Editorial Remarks

Unless ordered discontinued The Daily Nebraskan will be sent the coming semester to all present subscribers.

We wish to take special pains in calling attention to the service that will be held in chapel next Sunday evening. This will be a special service for University students. Chancellor Andrews will address the meeting and all of our student body should endeavor to be present. There will be something in this service and Chancellor Andrews' address that will appeal to all of our student body, and it is really a privilege that all of us are enabled to meet together in this manner.

The basket ball game tonight should prove a good attraction, as a contest of a most exciting and closely fought character is bound to occur. The Omaha Y. M. C. A. always has a good team, which may be accounted for by their having such a large field to pick from. The fact that the Y. M. C. A. teams all over the country have been proving superior to college teams as a rule is more noticeable this year than formerly. Hence a trial of strength between the teams is always interesting. Our team has not played any of its heaviest games yet, although the one tonight promises to serve as a strong start. The game was arranged after brief negotiations, and little time was left for an announcement to be made. Nevertheless a good attraction always ought to draw, and a large crowd should come out tonight and witness the game.

Again we would like to call the attention of our readers to the favor that they can do us by calling for Nebraska coupons at the business houses that have advertising in our columns. These coupons have been left with our advertisers and we would regard it as a special favor if University people would call for them and thus show that they appreciate the liberal spirit of those who patronize the college paper and make its publication possible. No matter how large the amount of the purchase may be, everyone is desired to call for a coupon. This will let our advertisers know that the University public is interested in the welfare of their paper and that they will remember those who patronize it. In our business directory is to be found the best class of business houses in the city and the ones that take the most interest in the University. These coupons are all numbered and should be preserved, as we expect to give away prizes. Announcements concerning these will be made later.

We have a right to feel satisfaction now that our football schedule is finally fixed.

Other western institutions have tried in vain to obtain games with the "Big Nine" teams with whom we have arranged dates, and it is to our credit that we have succeeded where they have failed. Our next schedule is the strongest that we have ever had, and thus are the allegations made by our envious neighbors that we are being pushed to the wall for recognition being directly refuted.

We can not help but feel that another successful season like those of the past two years will settle beyond a doubt the permanency of our ability to furnish a team that can compare well with the "Big Nine" teams. Our schedule is heavy, but this will only call for greater effort. The Minnesota, Iowa and Haskell games come close together and will present a difficult proposition, and as a result hard early season work will be required in getting the team into shape. Yet two years ago we had a string of heavy games that caused even the most loyal supporters to fear, but next year we hope to do as well as we have done in the past and even show improvement. The signs point to a greater and more successful season than ever, and we have confidence that they will be fulfilled.

DAY OF PRAYER

February 14th Universal Day of Prayer for Colleges

Sunday, February the 14th, will be observed by thousands of college students all over the United States, as "The Universal Day of Prayer for Colleges." The University of Nebraska will have her share in this day of important services, and will have different meetings during the day in the interest of college affairs. At 9 o'clock in the morning the young women will hold a service, known as "The Quiet Hour," led by Paul Corbin, travelling secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement of the international committee. Mr. Corbin is well known to a large number of University students, who are assured of an interesting service.

At the same hour, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, Prof. F. A. Stuff, member of the advisory board of the University association, will lead in "The Quiet Hour" for University men. Those who know Professor Stuff personally will not need to be urged to attend this service. It is expected that a goodly number of men will attend this early morning service.

At 3 o'clock p. m., in University hall, room 106, there will be a meeting for both men and women, addressed by Mr. Paul Corbin. Special music will be a feature of this meeting.

The "Vesper Service," in the University chapel at 7 p. m., addressed by Chancellor Andrews, will conclude the day in a most fitting manner. No University student can afford to miss this hour's service. We believe that we have the strongest chancellor in the country, and expect to show him that we believe it thoroughly. If you believe the same, be in this meeting.

Law Library Rules.

Dean Pound of the law school has found it necessary to adopt some rather stringent rules in regard to students carrying books from the library, and not returning them at the specified time. Considerable carelessness has been exhibited on the part of students in this respect, which Dr. Pound has seen fit to check. Any failure to conform to the rules to the letter may result in serious consequences to the offender, of which suspension from the library may be but a mild sentence.
