Editorial Remarks

Come out to the football rally tomorrow and give vent to your enthusiasm. Our football team has proved itself a winner, and therein is cause for pride. Come out and make it evident that the loyalty of the student body to the team not only continues undiminished, but is ever increasing.

We are giving up space in our editorial columns this week to interview articles worked up by members of the journalism class. These articles are of all of considerable interest and merit, and deal with matters of importance to the whole student body.

The fact that some of the students find it convenient to smoke in the grandstand during the football games has called forth a protest from a number who have been inconvenienced by this carelessness of the part of a few. At last Saturday's game, especially, a number of cases are reported wherein ladies in different parts of the stand were made to breathe in an atmosphere redolent with cigar fumes, exhaled by careless smokers, who as long as they were not troubled in any way seemingly did not care for those about them. If any man feels obliged to smoke when attending one of the football games he should not seek to make himself a nuisance to those about him. He might exercise a little consideration if he feels that he must smoke, but it would be better if he would refrain from smoking on the grounds. If each man observed this a nuisance that has made itself substantially felt of late would be abated.

When a student comes to the University he should not seek to confine himself alone to the following out and mastering of the courses of study prescribed, but he should look around him for some field of activity for which he is peculiarly fitted to enter. If he has a talent for music, then he should interest himself in some organization in which he would be free to display his abilities, for instance the Glee club.

If he has a talent for debating or literary work, and can show himself fitted to assume duties in any organization where the services of capable students are in demand, he should not neglect his opportunity. The same is true of athletics. Any man who has the ability to play football or baseball and take part in the numerous other games and athletics events, should go in and give himself a fair trial. Even if he fails to establish a record, the training he will have received will prove of lasting benefit and instill into him a consciousness of the fact that no opportunity should be thrown away for the development of the physique. Every student is here for culture and advancement, and although none ought neglect their studies, all should grasp any opportunity to display their abilities to advantage.

her of handling work and gain some points from the comparison.

For the faculty also it is a rest for them and helps them by coming in contact with other professors and exchanging ideas on their several subjects.

Aside from this it shows college spirit and encourages the football team. "And lastly dear brethren," we take up this matter in the best of spirits and with nothing but good will toward the paper which made the statement which started all this. We hope this will lead to no ill will. We have simply stated a position which we must hold and trust that the paper will see this position and realize the validity of it and will give us its support in spirit as well as fact.

Dr. Condra in speaking of the athletics in the University said: "We hope to put them on a broader and firmer basis. Towards this end we have made a good start by placing good clean men upon all our teams, men who are thorough college men in every sense of the word."

"If this generation of athletes and managers of sports can place the athletics upon this firm basis they have given the coming man a most valuable gift and one which will be appreciated in all succeeding years."

"We aim to keep Nebraska on friendly terms with all the neighboring universities and by placing our athletics on a broad basis and on a clean one this will be accomplished."

For Prospective Teachers.

Mrs. B. M. Clark, who has charge of the University Teachers' bureau, suggests that Seniors, graduate students and others planning to teach next year, will be benefited by attending the sessions of the Superintendents and Principals' association, which will be held at the University on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. An interesting and instructive program has been prepared and the prospective teacher will be greatly helped by coming in touch with the experienced and successful educators of the state and learning their views on the important topics under discussion at these meetings.

New Instructor in Zoology.

Franklin D. Barker, A. M., has recently been appointed instructor in the department of zoology. Mr. Barker is from Ottawa University, Kansas, being a graduate of that institute, and later a student at the University of Chicago. During the term of his instructorship at Ottawa University he has done a great deal to build up the work of the department of natural sciences and has made some valuable investigations. He will have charge, primarily, of the work in general zoology and enters upon a course of investigation for a Ph. D. degree. Mr. Barker was attracted to the University by the reputation which it attained in science. Aside from his ability as a zoologist Mr. Barker is a man of fine personality and is a valuable addition to our faculty.
