the three initiates treated the students around the campus to an exhibition of various stunts, and one of them was even exported to Wahoo to edify that metropolis with like edifying stunts. In the evening the formal part of the ceremony was carried out and a banquet in honor of the new Sigma Alphas followed.

Three of a Kind.

"Now Snowball, you lie right still, and be a good kitty. No, you mustn't put your paws outside of your cradle. If your nails have just been cleaned. Oh, Elder, you come right back this minute. You've got to have your face washed. I can't bear dirty kitties. Well, I can't help it if you do get soap in your eye. Keep still, Snowball, you bad cat! Petite, stop kicking that way. What sort of manners is it to lie on your back and kick with all your feet when I want to put on your sash? Oh, mercy! What shall I do with you? Three misbehaved little children are too much for one mother."

Curly-headed little Kathie sat down on the back attic stairs disconsolately.

Snowball wrestled and heaved under the tightly packed covers, and threw himself out. Then, casting a scared glance at Kathie, he hid behind a rag-bag. Elder was ensconced on a high beam, and Petite lay still on her back, her hind feet drawn up, ready to protest vigorously, if a hand should approach.

The sunlight shimmered on Kathie's brown curls and blinked inquiringly around the drooping corners of her mouth. It sent a mischievous ray up at Elder and made him turn his back in disgust.

Petite gave a galvanic kick, and Snowball troubled by the unaccustomed silence peeped around a corner of the rag-bag.

A malign expression dawned in Kathie's eyes as she regarded Petite's hind legs.

"You little wretch!" she exclaimed, and reached out her hand, only to receive a prompt scratch.

"Ouch, you —" stretching her chubby hand still further to grasp the neck of the recreant—farther and still farther, as the funny thing wriggled away, until—her head struck the wash-boiler at the foot of the stairs with an echoing clash.

Again a silence. The heap at the foot of the stairs lay quite still. Presently Snowball craned his neck over the edge of the stairs and mewed coquettishly. There was no response. Snowball batted his paw at Elder, and then the three had a grand game of tag over the loosened boards of the attic floor in peace.

College Settlement Opens.

The opening entertainment of the College Settlement was given Thursday evening at the settlement house. About a hundred were in attendance and a very pleasant social evening was enjoyed. A special feature was the musical program given by young people of the settlement. The following numbers were given:

Piano solo, Emma Schaal.
Vocal solo, Irene Arenson.
Recitation, Christile Westerfield.
Duet, Hazel Emith and Lila Rieth.
The program closed with a tableau which was especially well presented. Punch was served during the evening. The plan of work for the year was explained by Mr. Prevey and Mr. Harry Poston presented the social work in regard to the boys' and girls' clubs, their aims and prospects. This evening a three-degree lodge will be organized, with secret rites and strict regulations.

The Union Boys will debate the following question this evening: "Resolved, That the University of Nebraska should not accept the Rockefeller gift." The affirmative will be upheld by C. W. Melick and W. J. Boyce; while the negative will be supported by S. Krajicek and M. J. Brown. All students invited.

Course 6, in English literature, is to be changed still further from old English reading to more modern work and judgment of literature in general.
