

Chose of Other Days

In a recent issue of the Minneapolis Journal appeared a half-tone of Dr. Howard, formerly connected with the Latin department here and now at the head of the Latin department of the University of South Dakota, which was accompanied by the following article: "Joseph Henry Howard, who succeeds Professor Merchant as professor of Latin at the University of South Dakota, received his A. B. degree in the University of Indiana in 1888, and in 1890 was granted his A. M. degree. In 1899 he was honored with a Ph. D. from Leland Stanford university. For seven years he was assistant professor in Latin in the University of Indiana, and from 1901 to 1903 was connected with the University of Nebraska. He studied a year at Johns Hopkins and also a year at Chicago university."

Mr. Walter K. Long, a former graduate of this University, and now a student at the Northwestern Medical school of Chicago has been heard from. He reports that he likes his work very much and says all his University work here was given full credit. He is giving the nurses in Wesley hospital a course in general chemistry and is also assisting Dr. Long's first year class a few hours every week. He also says that there are quite a number Nebraska men registered in the Northwestern University, among them being Rowe, Rain, Brooks, Leslie, Sims, B. Doane, O. Hummell and J. P. Barry.

A letter has been received by the Y. M. C. A. from Kenneth E. Riley, a student of this University two years ago, who is now attending the University of Washington. On the envelope he inscribed the Washington University yell, which runs like this:
"U of W! Hiah! Hiah!
U of W! Shiah! Shiah!
Skookum! Skookum!
Washington!"
