Editorial Remarks

Come out and hear Preston Search this evening. He is an educator of the greatest prominence and never fails to get close to his audience in instilling a mutual sympathy. The lectures by noted men that we have had here this year have all been good, and the one this evening is especially commended. Do your duty to yourself and be present this evening.

The scrap between Wisconsin and Minnesota continues with undiminished vigor, and is growing decidedly interesting. The Wisconsin Cardinal states the Minnesota managers may be called upon to explain certain statements emanating from them and appearing in the Minnesota Daily regarding the breaking of contracts. It was alleged by Minnesota that Wisconsin failed to keep a contract with her, and now dirthings are threatened in consequence.

The Y. M. C. A. has done itself proud in its pledge of $1,500 to the Temple Fund. The hard and faithful work done by the officers and the great body of the association is appreciated. The Y. M. C. A. has shown itself to be a material and helpful factor in this enterprise, as well as in many branches of student life. Our association has proved itself to be one of the most progressive that can be found anywhere, and when it enters upon an undertaking it sees it through to completion.

The Rhodes Scholarship examination will be held here April 13th. This fact ought to interest all the students of this University who are anxious to achieve advancement and gain something by their own merits. They should realize what this opportunity means and hold in view the prize that is offered. Nothing that counts can be accomplished without hard work and no man ever wins out who has not exerted effort in behalf of his own interests. Those who have already signified their intention of taking the examination are entitled to a considerable amount of credit, and are setting an example that others should not hesitate to follow.

The man who wins out can certainly be comfortable in the consciousness of his achievement. No chance for a more desirable honor is placed before the American student today that the winning of the Rhodes Scholarship.

The Co-eds of California are greatly stirred up over the utterance of Professor Charles M. Gayley, head of the English department, in rebuking the lack of attention displayed by the girls in his poetry class. In reminding them of their unreceptiveness the professor said:

"If God Almighty or the Angel of Gabriel wrote a poem it would not interest you. You are nothing but giggling girls. Half of you ought to be made to pay tuition—Class dismissed."

The girls showed an utter lack of appreciation, while Professor Gayley was endeavoring to instill into their minds some of the beauties of modern poetry, that would stand forth forever as the pearls of human thought. They were occupied with matters of grosser interest, and as a consequence sacrificed their rights to further consideration. As an evidence of this President Gayler, after making his startling announcement packed up his books and departed in angry haste, leaving the bewildered class to take to themselves the full benefit of the rebuke administered.

Professor Gayler has already taken a pronounced stand against co-education, and this admonition is regarded as only a part of his views in general. The girls are naturally very indignant at this slight upon their intelligence.
